PROPOSED NEW BUILDING FOR NEWTON Y. M. C. A.

FIFTIETH YEAR.

The Bryant & Stratton School, Boston.

Among the many local institutions which have contributed to the remarkable commercial progress of Boston during the past 50 years, none stands out more prominently than the Bryant & Stratton commercial school of Boston.

In its new building, the school is removed from all surrounding influences which might distract the minds of pupils from their studies. Its record is its reference, and the very best possible guarantee of its ability to prepare earnest young men and women for responsible positions in the business world.

The ambitions of the present generation are centered upon rapid promotions which come only from a thorough knowledge of the necessary subjects upon which to build a successful business career. Instead of entering business with but a sparing knowledge of conditions, as was the case with young men years ago, young men and women of today lay a good foundation with practical business education and training in a school such as the Bryant & Stratton.

This school was organized in 1861, and for the past 44 years has been conducted successfully by its present principal, Mr. H. E. Hibbard, keeping always in the foremost rank with the ever-progressive educational institutions of the country.

Its patronage comes to it unsolicited. It does not follow the practice common with many schools of sending solicitors from house to house seeking patronage.

The plans for the practice of business in which the individual teaching system is employed originated with this school. Each pupil has a special course of study planned out for him and carefully adjusted to his personal requirements.

This system applies to all kinds of business study such as bookkeeping, commercial law, stenography, handwriting, typewriting, commercial geography, English grammar, written and mental arithmetic, spelling and correspondence. The details of business training in the Bryant & Stratton school are unequalled by any of the advanced training schools of the present period. This splendid system of combining study with practice enables pupils to advance in accordance with their ability and application, and graduate at any time when they have passed their requirements.

The feature which makes the Bryant & Stratton school unique is the adherence to the calendar governing the regular academic institutions. The sessions are from 9 to 2 daily with no attendance on Saturdays or evenings, or during the summer season.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

The affectionate interest and generous aid of my neighbors during the illness of my wife, and their sorrow at her death, as well as their tender sympathy with myself in my irreparable loss, deserves personal acknowledgment, but these instances of loving kindness are so many that I may be pardoned if I express to all, in this card of remembrance, the thanks of a full heart. Not the least of these gentle attentions were the gifts of flowers, so royally abundant, during the days of suffering, and when the still form lay robed for its last repose. They were a tribute of love both to her well known tastes and to the qualities which endeared her to so many friends. She sleeps beneath them in a distant grave, but something tells me the dead do not forget.

THELON BROWN.

CITY HALL.

Mayor Charles E. Hatfield, who as chairman of the Republican state committee constantly comes in contact with the newspaper men, was this week elected an associated life member of the Boston Press Club. The Press Club, which occupies finely appointed quarters at 3 Beacon street, includes several well known Newtonians among its life and associate members. Next winter the club will celebrate its 25th birthday.

DIED.

GARFIELD—In Savannah, Ga., Aug. 26, Evelyn M. Hill, widow of Walter H. Garfield, 70 yrs. 8 mos. Burial at Newton Lower Falls, Aug. 28.

"PARAGON PARK" AND PALM GARDEN.

The closing days of "Paragon Park" and its famous Palm Garden are full of promise for a glorious ending to a specially glorious season. In all its six years Manager Dodge has never known such a rush of popularity. Already he is making his plans for extending his Palm Garden to accommodate twice its present number of guests another season.

The final Sunday of the season, Sept. 4, will long be remembered in the history of this resort. On this day the 43d Regiment of Infantry (Duke of Cornwall's Own Rifles) of Ottawa, Ont., 1000 strong, Lieutenant-Colonel D. H. Cameron commanding, will be the guests of the city of Boston, through the courtesy of Mayor Fitzgerald and the City Council, at "Paragon Park." A banquet will be tendered them in the Palm Garden at 6 p. m. The regiment is accompanied by its regimental band of 50 pieces, its bugle band of 30 pieces, and the Fifth Regiment of Infantry, M. V. M., and regimental band of 30 pieces.

These three visiting bands with the Mainland Military Concert Band at the park will give continuous band concerts all day beginning at 1:30, playing mainly international music. There will be a special illumination in the evening. This program will be carried out rain or shine. With the special attractions of Labor Day on Monday, Sept. 5 the season will be over but until the middle of September the Palm Garden will remain open as usual for the accommodation of patrons who wish to enjoy its exceptional cuisine. The place is specially popular with automobilists and well into September last year they visited the Palm Garden in large numbers. There is a special reason this season in keeping the Palm Garden open for automobilists at the Harvard-Boston auto meet will naturally continue down to the Palm Garden for dinner after the day's events are over.

Everybody should see the beautiful display of new gas and electric table lamps, with new Amboy art glass, as shown by McKenney & Waterbury Co., 181 Franklin street, corner Congress. These lamps make beautiful seashore adornments and wedding gifts.

TYPHOID FEVER

To the Editor of the Graphic:

Sir—Typhoid fever is very prevalent in certain of the communities around Newton, and while so far we have very few cases in the city it is within the bounds of possibility that we may not escape from an outbreak.

The following facts in regard to typhoid fever are worthy of consideration and I ask you to give them space in the Graphic.

1. Typhoid fever is contracted solely through the mouth. If you do not put the poison of typhoid fever into your mouth you will never contract the disease. Therefore watch the mouth.

2. Do not eat or drink anything (water, milk, oysters, fresh vegetables or anything else) unless it has been first boiled, broiled, baked, roasted, fried or otherwise thoroughly heated through and through. It must be cooled, simple heating is not enough.

3. Do without all food or drink which has not first been thus cooked. Canned or bottled foods or drinks (other than milk or water) are not included in this.

4. If living in the same house with a typhoid fever patient, do not handle your own food or food intended for anyone else, even if it has been cooked, except with hands that have been thoroughly washed with soap and very hot water. Wash before every meal in this way and before cooking, serving or eating anything, or putting the fingers in the mouth. Keep your fingers out of your mouth.

5. If there are flies about, see that all food and drink is protected from them at all times. Flies often carry typhoid poison to food and drink. The fly which you fish out of your glass of milk may have infected it while taking its bath.

6. The effects of typhoid poison do not show for two weeks after the poison has entered the body. Therefore, for the next two weeks typhoid fever may develop from poison already taken in.

Any case which develops after two weeks from the publication of this letter will be due to failure to carry out the directions here given.

FRANCIS, GEO. CURTIS, M. D., Chairman Board of Health.

SUCCESSFUL RECORD

Since March, 1910, the Newton Co-operative Bank has sold 1755 shares in Series No. 44, the largest issue since it was started 22 years ago. During July last it paid off its 29th Series of 156 shares amounting to over $30,000.

This series started 1898 and the shareholders had paid in $1 per share for 148 months and received $200.

The bank makes a special effort to loan to home builders in Newton, and during the past year has taken about 80 such loans in amounts from $300 to $5000 each.

LABOR DAY PARTY

Great preparations are being made by the parishioners of St. John's Church, Newton Lower Falls, and St. Paul's Mission, Wellesley, for the annual field day and athletic carnival to be held on the four-acre campus opposite St. John's Church, Newton Lower Falls, on Labor Day.

Father Callanan, the pastor of the church, is the pioneer in the Boston diocese in introducing a field day or picnic to be held within the parish limits. Eighteen years ago a Labor Day carnival was introduced by him and since then almost every parish in the diocese has followed suit. Father Callanan argued then, and holds to that view still, that this idea of keeping the fathers and mothers and young people at home for their holiday amusement, bears splendid fruit in more ways than one. The physical dangers of travel are avoided, the labor and fatigue of long journeys are eliminated as well as the moral dangers of saloons and evil associations. Then, too, the expense is less and the enjoyment greater, where the whole family, including the little ones, are enjoying themselves. Father Callanan furnishes the opportunity to spend the holiday dollar and a good cause is benefited by the spending. The attractions this year are numerous, the grounds are spacious and beautiful, the accommodations are excellent and nothing ever was or will be tolerated to shock the feelings of anyone.

Fine music, games, African dancers, striking machines, fish ponds, shooting galleries, chimney games, Aunt Sally and a hundred other attractions will keep the young and the old amused at all times. Five hundred electric lights will turn the immense campus into a fairyland at night. Refreshment booths loaded down with good things will regale the hungry and thirsty reveller.

Fancy tables with useful and ornamental souvenirs of the carnival will tempt the generously disposed.

Father Callanan owns the largest wall tent perhaps in New England. It enclosed a space of four acres of ground and was used last June at the Boston College lawn party in Newton. All of the canvas equipment of the Boston College party was loaned to his old Alma Mater by Father Callanan and put up under his personal supervision.

NEW QUARTERS.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Gustavus Forbes, a veteran of the wholesale dry goods trade and a well known citizen of Newton Centre, died on Sunday at his home on Cypress street in that section. He had been ill several weeks and died at the age of 83.

Mr. Forbes was born in Winsor, Vt., Feb. 1, 1828. When a young man he entered the employ of the dry goods house of Bryant & Forbes. Later he cast his lot with Dutton, Forbes & Co. and then became a partner in the concern of Forbes & Richardson, from there holding partnership with Forbes, Richardson & Co. The big Boston fire of 1872 proved ruinous to the concern and Mr. Forbes started in business again as head of the firm of Forbes & Co., which he carried on for many years.

Of late he had been associated with Wilson, Larrabee & Co., but last January he retired from active business life, after 15 years with the last named firm.

Mr. Forbes was twice married, his first wife being Miss Harriet R. Talbot of South Dedham. They had four children. His second wife was Miss Hildrey of Newton Centre and they had one son, Rev. Kenneth Forbes of Fall River.

The deceased was a deacon greatly interested in the affairs of the First Baptist parish and was a charter member of the Baptist Social Union. Funeral services were held at his home on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Mamie A. Levy officiating. The burial, which was private, was in Newton Cemetery.

Excuse me, sir, said the census enumerator briskly, after the name and age had been duly recorded, but what is your occupation?

I am a poet.

But what do you do for a living?

ACCIDENT

The 12 o'clock express train out from Boston this noon met with a bad accident at the Riverside Bridge when two cars jumped the track and rolled down the embankment on the Weston side of the river. The police report no one killed or seriously injured, although quite a number were slightly hurt.

TRANSFERRED CREDIT.

The young man to the tailor said, "I think it really due you."

To say that suit you made for me was quite a credit to you."

"Alas!" the tailor quickly replied—"And ruefully he said it—"

—The Misses Marjorie and Doris Holmes of Bellevue street will bring home with them on their return from Chebeague Island, Me., four silver cups, one second and three first prizes, won in athletic events at the annual field day held Aug. 19 and 20 at that place.

—City laborers are at work at the north end of the Cabot Park playground, constructing a skating rink. The ground in the immediate vicinity of the brook that flows through the playground is being excavated so that a broad, shallow pool will be left which can be flooded by damming the brook.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Neulley and family of Garden road have been prominent in the social life of MacMahan Island, Me., this summer. They have entertained the Misses Ruth and Dorothy MacLure and Henry MacLure and Mr. Neulley was recently chosen secretary and treasurer of the Cottagers' Association.

—Bernard H. Dow of the '06 class of Newton High, son of Charles F. Dow, Centre street, who has been with the Hill people as resident engineer on their railroad on the Deschutes River, 30 miles from Shaulko, Ore., is in the hospital at the Dalles, Ore., with typhoid fever, but is doing well and his recovery is assured.

The death of Mr. John B. Egerton of 37 Crystal street, Newton Centre, occurred at the Newton Hospital on Friday, Aug. 26, after an illness of more than a year. Mr. Egerton was 62 years old and had lived in Newton for more than 25 years. He was long engaged in the wholesale carpeting business in Boston and recently was connected with P. A. Pastene & Co., importers.

The interment was at East Randolph, Vt., on Monday.

BASEBALL.

At Central Park, Waltham, Saturday, the Empire A. C. of Waltham and the Warren A. C. of Newton crossed bats and the latter won by a score of 5 to 3.

Hyatt and Walsh pitched well and both received good support. For the winners Hyatt and Buck played well and for the home team Kelley, Norton, Lowney and Walsh excelled.

The man who runs a four inch ad. a couple of weeks before Christmas and expects to keep his store full all the next summer.

The man who won't and never did advertise and then "hollers" long and loud when I advertise an alleged sheriff's sale for a hinerant, fly by night clothing concern.

The man who runs his ad. upside down "so it will attract attention."

The man who expects a full half column reading notice with a two inch display. He's the fellow who weighs the wrapping paper with the goods when you buy of him.

The man who always wants for his ad. the position he knows is taken.

The man who wants to "trade out" the price, because "advertising don't pay now."

THE NEW TELEPHONE RATES

BULLETIN No. 1

We have accepted the recommendations of the Massachusetts Highway Commission relative to rates and service in the Boston and Suburban Districts and will make them effective as soon as practicable.

It is impossible at this time, because of the extensive preparation required, to fix a date for the complete application of the new schedule in all parts of the territory, but BY NOVEMBER 1 we expect to be able to offer service under the provisions of this schedule TO THOSE WHO DESIRE IT.

New subscribers desiring immediate service will be taken subject to present rates until facilities for operation under the new schedule are supplied, at which time, after due notice, they will be transferred to the new schedule.

In some of our exchanges these facilities can be furnished within a few weeks; in others it will be a matter of months.

It is our desire to apply these new rates without unnecessary delay and to give them a complete and impartial trial.

The rewriting of upwards of one hundred thousand contracts, the rearrangement of subscribers' lines and numbers to conform thereto, the reconstruction of switchboards, and the building of the large number of additional lines required, is a large task and one to be carried out under careful plans providing both for the doing of the work and for the least possible disturbance of the service.

We ask the indulgence of our subscribers, therefore, while planning and executing these changes. Before inviting their acceptance of this new schedule we shall issue a series of bulletins giving the fullest publicity to the various rates quoted and such explanation as may seem necessary to a clear understanding of them. We shall also supply such detailed information or advice as they may request regarding their individual telephone requirements, in order that they may select the particular class of service best suited to their needs.

The following recapitulation may anticipate many inquiries:

1. We expect by November 1 to be able to offer service in any exchange, in accordance with the new schedule, to those who desire it.
2. The changes necessary for complete operation under the new schedule cannot be made for several months.

THEATRES

B. F. Keith's Theatre—Eleanor Gordon and Theodore Friebe, who made one of the hits of their career at B. F. Keith's Theatre during the past week in Frank Ferguson's new comedy, "Sweet Widow Marie," have in rehearsal another comedy by the same author which it is said is equally bright if not better than that in which they are now appearing, and it will be given for the first time at B. F. Keith's Theatre Monday afternoon. The engagement of these popular players is for two weeks only, and so great has been their success that they will probably stay in vaudeville for the rest of the season. Another strong feature for the week will be the first appearance here of Bothwell Browne, said to be one of the greatest impersonators that has appeared in years. He is a Westerner, well known in San Francisco, where he made his first great hit, and came East only a few months ago, with a splendid production. Still another feature will be Sam Chip and Mary Marie, in that always delightful Delft dialogue, "In Old Edam." Others will be Amy Butler and her quartet of comedians in a singing and dancing number; the Lavinia Cramer Trio of fun-makers, and the R. A. G. company of singers and musicians.

Hollis Street Theatre—The Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, will begin its regular dramatic season on Monday night, Sept. 5, when Henry B. Harris will present the talented little star, Elsie Ferguson, in a new four-act play by Paul Harness entitled "A Matter of Money." Miss Ferguson last year established her claim to stellar honors by a charming portrayal of the Little Queen in that dainty, mythical romance, "Such a Little Queen," in which she appeared so successfully at the Tremont Theatre. This season Mr. Harris is putting her forward in a highly emotional role and in an entirely different type of character than she has been heretofore identified with. The theme of the play is the employment of child labor in many American mills and factories and the human interest is dominated by a rough and undeveloped girl forced to toil in the mills—the role assumed by Miss Ferguson. A notable cast of artists, including Frank Mills, Paul Everett, Franklin Hurligh, Joseph Garry, Harrison Forbes, Charles D. Pitt, Helen Macbeth, Maggie Fielding, Rena Grau, Ida Glenn and Margaret Schayne, is supporting Miss Ferguson. The engagement is for two weeks with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Attention is called to the fact that Miss Ferguson in "A Matter of Money" will not be seen in any other city in New England.

Castle Square Theatre—"The Circus Girl" at the Castle Square next week for a third production within two years. What more need be said? For the second week of his season, Mr. Craig is reviving this popular musical comedy because the public says that it wants it. From the very moment of its first performance on Christmas eve of 1908, it has triumphed as no other piece of its kind ever triumphed in Boston before. To describe it and to give reasons for its success is unnecessary. "The Circus Girl" must be seen to be appreciated, and if seen once, it will be seen again and again. There has been nothing like it on the stage for many seasons. The variety, its music, its humor, its brilliant costumes and picturesque scenes make it a spectacle well worth the approval of all who want to be entertained. A new chorus of 40 singers has been engaged for this revival, and there will be new stage settings and costumes. Miss Mary Young will of course appear as the lively Lucille, the slack-wire walker, and Mr. Craig will be seen as the youthful Dick Capel. Donald Meek will have his old role of Biggs, and George Hassell as Sir Titus Wemyss, while for the remaining dramatic personae every member of the John Craig Stock Company will be called upon for overflowing humor. All the favorite songs will be heard, including "A Little Piece of String," "Now You Know the Way," "A Wet, Wet Day," and "The Ring Master," and a number of new features will be added. The orchestra will be under the direction of Joseph Marr.

Boston Grand Opera House—"Checkers," Henry W. Blossom's popular racing comedy, will be the attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House next week, beginning with an extra matinee on Monday, Labor Day. The tremendous circulation of the book since its publication some years ago seems reason for the belief that the charming and thrilling tale must be known to every lover of the old, old story. It tells of the desires of a manly young follower of the "ponies" to reform his daily life through the love of a beautiful girl. It is a strong, clean, interesting story of American life, with the racing element predominating, and has no problem, no suggestive line, no false sentiment, no "smart set," and no woman with a past. "Checkers" contains both humor and pathos, both of which are natural and delightfully unforced. The lump in the throat is quickly swallowed in a laugh, and in the now famous race track scene there is that which gives the tingle to the nerves and makes one forget the theatre in the rush of the story's unfolding and the warring emotions of fear and hope in Checkers, who has staked his all and has so much to win or lose. The company is headed by Harry Beaumont, said to be one of the best of the younger light comedians, who has recently come to the front. In his support will be seen Dave Abraham, Jr., who played the role of "Push" Miller, the race track tout, in the original production; Florence Neaton, Gertrude Ryan and many other well known players. Matinees will be given Monday, Labor Day, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

"THE ROUND UP" COMING TO THE BOSTON THEATRE.

The attraction at the Boston Theatre beginning Labor Day matinee, Monday, Sept. 5, will be the return of Klaw & Erlanger's massive production, "The Round Up." The theatrical annals of Boston do not record such a towering success as "The Round Up." It is the great American play of the hour. Every character and scene in the piece breathes the life of the great Southwest. The enthusiastic interest displayed by every audience is the most flattering endorsement this really great production can receive. The battle scene in the third act is a stupendous stage effect, the like of which has never been seen before. The appearance of 20 mounted Indians riding along a ledge of rock far above the stage level is a thrill indeed, but it is far surpassed in the great incident at the end of the third act, when "Slim" Hoover, the sheriff, and a troop of cavalrymen are shown in an actual hand-to-hand fight with a band of Apache Indian marauders escaped from their reservation. There have been great thrills presented on the Boston stage in years past, but nothing that touches this in point of realism has ever been seen in any theatre in the world. In the last act a group of cowboys are shown riding bucking bronchos. This, too, is a novelty never before seen in what is termed an indoor attraction. The bracing, vigorous atmosphere of life in the open is preserved with startling fidelity and truth. The magnitude of this production is such that it can only be played in a few cities and in only the largest theatres. Its performances at the Boston are the only opportunity those living within a reasonable journey to Boston will have of seeing this tremendous dramatic sensation. So great is the demand for seats from those living at a distance from Boston that a special bureau has been established for the expeditious handling of mail orders, which when sent with cash or money order and accompanied by addressed stamped envelope, receive immediate attention. Regular matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

FACTS ABOUT THE NUTSHELL BOSTON GUIDE.

It is clear, concise, accurate and convenient to carry. It has more historical matter than the average guide condensed for convenience into small space. Besides the historical matter it deals with artistic, literary, musical and philanthropic Boston, in at least one of which most tourists are interested. It contains an excellent map drawn by Mr. Houghton one of the best map draftsmen in New England. The map is printed clearly on good paper and is small enough to be consulted on the street. It is the only Boston guide book published which has complete trolley instructions. It is not a history for the sideside, it is not an oration, but it aims to help tourists, students and Bostonians to appreciate Boston. Much of the value of the book is in the care with which the data has been prepared. The new edition will have the good points of the old book and will be much improved. Still keeping the idea of brevity, from the growth of Boston, the book will be somewhat enlarged. It will have a more attractive cover, a better binding, and still better print. The book is illustrated. The author is giving the book the most careful and painstaking revision and we are making every effort to have the new edition clear, concise and correct, the three qualities which have helped to make our book unique among guides.

A RARE DISTINCTION.

Washington alone among Americans has received the high honor of having a state named for him. Most of the states bear impersonal names. Many of them, like our own Massachusetts, are of Indian origin. Half a dozen Europeans have namesakes among them. They are Lord de la Warre, King George II., King Louis XIV., Queen Mary, William Penn and Queen Caroline. Elizabeth, England's virgin queen, was commemorated in the term Virginia. It was most fitting that Abraham Lincoln, as Washington's only companion in fame, should receive the same rare distinction of having his memory enshrined in the name of an indestructible state.—Boston Globe.

Before you have any fall work done in your house, come to see us and tell us what your plans are. Or if you are not sure just what to do, ask us for suggestions. Let us tell you why certain paints and oils and finishes are better than others. Long experience has made us sure of our ground, and we do everything with a strict guarantee that it will be exactly as we represent it. Quotations willingly and promptly given.

Their Old Stories.

A man who never could tell a story joined a story tellers' club that thought it had a corner on the humor of the universe. The man got along very well so long as he didn't have to say anything, but there came a time when he was put on the program for a humorous story, and then his wife coached him for a week beforehand on one of her own funniest stories. When he came home from the story telling contest she asked him how things went. He said: "Pretty well. All the other fellows told some mighty good ones." Then he gave a synopsis of the good ones the other fellows had told. "Darned clever, those chaps are," he said. "I don't know what they would think of me if they knew I had learned my story from a woman. They don't think much of a woman's sense of humor." "You needn't let that worry you, dear," she said sweetly. "I have heard the other fellows' wives tell their old stories at card parties for the last five years."—New York Press.

Where Knowledge Was Bliss.

A certain professor of histology who delivers lectures in one of the eastern colleges is not averse to a quiet bit of diversion on the side, as instance his wife's discovery. "See here, Robert," said she to the doctor as she fumbled in his pockets after his late arrival home, "what are all these red, white and blue disks I find here in your pocket?" "Oh? Yes—why—those—are—that is—I use—oh—I mean disks—to illustrate my lectures on the blood. You see, the white ones represent the white corpuscles and the red ones the red corpuscles of the blood." "And, pray, what do the blue ones represent?" "Oh? The blue ones? 'Oh—yes—h'm! Why—er—certainly—they represent the corpuscles of the venous blood.'" Well, maybe she believed him and maybe—well, he quit playing poker, at any rate.—Harper's Weekly.

Keeping the Pledge.

"Your honor," pleaded a woman in a police court, "I am the mother of six children. Last week this man came home, and he did not give me a cent of his week's pay. Ever since that time he has been doing nothing but drink, and he won't work, so I want you to give him a good long sentence." "Your honor," said the man, "if you'll let me go this time I'll sign the pledge for five years and—"

"Don't you let him do it, Judge," bawled the woman. "I was easy with him last time, and he took the pledge, but didn't keep it." "Sure, your honor, I did keep it," said the man.

"Yes, your honor, he kept it all right," broke in the woman again. "He swore that he wouldn't drink any more whisky, but the next night he came home drunk on beer."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Budding Financier.

"I've got a boy in my employ who will be a king of finance some day," said a man who has a factory in New York. "A few weeks ago he sold a pair of homing pigeons to a man in Brooklyn. Two days afterward the pigeons appeared at his window. Another Brooklynite bought them, and again the birds came back. The boy has just made a third sale. I am wondering if I had not better get rid of him before he tries to sell me my own factory."

Foxy.

Rita (looking at photo)—Oh, yes, he's handsome enough, but he's an awful boomer. Stella—What did he do? Rita—Didn't I tell you? He made an awful fuss with me one season and then asked me if I thought that dad would object to him as a son-in-law. I said no, I thought not, and he went away and proposed to my sister.—Illustrated Bits.

The Lacking Stroke.

"Do you think it would improve my style," inquired the varsity man who had got into the crew through favoritism. "If I were to acquire a faster stroke?" "It would improve the crew," replied the candid trainer. "If you got a paralytic stroke."—London Tit-Bits.

The Point of View.

"Why so sad, old man?" "The doctor wants my wife to travel two months." "I understand. Sorry for you." "Understand? No, you don't. She will not go!"—Flegende Blatter.

The Juvenile Idea.

"Willie, do you know what happens to the bad little boys?" "Sure." "What?" "They have more fun than the good little boys."—Chicago Post.

You find people ready enough to do the Samaritan—without the oil and twopenny.—Sydney Smith.

The Graphic is printed and mailed Friday afternoon, and is for sale at all news-stands in the Newtons, and at the South Terminal, Boston.All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 15 cents per line in the reading matter, or 25 cents per line in the advertising columns.There is apparently but little interest in this city on one of the greatest political questions of the day—the direct nomination of political officers.
It will be recalled that the editor of this paper several weeks ago asked for assistance in obtaining the necessary number of names in this senatorial district to have a referendum placed on the ballot at the state election on the question of acceptance of the direct nomination in this senatorial district.That editorial was presented to over half, and possibly two-thirds, of the legal voters of this city, and met with absolutely no response. It is very evident that the intelligent voters of Newton prefer to have the nominees of the Republican party selected for them by a small coterie of men;
and it must be confessed that, judged by the nominations made in the past, this method has not been without some merit.At the same time, the principle of the matter is entirely wrong, and this intelligent city should align itself with the progressive thought of the rest of the country on this great question.The thoughtlessness of the present telephone and automobile age is reaching large proportions. Local dealers in provisions and other supplies have many instances of this characteristic at the time.When telephone messages are received, asking our merchants to deliver a ten, five and even a two cent article anywhere from a half mile to a mile from the store, it is very evident that the cost of this service is far greater than the profit which can be made on the article sold. A little care and attention by the purchasing public in matters of this sort would be greatly appreciated by every man who does business in Newton.

THE WORD AND THE THING.

When a woman, 75 years old, confronts 15 corporation attorneys and analyses and answers their arguments in a technical and intricate railroad question before a state commission, as Mrs. Felton did in Georgia the other day, in such a logical and convincing way as to make the commission and the lawyers sit up quite straight and listen attentively, and when one recalls similar instances of successful pleading by women attorneys in courts, it is exceedingly difficult to see why women should be allowed to interpret laws and forbidden to have a voice in making them.Not every woman is fitted by nature or by education to cast an intelligent vote. Neither is every man.
And yet the ballot is given to every unintelligent man and withheld from every intelligent woman. Votes for women are called "inexpedient," "unwise," "impractical." No one ever thinks of calling them "unjust." Men love the word "justice." They care less for the thing itself when it comes to sacrificing any of their fancied rights.—Boston Globe.The September number of Suburban Life is the big house-building number, and a notable issue. Seldom, indeed, has so much valuable and interesting material been bound within the covers of a single magazine. The article entitled "Two in the House of Contentment" is particularly helpful, and is written in a highly entertaining way. There are many pages of house plans, and brick, cement stucco and frame houses, in great variety, are pictured and described.
Other important architectural articles are entitled "Furnishing the Outside of the House," "The Least Expensive Types," "The Sun-Parlor," "Short Cuts for the House Builder," "What to Expect of Your Architect," "Building a Garage Right," "The Cellar as It Should Be," and "The Underpinning of the House." Of course, the house is not treated of exclusively. Mrs.
Mabel Osgood Wright's delightful story, "The Sadness of Flower Hat," is continued in this number; and there are important articles on flower growing, the care of street trees, household matters, and other subjects which always interest readers who live in suburban homes or in the country.

CORNER STONE LAID

About 200 people were present yesterday afternoon in the drizzling rain when the corner stone of the new building of the Newton Y. M. C. A. was laid at 5:30 o'clock. A temporary stand had been built at the northwest corner of the building on Church street and it was well filled with some of the most representative men and women of the city.President Allan C. Emery of the Y. M. C. A. presided, and Rev. Dr.
George S. Batters of the M. E. Church offered the opening prayer.

Mr. Emery spoke as follows:

Thirty-three years ago a few Christian men gathered together and publicly expressed their love for and their interest in the young men of Newton by organizing a Young Men's Christian Association. The influence of these men and those who followed them gave to a younger generation a zeal for service and an inspiration by which a great forward movement has been undertaken. Little did these men realize what some of them would live to see. In the providence of God these six and one-half acres of most unattractive land are being changed into a garden of beauty, and a splendid building is being erected hereon.
This barren soil, this wasted land, will soon be breathing forth life and fragrance, and over the sod will tramp thousands of our future men. I am sure as we all share the hope that this same transforming power may be witnessed in the lives of these young men and that every one may realize that however unattractive, or weak, or poor, or sinful he may be he may receive new life, hope, power and peace through fellowship here.Let him know that his body may be made clean and strong, his mind pure and alert, to meet the competition and stress of a business or a professional life, and his soul prepared to meet the God who gave it. Let him know that having Jesus Christ as his chief corner stone he may build more stately mansions and find a rich fruition through a life of Christian service.Rev. E. M. Noyes, D. D., of the First Church, Newton Centre, read the Scriptures and was followed by Mayor Charles E. Hatfield, who congratulated the city on the prospect of the magnificent plant to carry out the work for boys and to develop them physically and morally into good citizens. The Mayor called attention to the fact that while the city had given the building movement splendid support, the association must assume tremendous responsibilities to use the facilities in the most practical way.Samuel M. Sayford, the first president of the Y. M. C. A., spoke for the few men who were left who nursed the association over 30 years ago. He congratulated the association on the fact that the city now deemed it worthy to have a home of its own.Congressman Weeks, who had been asked to lay the corner stone, spoke as follows:The object of good government, as well as of our social system, is to develop men of a high moral, mental and physical standard. To accomplish this purpose it is necessary to be constantly alert and to make use of every means available.Those who had to deal with public affairs 200, 100, or even 50 years ago could little realize the new questions which would arise, or the new conditions which would surround such affairs. This applies to the church as well as to the state, and deserves a word of consideration at this time.In the earlier centuries, since the beginning of the Christian era, nations were, without exception, governed by hereditary sovereigns, and the character of the government depended on the intelligence, methods and purposes of the ruler.
Louis XIV. expressed this in a terse sentence when he said, "I am the state." This condition has been somewhat modified, even in those countries which still retain the forms of absolute monarchy, since the United States established its independence; nations have been affected by our example, so today in all civilized countries there is some degree of religious liberty, and in most countries the people have some part, minor though it may be, in their government.
In bringing about these changes, and qualifying their people for limited sovereignty, other countries have had one distinct advantage over us, in that the people of each country were of the same nationality, speaking the same language, having the same customs and traditions, and in most cases, having the same religion, while the United States has been receiving people from every nation, who, in many cases, have not spoken
our language, and who, in all cases, have had to learn our customs and habits and to become familiar with the spirit of our institutions. While the blending of many nationalities into one, is under the best conditions, a difficult task, we may, I think, congratulate ourselves that we have succeeded so that the quality of our citizenship, from decade to decade, has not been lowered, and, in many respects, is higher; but, in addition to the task of making good citizens of the emigrant, we have always with us the problem of the mental, moral and physical development of the young.Ours is now a nation of 90,000,000 of sovereigns—some emigrants, more of them native born—every one of whom has some influence in determining the character of this government.
How necessary it is that care should be used in the education, as well as in the moral development, of these units. If a bridge has an unsound foundation, or rotten girder, sooner or later it will collapse and a great calamity may be the result. If our government has unsound elements in its make up, as far as those elementscan affect the whole they will bring about similar results as in the case of the bridge. Therefore, if it is to be permanently successful, and more useful than other governments, as we believe it to be now, the elements which go to make it up must be more intelligent and sounder in moral and physical qualities.Danton, when almost in sight of the guillotine, said in one of his addresses, "After bread, education is of the first need of a people." We will not admit that the mental exceeds the moral need in any country, but recognizing that universal education is not only the best, but the only sure, foundation for free institutions, we have provided limited education at the public expense. We not only make provision for it, but we compel the parent to send the child to school, and we compel the child to go such time as the laws make it necessary. In addition, we have provided in many sections of the country, and nationally, as far as it can be done, that the child shall not, under certain limitations, be employed so as to interfere with its healthy growth, or with its obtaining the education which the state deems it should have. The municipality goes further, and provides for all citizens free libraries, public parks, public baths, public playgrounds, and in many other ways does what it can to develop the mental and physical life of its citizens.But all this would be of small avail in bringing about ideal conditions in a Republic if it were not for the church and its adjuncts and auxiliaries. We might be a physically sound people, and mentally well equipped, but we could not be great who have not highly developed moral qualities, so we give our attention to this necessity—not through government action, but by organized church or other similar effort. Our fathers obtained for us religious as well as civil liberty, and, being an essentially religious people, there are very few communities, however small, which have not a church. I speak of the church as a whole, of particular denominations or creeds. In our day it will generally be admitted that churches, whatever their creed may be, furnish the moral stimulus in the life of the community. Indeed, I welcome the tendency which has existed, and which I hope and believe will continue, to minimize creeds and to give greater importance to conduct and character.Perhaps the very fact that there were many churches of different denominations in large communities, carrying on similar work in the same way may have been the original reason for forming Young Men's Christian Associations, to act as the representative of all the churches in questions pertaining to the moral training of young men. Those of us in middle life have seen great changes in the manner of conducting church work, and this is also true of Young Men's Christian Associations. Originally largely limited to Bible instruction, their field of operation has been enlarged until now they are engaged in nearly every form of mental and physical development, and the advantage which the young man has, in receiving this kind of instruction in the Y. M. C. A. homes, is that the place which with it the moral qualities which come from Y. M. C. A. membership. So we find these Associations furnishing their members reading rooms, libraries, lectures, classes in various professional studies, classes in manual training and all kinds of facilities for physical development in addition to Bible studies and other religious and social meetings. The Association's members visit the sick, aid strangers and assist the unemployed to find work. Indeed, there are few things of helpful nature which the large organizations, especially, are not undertaking.There will be general agreement that, in order to carry on any kind of work so that there shall not be unnecessary waste, it is desirable to have good equipment and ample facilities. No one would think, for instance, of housing people in the same kind of quarters which were commonly used fifty years ago. The mill is better ventilated, is sunnier; the question of good sanitary arrangements and all corollary questions are taken into consideration in its construction or rebuilding. Everyone expects better surroundings and better instruments with which to work than we formerly had. That statement is equally true of church work and of the work of such organizations as the Young Men's Christian Association. Therefore, we build better churches and connect with their suitable accommodations for the pastor, church parlors, church kitchens, Sunday School rooms and other means of developing the modern methods of conducting church life.In the course of time the means of carrying on the Association work in this city have been proven inadequate.
A larger building, furnished with the latest and best equipment, was found to be necessary, so public spirited men from all parts of the city, headed and encouraged by that generous friend of all good work, Frank A. Day, took up the question of providing for new quarters, and in an incredibly short time, considering all the questions which then existed, they had themselves contributed, or obtained from others, all the money necessary to build a new association home. As citizens of Newton we have not only felt like encouraging this movement, but we should have felt humiliated if the city and its citizenship had not taken this advance step, as has been the case in other movements which have assisted in making up good municipal, physical and social conditions. We certainly, of all things, should not have been found lacking in this instance, so it must be a cause for pride that the response to requests for subscriptions was so numerous and so generous that it has enabled the planning, and will provide for the building, of one of the finest institutions for this work to be found in any similar city in the United States. We have gathered today to lay the corner stone of this building.
It is an occasion which should attract the attention of every citizen.
If it does, it will call to his attentionthe value of the work which this organization is carrying on, and will, I am sure, be an incentive to him to join in it, either in attendance, in a contributory way, or in some other encouraging manner. If that is the result, the erection of the building itself, without taking into account the work to be done in the years to come, will justify the expenditure of all the money which it will cost, because it will be a means of producing a better citizenship, which, in effect, is what we are attempting to do through the school, the church, the Young Men's Christian Association and all kindred efforts.At the conclusion of his remarks the Congressman spread the mortar like a veteran and the corner stone, after having a sealed copper box placed within it, was lowered to its position.
In the box was a brief history of the association, prepared by Messrs.
J. R. W. Shapleigh, Edwin O. Childs, Jr., and Allan C. Emery, a list of the officers and directors from its organization, a list of all contributors to the building, pictures of the directors, trustees and building committee, a brief history of the women's auxiliary and a list of its charter members, a copy of the special Y. M. C. A. edition of the Newton Graphic, and copies of current Boston papers and current coins.The corner stone, which is of Indiana limestone to match the trimmings of the building, bears the inscription, "Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone, 1910."

DIDN'T SUIT HIM.

Tailor—Mr. Pleadin, I have become involved in a law suit, and would like to engage your services to defend it for me.Lawyer—Beg pardon, but if the suit isn't any better than the last one you made for me it is indefensible.That deaf mute guide seems to be well acquainted with the institution," said the visitor.Yes, indeed, replied the superintendent. He has everything at his fingers' end.

GEORGE W. CHADWICK, DirectorNo school in this country can contribute as much toward a musical education as the New England Conservatory of Music. A steady growth of over fifty years has made it rich in experience, and it is everywhere recognized as the largest and best equipped school in America. Its complete organization, its imposing Conservatory building, and splendid equipment, and the new Residence building offer exceptional facilities for students. Situated in Boston, the acknowledged music centre of America, it affords pupils the environment and atmosphere so necessary to a musical education.Every department under special masters. The student's capacity sets the only limitation to his progress. The reciprocal relations established with Harvard University afford pupils special advantages for literary study.
Owing to the practical training of students in our Normal Department, graduates are much in demand as teachers and musicians.The privileges of lectures, concerts and recitals, the opportunities of ensemble practice and appearing before audiences, and the daily associations are invaluable advantages to the music student. A number of free violin scholarships available for 1910.

POLICE NOTES.

John W. McKay, an aged man who conducts a tailor shop on Pearl court, was arraigned Monday morning on a charge of assault and battery on Rosalie Lipkin, an 11-year-old girl. He pleaded not guilty and asked for a continuance, stating that at the time he was arrested the serious nature of the charge was not revealed to him. Chief Mitchell declared that a postponement would be entirely satisfactory as there were other witnesses to be secured, and Judge Kennedy set the date for the hearing at Sept. 6. The case against McKay is being handled by Miss Helen Marsters, an agent for the S. P. C. C.

Giacinto Grandi of 189 1-2 North street, Boston, was fined $10 Monday morning for carrying a loaded revolver. He had pleaded guilty. Antonio Deganino, who was arrested with him and who was charged with firing a revolver on last Monday.

William H. Wales of Greenwood street, Oak Hill, was fined $15 Monday morning by Judge Kennedy for assault and battery on Miss Lura H. Loucks. He pleaded guilty and was held in bonds of $300. Miss Loucks was formerly a Connecticut school teacher but lived this summer in Wales' house. According to her testimony he objected to her friendship with Mrs. Arthur Vingoles, wife of the (Chesnut Hill) riding teacher, and several days ago forbade her calling there. They had words on the street and he caught her by the wrist and arms, with the result that she became hysterical.

JAMES W. BRINE DEAD.

Mr. James W. Brine died Monday at his home at 30 Harvard street, Newtonville, aged 61 years. He had been in failing health more than a year.

Mr. Brine was born in East Cambridge, March 4, 1849.

After attending the public schools he opened a store 40 years ago in East Cambridge, where he dealt in men's furnishings. Later he engaged in the same business in Somerville and still later opened a store in Harvard square. This establishment he owned at his death.

In addition to his retail stores Mr. Brine conducted a factory on Kingston street, Boston, where every variety of knitted articles known to athletes were manufactured.

Mr. Brine married Miss Louise Wetherbee of Salem. They have eight children, Miss Lillian L. Brine of Newtonville, Louis C., Herbert V., Joseph W., James F., Edward D., Arthur N. and Ernest F. Brine. The family came to Newton from Arlington four years ago.

A large gathering thronged the Church of Our Lady Wednesday morning when high mass of requiem was celebrated by the clergy of the church. Rev. Father Michael Dolan, Rev. Father James F. Kelley and Rev. Father A. S. Malone. Music was furnished by the church choir. The body was taken for burial to Harmony Grove Cemetery, Salem.

—Mr. F. S. Mansfield of Beacon street and Mr. E. H. Robinson of Windsor road returned last week from a public lecture at Newport, where the former referred the national tennis tournament. Mr. Mansfield went to day to Marion for the annual tournament of the Sippican Club.

—The annual championship tournament of the Waban Tennis Courts, the trophy presented in 1907 by the president, Mr. William M. Buffum, will be played on Saturday and Monday. A fair-sized entry list is anticipated but several of the leading players will not be home to participate this year.

—An amusing deal in horse flesh occurred here last Saturday, the principal actor in which shall be nameless. A caravan of gypsies sold a dying horse to the first actor for 50 cents and he received $5. It is said, from lack of charity to take him, as the condition of the animal was so bad, he sold him to a rick-poor. The first actor in town, sold him to another for $1 and after several days of strenuous doctoring by No. 2 the horse died. Number 1 considers himself a true financier.

POLICE NOTES.

The police of Newton and Montreal were called on this week to aid in locating Edmund C. Brickett, a son of Arthur E. Brickett, a former West Newton business man, but who now resides in Westboro.

The young man was 27 years old and formerly lived on a farm at Bennington, Vt., with his younger brother Norman. Last February Norman Brickett was accidentally shot while hunting, and the shock of his death greatly affected his brother. In June of this year he went abroad on a bicycle tour of Europe. While in England he was taken sick and returned to this country on a steamer which reached Montreal Aug. 12.

Dr. Beatrice H. Brickett of Floral street, Newton Highlands, an aunt of the young man, received a postal from him written on the 12th of the month and mailed on the 14th, saying that he was about to leave for New York on his travels, but since that time no word has been received from him, and his relatives had no idea of his whereabouts until Thursday, when Chief of Police Mitchell received a telegram from the Montreal police, saying that the young man had been located at the Bath Hotel in Montreal, and that he was in apparently good health. He ignored the efforts of his relatives to communicate with him by telephone, and today Dr. Brickett declared that she was not satisfied that the man seen by the Montreal police was her nephew, or that if he was the right party, he must be suffering with some disorder of the brain. She will make further inquiries.

This is a great campaign.

Wonderful! I can't understand how the politicians endure it.

And I am surprised to see the dictionary last so long in the strenuous life.

DO YOU OWN YOUR OWN HOME?

If not, why don't you begin today by calling on James McTigue, Ward 25, Real Estate Broker, who's motto is a "rental" to get a man who does not own his own home has not begun to succeed in the world. The opportunity for a law abiding, thrift, to own a first-class home is here. Invest in a first-class home. This investment that cannot be duplicated elsewhere in the United States. Allston and Brighton with its beautiful approach from the City Proper, ten minutes ride from the South Station, with 25 or more trains a day, the best street car service in the country, first-class schools, stores, library, postoffice, and best of all all neighbors. Property in Ward 25 is in great demand and there is absolutely no vacancies in tenement property. In case of sickness or recovery there is always a ready market by which you can get back your equity. Real Estate in Ward 25 will never be any cheaper than it is at present. Here we have everything that even cash cannot buy. Paying down anywhere from $100 to $2000 you can get what you want on reasonable terms and prices. Your own home is simply paying down four or five years' rent in advance and you eventually own it by mortgage. But a sitting hen never holds a plane or any other house hold effect that you could not pay down for one time owing to circumstances. By constantly watching and digging you have in a very few years built up an income for yourself without any work. It will keep you in your old age. Don't depend on your children as a rule the father can take care of six or more children. They cannot be depended upon to take care of their father. There are few reasons why you should not own a home. There are many good and sensible reasons. You should not take a reasonable chance. A rolling stone may gather no moss, but a sitting hen never gets fat. If success came easy we would all be a success. The above shows why you should own your own home. The following how it can be done.

By putting your rent away every month with that of your own money you would be able to meet the obligations of being your own boss and landlord. The above reasons give a slight idea why you should own home and the following how you can do it. Allston, new three-family house, 15 rooms, book and front piazzas, three separate steam heaters, rents $200 per year. Price $2500, payable as follows: $1500 cash, $1000 first mortgage remaining for three years. $1000 second mortgage payable $500 per year. Expenses as follows: Interest on first mortgage $225 per year. Interest on second $75. Water Rate $22.50. Fire Insurance $9. Taxes $114.30. Total $1463.00. Deduct expenses from income of $2500 leaves a profit of $1037.00 and $1500 invested.

TELEPHONE CHANGES

The new telephone rates do not seem to be well understood. This is especially true in this city where there are three distinct central offices. That the new rates may be more fully understood the following information has been received from an authentic source.

The Newton North district, within which an unlimited number of calls may be made without extra charge, comprises the following exchanges: Belmont, Brighton, Brookline, Cambridge, Newton North, Newton South, Newton West, Waltham, Watertown (included in Newton North), Weston (included in Waltham).

The Newton South district, within which an unlimited number of calls may be made without extra charge, comprises the following exchanges: Brighton, Brookline, Jamaica Plain, Needham, Newton North, Newton South, Newton West, Watertown (included in Newton North), and Wellesley.

The Newton West district, within which an unlimited number of calls may be made without extra charge, comprises the following exchanges: Newton North, Newton South, Newton West, Waltham, Watertown (included in Newton North), Wellesley, Weston (included in Waltham).

The unlimited rates for the Newton North district are: Business—Special line, unlimited, $69; two-party line, unlimited, $63. Residence—Special line, unlimited, $39; two-party line, unlimited, $30.

The unlimited rates for the Newton South district are: Business—Special line, unlimited, $69; two-party line, unlimited, $63. Residence—Special line, unlimited, $39; two-party line, unlimited, $30.

The unlimited rates for the Newton West district are: Business—Special line, unlimited, $69; two-party line, unlimited, $63. Residence—Special line, unlimited, $39; two-party line, unlimited, $30.

unlimited, $54. Residence—Special line, unlimited, $36; two-party line, unlimited, $27.

To exchanges outside the Newton North, Newton South and Newton West exchanges the toll rates will be 5 cents for each 8 miles or fraction thereof.

The toll rate to Boston from the Newton North (including Watertown) and the Newton South exchanges will be 5 cents, and from the Newton West exchange 10 cents.

The measured service rates applicable to Newton North follow: Business—Special line, 900 calls, $45; two-party line, 720 calls, $36; additional calls 3 cents each. Residence—Special line, 900 calls, $45; two-party line, 480 calls, $24; additional calls 3 cents each.

The measured service rates applicable to Newton South follow: Business—Special line, 900 calls, $45; two-party line, 720 calls, $36; additional calls 3 cents each. Residence—Special line, 900 calls, $45; two-party line, 480 calls, $24; additional calls 3 cents each.

The measured service rates applicable to Newton West follow: Business—Special line, 900 calls, $45; two-party line, 720 calls, $36; additional calls 3 cents each. Residence—Special line, 900 calls, $45; two-party line, 480 calls, $24; additional calls 3 cents each.

These rates are decidedly attractive to a subscriber who desires service over a broader area than the district, because the number he contracts for may be used to any other exchange within an eight-mile radius as well as within the Newton North, Newton South and Newton West exchanges.

To illustrate: A Newton North, Newton South, or Newton West subscriber elects to take a measured service contract of 480 calls for $24. These calls may be used not only within the districts but to any of the following exchanges within the eight-mile 5 cent radius:

Newton North radius—Arlington, Belmont, Brighton, Brookline, Cambridge, Charlestown, Dedham, Dorchester, East Boston, Everett, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain, Lexington (including Bedford), Lincoln, Malden, Medford, Needham, Newton North (including Watertown), Newton West, Newton South, Roxbury, Somerville, South Boston, Waltham (including Weston), Wellesley, and the Metropolitan Exchanges—Main, Fort Hill, Tremont, Oxford, Haymarket, Back Bay and Richmond.

Newton South radius—Arlington, Belmont, Brighton, Brookline, Cambridge, Charlestown, Dedham (including Westwood), Dorchester, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain, Medford, Milton, Newton North (including Watertown), Needham, Newton South, Newton West, Roxbury, Somerville, South Boston, Waltham (including Weston), Wellesley, and the Metropolitan Exchanges—Main, Fort Hill, Tremont, Oxford, Haymarket, Back Bay and Richmond.

Newton West radius—Arlington, Belmont, Brookline, Brighton, Cambridge, Dedham (including Westwood), Jamaica Plain, Lexington, Lincoln, Medford, Needham, Newton North (including Watertown), Newton South, Newton West, Roxbury, Somerville, Waltham (including Weston), Wellesley, and the Metropolitan Exchanges—Main, Fort Hill, Tremont, Oxford, Haymarket, Back Bay and Richmond.

After the 480 calls are used, additional calls within the Newton North, Newton South and Newton West districts drop to 3 cents each, while calls outside the districts are 5 cents for each 8 miles or fraction thereof.

This same privilege applies to the other measured service rates quoted.

The new rates for coin boxes: Business—Special line (guarantee to include Boston and Suburban tolls), $60 in each exchange; four-party line (guarantee to include Boston and Suburban tolls), $30 in each exchange. Residence—Four-party line (guarantee to include Boston and Suburban tolls), $21 in each exchange.

Under the new schedule there is not only a reduction in the rate, but several other advantages. Calls to any of the exchanges within the 8 mile radius are 5 cents, and not only these nickels, but also the receipts from all tolls within the present Boston and Suburban district are counted to make up the monthly guarantee of $5, $2.50, or $1.75, as the case may be.

GREAT MECHANICS' FAIR.

Famous United States Marine Band Engaged for the First Two Weeks.

All New England now quite generally knows that there is to be an "Old Time Mechanics' Fair" at the Mechanics' building on Huntington avenue, Boston, during the entire month of October, beginning Monday, Oct. 3, and ending Saturday night, Oct. 29, and continuing every day, except Sundays, from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. All of the attractions in this immense building will be free to all who pass the turnstiles and they will be of a really extraordinary character.

In the first place there will be more than 200 practical working exhibits of processes of manufacturing many kinds of useful and ornamental articles, shoes and other articles of wear, cut glass and other things for the household; appliances of utility for the home and business office and the closet of the student; great automobile exhibit with the first showing of 1911 models; and about everything of which one can conceive as appropriate to a genuine mechanics' fair, only more of them and of higher quality than ever before shown in Boston.

What may be called the purely entertaining features of the exposition will far surpass those offered at any previous fair in Boston. In cost, attractiveness and general public interest. At this time it is only necessary to call attention to one of them, the famous United States Marine Band of Washington, D. C. Negotiations pending for several months between President Taft and Secretary of the Navy George von L. Meyer and Messrs. C. H. Green and E. J. Rowe, the managing directors of the Mechanics' Fair, have at last been crowned with success and it can now be announced that this most celebrated organization of 67 trained solo instrumentalists under the baton of Lieutenant Santelmann will give the principal concerts every afternoon and evening in Grand Hall for the first two weeks of the fair. All seats for these concerts will be absolutely free. Every lover of music who can possibly get to the Mechanics' Exposition will want to hear the splendid concerts to be given by this band.

Because of the numerous engagements of this band during the fall and winter months at various official functions it is becoming very difficult to secure its services for concerts other than those strictly connected with the government, so it is probable that the coming engagement for two weeks at the Mechanics' Exposition will be the last for several years at least. That the seats for these concerts are to be offered without extra charge is certainly most generous treatment of the public by the management of the fair.

For the final two weeks the management will present the band of the 75th Regiment of Canada from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, an organization that holds about the same relative position in the provinces that the United States Marine Band holds in this country.

Every morning, afternoon and evening the Edna Francis Simmons Orchestra of young women will give concerts in Exhibition Hall. These bands and orchestra will only supply a part of the entertainment program of the great Mechanics' Exposition of 1910.

John, said the amazed father, how can you so far forget your name, your position, your opportunities!

What have I done, mon pere? Tush, I allude to what you have not done. Two years in college, an aristocratic name and a plethora of wealth and yet there have been no complaints of you from professors or police!

58TH YEAR OF THE NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

Within recent years exceptional strides have been made along the lines of musical education with the corresponding increase in institutions making a specialty of musical courses. The reputation of the New England Conservatory of Music is country wide and hundreds of its students have attained success in the musical field.

The Conservatory is now entering on its 58th year, and will open with a large increase in the number of students. In the student body is represented practically every state in the Union.

Its equipment is complete and as an instance in this respect may be mentioned that there are 14 pipe organs in use, including a fine concert organ in Jordan Hall. It is here that the public concerts are held in addition to those conducted by the faculty, the advanced students, and also the Conservatory Orchestra and chorus.

In a single term students are afforded an opportunity to acquire a knowledge that the past generation were obliged to spend years in attaining. The scope is large and this is most apparent in connection with ensemble work, for which there is an accompaniment of a full orchestra for singers, and also for pianist, violinist and concertos. It has every facility for giving the musical student, not only a technical but a thoroughly practical training.

The fall term begins Sept. 15. Offices are now open for registration.

"I'm pretty big for my size," said the porous plaster; "I cover a good many achers."

LABORERS STRIKE

Because their wages had been cut from $2 to $1.80 per day, 200 Italian laborers employed by one of the contracting firms that are laying the immense mains of the Metropolitan water system through Commonwealth avenue, Newton, struck Tuesday morning and because of their threatening attitude toward a few men who remained at work it was thought necessary to call on the police. Sergeant Thomas Clay and six officers remained on duty at the place throughout the morning and afternoon until the men were paid off.

The Italians were in the employ of Cavanaugh Brothers of Charlestown, who are constructing that portion of the water main near the junction of Commonwealth avenue and Walnut street, Newton Centre. It has been the custom to pay the laborers on Saturday for work done up to Friday night. The gang was paid as usual last week and then worked a full day Saturday, but when work was commenced Tuesday morning they were informed of the cut and at once struck. About 20 of their number worked Monday and the contention of the men is that they were not told on Saturday that their pay was to be reduced.

The contractors claim that on this particular piece of work they cannot afford to pay more than $1.80 a day and that this is the amount other laborers engaged in similar work are being paid. A few of the men remained at work and many of the others secured sticks and stones and threatened the ones who had refused to strike. It was then that the police were called on.

At 3 o'clock the men were paid for the work of Saturday and no further trouble was anticipated.

WHAT WORRIED HIM.

She—What's the matter with you tonight, Arthur? You seem to be in a state of unusual anxiety. Are you worrying because of the fear that pa is on the point of asking you your intentions?

He—No, Beatrice, dear. I am worried because of the doubtful nature of your father's intentions.

QUICK WORK ON WRECK

After 14 hours of the hardest kind of work the New York Central officials succeeded in clearing their tracks at Riverside and Saturday morning nearly every vestige of Friday's express wreck had been removed. To those who did not see the wreck and the condition of the tracks and roadbed the task will not appear so difficult, but the wrecking crews and repair gangs really accomplished wonders in such a short time.

Engine 3534, which was the second locomotive, was dragged from its place in the gravel bank at 4 Saturday morning, righted, placed on trucks and later sent to Springfield for repairs in tow of the wrecking train from that city, which left for home that morning. The pilot engine, 3501, had already been placed on a siding and was taken to the Allston shops shortly before noon.

Meanwhile the smoking car, which was the one that toppled over the bridge abutment and hung nicely balanced, over the river, had been pulled back and placed on trucks, after which it was removed. The United States mail car was not worth saving, and after its already small remnants had been reduced to fragments, and as much of the valuable metal fittings as could be salvaged had been removed, it was burned where it lay. Late Friday night about half a sack of scattered mail was recovered from the ruins of this car and the officials are satisfied that practically all the mail was recovered. In all, three sacks of loose mail was taken from the ruins of the car.

In order to effect repairs it was necessary to lay 510 feet of track 4, which had been torn up and demolished, as though by a dynamite explosion. This portion of the work was done under the supervision of Assistant Roadmaster Frank Hyde of Newton. As much of the dislodged gravel and ballast as was possible was replaced and then it was necessary to haul in three carloads of gravel to bring the roadbed up to grade.

New ties, rails and plates were ready at hand in the Riverside yards and a large force of trained men made things move along smoothly. On the bridge it was necessary to replace 55 ties that had been cut and splintered by the wheels of the derailed train. The foot-square guard rail of hard pine, which was acknowledged to be the only thing that kept the train out of the river, was also demolished and was replaced with a heavier strip.

A big crowd of sightseers was on hand Saturday morning and souvenir hunters were carrying away fragments of iron or wood from the wrecked cars. The surface of the Charles River was covered with floating splinters of pine and people in boats were busily gathering them for kindling.

Trainmaster John B. Hammill remained at the scene of the wreck throughout the night and directed the work of the men.

City Physician Fred M. Lowe of Newton, who was one of the first doctors to reach Riverside, is loud in his praise of Mall Clerk Michael J. Barry of East Boston.

Dr. Lowe said: "When I reached the scene of the wreck I climbed the steep gravel bank and was told by an officer that a man up there was badly cut and needed attention. I climbed further and came across Barry sitting on a pile of mail sacks, smoking a cigar. His face and hands were so plastered with blood and clinders that his features could not be discerned. He had several cuts across his nose and cheeks and one on his forehead. I asked him if he didn't want to get washed and have his cuts attended to but he said, 'No, as long as I can sit up I guess I'll look after this registered mail.' And he stayed there, too, until John Sheehan, a clerk in the West Newton postoffice, came along and at my suggestion relieved Barry. That man had nerve."

James Ryan, a travelling salesman of 363 Elliot street, Newton Upper Falls, was one of the passengers on the wrecked flyer. He was cut and bruised and went to his home.

conducted a garage on Beacon street, Newton Centre. A week ago Sunday the young man "knewed" a private car from the garage and made a rapid run to Woburn. There he met some convivial friends and they started the return trip under the influence of liquor. On entering Marlboro the overworked motor caught fire in some manner and the resulting damage to the car was considerable. The case was postponed until yesterday morning, when it was continued until Nov.
30, with the understanding that the young man is to make restitution.

A Defeated Conscience.

The secretary of the Kansas State Historical society tells a story about an early day Kansas justice of the peace who will be nameless here:

"This J. P.," said the secretary,
"would marry a couple one day as justice of the peace and divorce them
the next as notary public."

One time, as the story ran, a man surrendered himself to this J. P.

"An' plwnt's the matter?" asked the judge.

"I killed a man out here on the prairie in a fight," was the reply. "I want to give myself up."

"You did kill him, sor?" asked the J. P.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Who saw you?" asked the J. P.

"Nobody."

"An' nobody saw you kill 'im?"

"No, sir. Just we two were there."

"An' you're shure nobody saw you?"

reiterated the J. P.

"Of course I'm shure," was the reply.

"Thin you're discharged," said the J. P., bringing his fist down on the table. "You're discharged. You can't 'criminate yourself. Fifty dollars, please!"—Kansas City Journal.

Try This RICHMOND Suds-Maker Free

You simply turn the faucet and the RICHMOND Suds-Maker delivers thick, hot suds. It does not in any way interfere with the hot water faucet and can be easily attached to it. It gives you instead, two faucets—one for clean, hot water—the other for thick, hot suds.

Think of the dozens of ways this ingenious device will cut down the work in the kitchen! Learn what it means to save hundreds of suds every day—to always have thick, creamy soap suds on tap. The RICHMOND Suds-Maker gives you any quantity of soap and water thoroughly mixed in scientific proportion—it is always ready to meet your instant needs. It puts an end to the droghery of dish washing—simply place dishes, silver, glassware under its creamy suds for an instant, then just rinse and wipe. It puts an instant, automatic end to waste, to unsightly soap dishes, to the nuisance of using up the suds and ends of soap. Use any kind of soap.

Just call on the plumber whose name appears below and ask to see the RICHMOND Suds-Maker. He will let you take one home to try. Use it ten days—then if you think you can spare it, return it, for the trial places you under no obligation to buy. This is your chance to learn about the greatest convenience, money and time saver you can install in your kitchen. Call today.

POLICE NOTES.

John H. Fitzpatrick of Derby street, West Newton, was fined $10.00 by Judge Bacon this morning for refusing to help an officer in the performance of his duty. Patrolman David Neagle was the complainant. He told the court that on Tuesday evening he was attempting to arrest two men at once, and was having hard work to hang on to his prisoners. Fitzpatrick was standing nearby, and when Neagle repeatedly asked him for help, he walked off without answering. Fitzpatrick told the court that he did not hear the officer ask him for assistance. He said that his wife was very ill, and pleaded that sentence be as light as possible. After the fine was passed Judge Bacon granted him time in which to raise the money.

THEATRES

B. F. Keith's Theatre—One of the strongest bills announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre in a long time is that of next week. Among the big features will be Elsie Fay, the comic opera star; "The Models of the Jardin de Paris"; with Carl Henry, Lester Lonergan and Amy Ricard; Herzog's big troupe of trained horses, and many other features of equal importance. It is some time since Elsie Fay has been seen in Boston, and she now appears with an entirely new repertoire of songs, but there is no doubt no matter what she sings, she will be unable to get away without singing "The Belle of the Avenue A." "The Models of the Jardin de Paris" is one of the biggest musical comedy features in vaudeville and the comedy element is particularly strong. Carl Henry, the principal comedian, is one of the funniest men now on the stage, and his phrase, "Now I'll tell you," invariably "gets" every town in which he appears. Herzog's horses is one of the greatest troupes of circus animals that ever came to this country. There are no less than 12 beautiful horses performing on the stage at one time. Lester Lonergan and Amy Ricard, who have long been legitimate stars, have a splendid Irish comedy called "An Idyl of Erin," and others will be Billy Clark and the Farnum sisters; W. J. Coleman, the monologist, and the Chafino brothers.

Castle Square Theatre—A fine, old-fashioned melodrama will be given at the Castle Square. "Zira" is a modernized version of "The New Magdalen," which greatly pleased the playgoers of a generation ago, and in which Clara Morris won the greatest of her triumphs. In its new form Miss Margaret Anglin was recently successful, and the play then gained a reputation that will make it very welcome at the Castle Square. The incidents of "Zira" are such as to give the actress who takes the role of Hester Trent the best of opportunities for strong emotional acting, and that character will be in the capable hands of Miss Young during the coming week at the Castle Square. The varied scenes of the play demand the utmost skill in their interpretation and in them Miss Young will be seen at her best. Mr. Craig will appear as the hero, and in the other characters will appear the full roster of the John Craig Stock Company. There will be a handsome and effective series of stage settings for the four acts of the play.

Boston Grand Opera House—Of the notable offerings of the current season to which Manager Magee desires to call particular attention, first and foremost is the Wagenhals & Hemper Co.'s production of Eugene Walter's "Paid in Full," which is next week's attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House. Its success has been universal. Every eminent dramatic critic in the land pronounces it "the greatest American drama." The extraordinary quality of "Paid in Full" is shown by the impression it produces on all manner of persons. An entertainment in the truest sense, a story of abundant human interest, a play that stirs the emotions of all, "Paid in Full" has been made the theme of pulpits, discourses of essays by college professors the subject of editorials in influential newspapers and has been cited by jurists from the bench. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday Thursday and Saturday.

"THE ROUND UP" AT THE BOSTON

The theatrical annals of Boston do not record such a towering success as "The Round Up," Klaw & Erlanger's stupendous production of Edmund Day's famous drama, which broke all records for attendance last season. It returned for a limited engagement to the Boston Theatre beginning Labor Day matinee. This play with its heart interest and thrills and extraordinary sensationalism in the most realistic battle scene ever presented has a popular appeal that has resulted in an unbroken succession of crowded audiences wherever seen. The production is one of the largest that Klaw & Erlanger have ever made and they have omitted no detail in scenery or equipment that would contribute in any way to the completeness of this great atmospheric picture. The company is a large and very able one and in addition to the leading players there is an auxiliary interest in the form of genuine western cavalrymen, cowboys, Mexican vaqueros, Apache Indians and 26 cow ponies from Arizona cattle ranges. The story, although written about a western theme and strongly dramatic, is not of that "wild and woolly" character that one almost instinctively associates with the term "western play." The personalities of the story are, of course, the rough and homely types of the ranges, but the story is one of such supreme heart interest and so true to human nature generally that it perhaps could be translated to another locale and interpreted by different types of character, with fully as great effectiveness as in the setting in which it is now presented. The broad art of the scene painter and the marvels of stage craft have never produced such scenes as those represented in "The Round Up." The eye looks upon the great distance of arid desert and up the towering, gigantic canyons with wonderment that paint and brush, stage mechanism and light effects can have such magic use as to present such vividly real scenes. The magnitude of this production is such that it can only be played in a few cities and in only the largest theatres. So great is the demand for seats from those living at a distance from Boston that a special bureau has been established for the expeditious handling of mail orders, which when sent with cash or money order and accompanied by addressed, stamped envelope, receive immediate attention. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

MAY CHOP UP BILLBOARDS.

McKenney & Waterbury Co. Give Privilege to Anyone to Destroy Their Signs.

One Boston house, at least, is so thoroughly convinced of the inappropriateness of billboard advertising as well as of its injurious effects upon real estate values and its detriment to the landscape, that it has resolved to give up this method. W. A. McKenney of the lamp, gas fixture and electrolux house of McKenney & Waterbury Co. is thoroughly in earnest in this matter, so much so that he is going to destroy every billboard that his firm has, and he goes so far as to give anyone the privilege to tear down and carry away for kindling wood any McKenney & Waterbury Co. sign that may be found in the suburbs of Boston.

In an interview on the subject Mr. McKenney called attention to a magazine clipping wherein the experience was given of Upper Montclair, N. J., which entered upon a vigorous campaign against billboard advertising with the result that, through courteous appeal to advertisers, every such sign was taken down within five months. Today the landscape around the town is free from advertising devices.

Mr. McKenney does not deny that his house may have derived benefit in the past from billboard advertising, but he is convinced that the only way to advertise is in the newspapers and henceforth he will use that form of publicity only. Billboard advertising, he believes, is a great injustice to any community, and the suburbs of Boston are being so rapidly defaced that it is time to eliminate these disfigurements. Not long ago Mr. McKenney's firm erected a board in a vacant lot outside of Boston and soon after a physician remonstrated for the intrusion of the sign in his neighborhood. Thereupon, Mr. McKenney promptly removed it, and he is taking the same action with every one of the firm's billboards.

Mr. McKenney believes that the time has come for a more widespread protest against billboards, and that if the proper opposition was manifested by the public, merchants and other advertisers could be made to see the injustice of this form of publicity and it would not be long before the rural sections would be freed from objectionable signs. He further thinks that it is within the province of the Legislature to end this landscape disfigurement, and that, if some measure is properly framed, it would become law.—Boston Transcript.

POLICE NOTES.

Nettle Belcher, 21, of 12 Raymond place, West Newton, and Edward J. Chandler, 19, of 32 Besse place, Springfield, were arrested early Tuesday morning in Nonantum square for disorderly conduct. In court they pleaded not guilty and were fined $15 each. Both appealed and were held in bonds of $300 each.

Francis W. Sprague 2d, clerk of the police court, assumed his duties Tuesday morning after five weeks spent at Barnstable.

A detail of 18 members of the police department did service Saturday at the aviation field at Atlantic and throughout the ten days of the meet Newton officers will fill out the police complement there.

The Other Kind of Deer.
When Israel Lane returned from the wedding of David Fletcher, who is known in the Halmey creek country as a mighty hunter, he immediately sought the village store, where the bridegroom's cronies were gathered, waiting for news of the ceremony.
"Well," said one of the number, "how'd it go off?"
"Fret fair, thanks to me," replied Israel.
"What'd you do?" demanded another.

"I saved person considerable of a shock and Mame some blushes," said Israel, with calm satisfaction. "Just before they was ready to stand up in the parlor I says to Dave—I don't know what made me; guess it was meant to be—I says, 'Let's see your license.'"

"Well, Dave handed it over, and I discovered it was a hunting license. 'What's this?' I says, handing it back. 'You ain't got to hunt any longer; you've got her.'"
"It seems," concluded Israel, "that Dave just said he 'wanted a license,' and of course the clerk thought he wanted the usual kind."—Youth's Companion.

Old Time English Campaign Arts.

Purely from the picturesque point of view one may regret the bands and banners which used to help to enliven old time elections. Take the first contests of two great men. Disraeli, we read, approached Wycliffe in a four horse carriage and was met a mile outside the town by bands, banners and a crowd, with whom he made a triumphal entry. "The candidate kissed his hand or blew kisses to all the females who were at the windows."

And this is a description of Gladstone's first campaign at Newark by one who took part in it: "We started on the canvas at 8 in the morning and worked at it for about nine hours with a great crowd, band and flags and innumerable glasses of beer and wine all jumbled together; then a dinner of thirty or forty with speeches and songs until, say, 10 o'clock; then we always played a rubber of whist, and about 12 or 1 I got to bed and not to sleep."—London Times.

The Scorpion's Wonderful Ear.

I have studied the habits of the scorpion for many years and have often noticed how very sensitive scorpions are to the most delicate sound, musical or otherwise. Under the thorax the scorpion has two comblike appendages, which are the antennae (pectinates). It is pretty well settled by physiologists and entomologists that in insects the antennae represent the organs of hearing. These delicate structures are easily affected by the vibrations of sound, and there can be no doubt whatever that they are also affected by sounds quite inaudible to the human ear. The slightest vibration of the atmosphere from any cause whatever at once puts in motion the delicate structures which compose the antennae, to which organs insects owe the power of protecting themselves against danger as well as the means of recognizing the approach of one another.—London Spectator.

First Justice to Wear Gown.

"Few people, I venture to say, even in high official positions, know what Justice first wore the gown in the supreme court of the United States," said an authority on the subject recently. "When Justice John Jay took the office he thought the members of the supreme bench should wear gowns of some sort. Accordingly he appeared in his own academic gown, which he wore by virtue of having received a degree from the University of Dublin, or, as it was then known, Trinity college. It was a tricolored gown too. Such a garment would look peculiar now, since the black gown has been adopted."

Tilden's Dog.

At one of the early dog shows Samuel J. Tilden bought an immense Great Dane dog. "What's his name?" asked a visitor.
"Askim," said Mr. Tilden.
"What good would that do?"
"It's his name," was the reply.
So it was—Askim.
The dog knew a number of tricks, but would only perform when fed. "He'd make a good politician," said his owner as he gave him a bone.

Human Nature.

"Queer thing about men, isn't it?" remarked the thoughtful thinker.
"What's queer about 'em?" asked the innocent bystander.
"Why," rejoined the t. t., "a man will sit on a log half a day waiting for a fish to bite, but he won't wait three minutes for his wife to get ready for church."—Denver News.

How He Lost It.

"How did that man lose his supremacy at home?"
"His wife probably tried to phone him at the office one day and the office couldn't understand the name."—Buffalo Express.

The General Opinion.

Belle—How silly men act when they propose! Why, Jack acted like a perfect fool!
Neil—That's what everybody thought when your engagement was announced!

Modern Criticism.

"How do you like my portrait of her highness?"
"Fine! Nothing to criticize but a slight resemblance."—Elegante Blatter.

Buffum in 1907, and champion for the past two years, won his way into the finals by steady, consistent playing, and on Saturday will meet the winner of the Fisher-Nichols unfinished match. Should he win this year he will retain permanent possession of the trophy. In spite of the rather small entry list and absence of several of the top ranking players, the tournament has been a successful one and many of the matches close and well played, especially those between Turner and LeClear, Robinson and G. Williams and Fisher and Andrews, all of which went to three sets. F. Williams is in the finals of the consolation and will meet the winner of Rane vs. Willing.

THE SUMMARY.

First Round—A. W. Vose defeated W. M. Buffum, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

Second Round—C. A. Andrews defeated J. Willing, 6-1, 8-6, W. R. Fisher defeated J. C. Buffum, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

Third Round—F. W. Rane defeated W. H. Parker by default. G. LeClear defeated L. W. Arnold, 8-6, 6-1. E. H. Robinson defeated R. D. Kimball, 6-4, 6-1. A. C. Turner defeated F. Williams, 6-3, 6-3. G. Williams defeated W. Dow, 6-0, 6-1.

Fourth Round—Fisher defeated Andrews, 6-3, 6-7, 6-2. Nichols defeated Rane, 7-5, 6-3. Turner defeated LeClear, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6. Robinson defeated Williams, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Semi-finals—Robinson defeated Turner, 6-3, 6-3.

CITY HALL

The Registrars of Voters certified 110 names this week on a petition to have the direct nomination question placed on the ballot in this senatorial district. The names were obtained by a committee of the Democratic party.

Street Commissioner Charles W. Ross has been appointed by Governor Draper, a delegate to represent the state at the approaching convention at St. Louis on the subject of good roads.

Y. M. C. A.

After drilling to a depth of 400 feet without results it has been decided to abandon the artesian well that was being driven on the grounds of the new Y. M. C. A. The location, at the northern slope of Mt. Ida was thought to have been ideal for the purpose as there has always been evidence of plenty of water there and in addition another well driven but a few hundred yards away supplied abundant water at 215 feet. It is possible that another attempt may be made in a different part of the grounds. The well that was a failure was the hardest kind of drilling, much of the way being through pudding-stone.

PLAYGROUND NOTES.

On account of rain, the athletic meet which was to have been held on Labor Day was postponed until Saturday, Sept. 17, at 3 p. m. The feature of this meet will be competition in five events for seniors, for the all-round championship of Newton. The events will be 100-yard dash, 800-yard run, running high jump, 12-pound shotput, and running broad jump. Prizes will be given for the first three places in each event, while the three men scoring the greatest number of points in the five events will each receive a silver cup.

There will also be events for juniors, boys under 14 years of age, or 14 years of age, and under 95 pounds. These events will be 50-yard dash, 440-yard run, sack race and obstacle race. First, second and third in each event will receive prizes. Entries for the senior events close on Friday, Sept. 16, with F. D. Elchbauer, 63 Crescent avenue, Newton Centre.

On Aug. 31 the Newton Centre baseball team defeated West Newton 6 to 5 in a 10-inning game. This was the last game of the All-Newton League schedule, and gives the winners the championship. They finished with a clean record of four games won and none lost. The winning team was made up as follows: C. West; p. Lynn; 1b. Murphy; 2d. Whaley; s.s. Harris; 3b. Linnehan; i. f. Horgan; r. f. Howley, Doherty.

The championship tennis tournament for the Playground and Social Service League cup begins on Sept. 12. Any young man under 21 years of age, and a resident of Newton Centre, may compete.

At a later date play will start in the tournament for the Playground and Social Service League cup for women, residents of Newton Centre. Entry fee for the men's tournament will be 25 cents. Entries close on Sept. 10 with Frederick O. Eichbauer, 63 Crescent avenue, Newton Centre.

TEACHERS CHANGED
MR. KIRSCHNER TO LEAVE TECHNICAL HIGH

The public schools of Newton will open next Monday with a number of changes in the teaching force. The principal change is the resignation of Mr. Charles L. Kirschner, master of the Technical High School, who returns to the position he formerly occupied in New Haven. Mr. Kirschner came to Newton on a leave of absence, and as the authorities at New Haven insisted upon his return, he felt it was his duty to keep to his agreement with them. Mr. Kirschner has been identified with the Technical school movement from its inception, assisted in the preparation of the plans and in the supervision of the building and its equipment, and he leaves Newton with the sincere regret of the school committee and everyone interested in educational matters. His place will be taken by Mr. Irving O. Palmer, the present head of the science department in the Classical High School.

In the Classical High School Mr. Wallace E. Richmond, a graduate of Williams College, and who has been principal of the Great Barrington High School for the past six years, will take Mr. Palmer's place as head of the science department. Miss Mabel B. Coolidge, a graduate of Radcliffe, will be the assistant in the English department in the place of Miss Louise Hannon. Miss Rosamond Dean, also a graduate of Radcliffe, will be laboratory assistant. The resignations in this school include Miss Ethel Carl of the history department and Miss Blanche Daniels in chemistry.

In the Technical High School Miss Louise Wetherbee, head of the Greenfield High School, has been appointed to the English department. Mr. F. R. Brown, a graduate of the New Hampshire State College, and who has had practical experience in charge of the shop work at that college for the past five years, will be in charge of the forge room. Mr. John B. Hebbard, a graduate of Harvard, and Miss Mary Lasselle who has been transferred from the Mason School will be in the mathematics and English department. Mr. J. Wallace Fuller who has had many years' experience in mechanics and who comes from the Apprentices' School of General Electric Company in Lynn has been appointed to the mechanical drawing department. Miss Ada Broch has been transferred from the Classical High School to the modern language department. Other resignations besides Mr. Kirschner in this school are Miss Gladys C. Gilmore and Miss Grace Kellogg from the English department and Miss Faith E. Lyman from the history department.

Miss Clara Louise Rice has been appointed an assistant in the drawing department of the Technical High School and Miss Charlotte Schwarz of Pittsburg, Pa., will be the assistant in sewing.

In the Bigelow School Miss Florence J. Everett has resigned to accept a position in the Salem Normal School and Miss Anne H. Upton to accept a position in California. Miss Frances E. Webster will take the place of Miss Upton.

In the Horace Mann School Miss Grace Hill has been transferred from the Pelree School and Miss Mary A. Wellington has resigned.

In the Claffin School the appointments include Miss Gertrude T. Harris who was transferred from the Horace Mann School and Mrs. B. M. Johnson as substitute teacher. Miss Martha R. Doonan has been transferred to the Hamilton School and Miss Ethel Vogler has resigned.

Miss Ruth T. Walton has resigned from the Stearns School and Miss Mary L. Chapin, the kindergarten, has resigned from the Elliot School. Miss Edith Ratsey takes Miss Chapin's place.

At the Pelree School the new teachers are Miss Constance Dyer of Chicopee, Mass., and Miss Bessie C. Baker, who was a special assistant last year. Miss Carrie M. Ring and Miss Emily F. Wheeler, who were absent last year on leave, return to their duties again. Miss Ina M. Harden and Miss Linna M. Ferrer have resigned. Miss Grace Hill has been transferred to the Horace Mann School, Miss Mary J. Means to the Williams and Mary H. Lohrop to the Bowen.

At the Davis School Miss Mabel F. Warren has resigned, and at the Franklin School Miss Helen S. Stevens, transferred from the Barnard, takes the position from which Miss Myrtle T. Parker has resigned. At the Barnard School Miss Edna L. Battles, transferred from the Hamilton, takes the place of Miss Mary A. Thomas, who has resigned. At the Williams School Miss Marion E. Lane has resigned to go to the Fitchburg Normal School, and Miss Amy H. Bateman has been transferred to the Mason School.

The Hamilton School will have a new principal in Mr. C. W. Waldron, a graduate of Harvard and of the Bridgewater Normal School. He takes in place of Miss Edythe B. Schuyler, who goes to a private school in Pennsylvania. In the Emerson School Miss Frances E. White, a graduate of Radcliffe has been appointed and Miss Alice E. Jovee has taken a position in the Framingham Normal School. In the Hyde School Miss Ida E. Towne of Arlington fills a position taken by a substitute last year. At the Mason School Miss Grace I. Combs, who has gone to California, and Miss Florence Collins have resigned. In the Bowen School Miss Ethel H. Hulise has resigned to take a position in Montclair, N. J.

GEORGE W. CHADWICK, Director

No school in this country can contribute as much toward a musical education as the New England Conservatory of Music. A steady growth of over fifty years has made it rich in experience, and it is everywhere recognized as the largest and best equipped school in America. Its complete organization, its imposing Conservatory building, and splendid equipment, and the new Residence building offer exceptional facilities for students. Situated in Boston, the acknowledged music centre of America, it affords pupils the environment and atmosphere so necessary to a musical education.

Every department under special masters. The student's capacity sets the only limitation to his progress. The reciprocal relations established with Harvard University affords pupils special advantages for literary study.

Owing to the practical training of students in our Normal Department, graduates are much in demand as teachers and musicians.

The privileges of lectures, concerts and recitals, the opportunities of ensemble practice and appearing before audiences, and the daily associations are invaluable advantages to the music student. A number of free violin scholarships available for 1910.

An Artist's Criticism.

Falgout, the sculptor, tells a capital story of Hennen, the great artist, who, although he lived in Paris all his life, never lost his Alsatian peasant accent or his country manners. But Hennen was a very keen critic and had a clever way of showing his dislike of wordy enthusiasm. Falgout, whose talent as a sculptor is known all the world over, was very fond of painting, but he did not paint particularly well. One day Hennen was in his studio, and Falgout showed him some of his pictures.

"What do you think of this one?" asked Falgout.

"Superb!" said Hennen, with his Alsatian accent. "Marvellous!"

"And this one?"

"Brodigious!"

"And this one?"

"Suplime!"

Then the old man picked up a little bust which his friend had just finished.

"Ah!" he said. "Now, dat's good!"

"I never painted after that," said Falgout. —New York Mail.

Have You Diplopia?

Diplopia, as its name signifies, is the defect which causes the eye to see two images of the same object. Of course the drunkard's temporary diplopia is well known, but it is possible for a quite sober person to perceive two key-holes instead of one, as the comic journals have it, and yet be a total abstainer. Diplopia is usually the result of squint or general eye weakness, and is necessarily a distressing malady. As a rule, the defect manifests itself in regard to small objects at some distance—eight feet or so. For instance, one lamp will be seen slightly above another or to right or left. As a rule, the false image is fainter than the genuine one, but when I looked through the prism, which made me for the time being diplopic, I saw the second image quite as clearly as the first, but with a tendency to wander. The farther away the false image appears from the true the less distinct is its outline. —Strand Magazine.

Why Cuvier Wore a Beard.

"To save time is to lengthen life" is a proverb found in one form or another in almost every language, and Cuvier, the great naturalist, found life all too short to accomplish all he wished to do, though most economical of the hours.

"I found," he said, "that my shaving took me a quarter of an hour a day. This makes seven and a half hours in a month and ninety hours, or three days and eighteen hours, very nearly four days a year. This discovery staggered me. Here was I complaining that time was too short, that the years flew by too swiftly, that I had not hours enough for work, and in the midst of my complaining I was wasting nearly four days a year in lathering my face with a shaving brush, and I resolved thereupon to let my beard grow." —Omaha World-Herald.

A Story of Mark Twain.

When Mark Twain was beginning his career as a humorous lecturer he one day arranged with a woman acquaintance that she should sit in a box and start the applause when he should smoke his mustache. The lecturer started off so well that he did not need any such help, however, for he caught the audience from the first. By and by, when not saying anything worthy of particular notice, he happened to pull his mustache, and his anxious ally in the box at once broke into furious applause. Mark was all but broken up by the misadventure and ever afterward carefully avoided employing such help to success.

Unique Tablecloth.

When a southeast wind is blowing the visitor to Cape Town is treated to a peculiar and interesting natural phenomenon, for under such conditions Table mountain, in the language of the natives, "puts on a tablecloth." In other words, the thin line of fleecy cloud forming above it descends until it rests flat upon the mountain top, with its edges drooping gracefully over its sides. It is really not unlike the article of household use which gives it its name.

Echoes of the Past.

Mark Antony had asked his countrymen to lend him their ears. "I want them for a loan exposition," he explained. "I have already a splendid collection of Roman noses." Having gained their attention by this little flight of fancy, he proceeded to fling a few choice bouquets at the late J. Caesar. —Chicago Tribune.

Valuable Advice.

Young Lady—A friend of mine is engaged to a man, and now he refuses to marry her. What would you advise her to do? Old Lawyer—Is the man wealthy? Young Lady—No. He hasn't a shilling. Old Lawyer—Then I'd advise her to write him a letter telling of thanks. —London Telegraph.

A Crazy Spell.

The opera was "Trovatore." "Though I no more may hold thee, Yet is thy name a spell." Singing the basso to the prima donna. And it was. Her name was Sophrinia Czechinskiewicz. —Judge.

A Modern Quarrel.

Him—I might have married a dozen better women than you. Her—I might have married a dozen better men than you, and, what's more, I intend to. —Cleveland Leader.

MAIL CLERKS AT WRECK.

Last Friday, when the New York express was wrecked at Riverside, three of the local mail clerks voluntarily performed duty under trying circumstances. George W. Keating of the Newton office and John Sheehan and Robert Wilkins of the West Newton office were among the first spectators to reach the scene of the wreck.

When they arrived the mail clerks who had been tossed about in the mail car, which was the car that was telegraphed by the cab of the second engine, were trying, as well as they could in their dazed and battered condition, to care for the scattered sacks of mail and particularly the registered matter.

On learning that the three young men were postal clerks the wreck victims readily relinquished their charge and Messrs. Keating, Sheehan and Wilkins cared for the mail until postal authorities reached the place and ordered its transfer. James J. Ferriek of the Auburndale office was detailed to accompany some of the mail pouches to Boston.

RICHARD J. MORRISSEY DEAD.

Richard J. Morrissey, an old and respected resident, died on Sunday, after a brief illness, at his home at 81 Boyd street. He was 63 years old. Death was due to erysipelas.

The deceased was a native of Newfoundland but came to Newton many years ago. He was at one time a sea captain but after establishing a residence here he was a carpenter and builder for many years. Recently he had been engaged in the real estate business with offices in Boston.

His wife was Miss Bridget Burns of South Boston. She survives him, together with five daughters and five sons. Mr. Morrissey also leaves four brothers and a sister.

Funeral services were held Wednesday.

C. E. CONVENTION

The 21st convention of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Union is to be held in Springfield, Sept. 27, 28, 29 and 30. This will be the third time that Springfield has entertained the Christian Endeavorers of Massachusetts since the State Union was organized.

The state executive committee and the Springfield committee are both hard at work in an endeavor to secure the attendance of at least 3000 delegates.

The meeting places in Springfield will be the First Congregational, Highland Baptist and Memorial Churches.

The provisional program announcement was sent out last Saturday to all the societies of the state and includes some of the strongest speakers ever secured for a state convention.

The first meeting is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon Sept. 27 when all the state district and local union officers are invited to a conference on union work to be conducted by Mr. Walter D. Howell a former field secretary of the Minnesota Union.

The first public session follows, with welcoming addresses by Mayor E. H. Lathrop and Rev. W. W. Weeks. The response for the delegates will be made by Rev. H. A. Manchester of Boston, vice-president of the State Union.

Tuesday evening there will be simultaneous sessions, a junior rally at Memorial Church conducted by Mrs. Carrie W. Kincaid of Worcester, and at the First Congregational Church the address will be by Rev. Albert P. Fitch of Cambridge, president of Andover Seminary.

On both Wednesday and Thursday mornings, from 9 to 10 a. m., Rev.

James A. Francis, D. D., pastor of Clarendon Street Baptist Church, Boston, will conduct the Quiet Hour and Bible Study. His topics are, "The Master in the Hour of Failure" and "The Master and All Kinds of People."

The balance of the morning sessions are to be devoted to conferences or classes on methods of work, in charge of Mr. William Shaw, general secretary of the United Society, and the various state officers.

The annual business meeting, with reports and election of officers, will occupy Wednesday afternoon. A feature of this session will be an address by Rev. Francis E. Clark president of the United Society whose subject is "Massachusetts Her Place and Responsibility in Christian Endeavor."

The Wednesday evening session will be addressed by Rev. Thomas C. Hall of New York city. His topic is "The Gospel a Social Force."

The topic for the Thursday afternoon session is "Education and Evangelism" and the speakers expected are President Mary E. Woolley of Mt. Holyoke College, Prof. Irving F. Wood of Smith College and Rev. Robert A. Hume of India.

The closing session on Thursday evening will be addressed by Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick of Montclair, N. J. "Christ's Mastery of the Mind" will be his subject.

Among other special features of the convention will be a banquet of all state, district and local union officers, with appropriate after-dinner speeches, and the officers will also tender a luncheon at Court Square Hotel to all pastors who are in attendance.

Friday, Sept. 30, is to be known as Springfield Day and the local committee are planning many outings, excursions, etc., for the delegates.

The New England Passenger Association has granted a special reduced rate of a fare and three-fifths for the round trip from all Massachusetts points.

MAKING OF A NEWSPAPER.

The average reader of the daily newspaper it is safe to assert knows very little of the processes by which this wonderful production of the present century is made ready for the eyes of the public day after day and many times daily. The various steps toward the consummation should be generally known. Such a knowledge, indeed, is quite a liberal education in itself and indirectly exerts a powerful influence for good not only upon the favorite journal but upon society as well. Possessed of this information the reader knows of the trials, the tribulations, the anxieties, the expense, the enterprise, the celerity, the fascinations of the work and it certainly will act unconsciously in the formation of opinions and in the setting of values on news and editorial decisions. All this will be clearly demonstrated at the great Mechanics' Exposition to be held the entire month of October in the Mechanics' Building on Huntington avenue, Boston. The exposition will be open every day excepting Sundays, from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night, and during these hours a little daily newspaper will be published under the editorial control of the Christian Science Monitor. The mechanical part of the outfit will be supplied by the American Type Founders Company, Whitlock Printing Press Company and the Mergenthaler Linotype Company, and every detail from the supplying of "copy" of the news and gossip of the big fair, the setting of the type, the assembly, the make-up of the forms, the printing and the folding will be in full sight of patrons. The paper is promised to be a very creditable and most interesting sheet. It will contain among other things a complete list of the exhibitors, the programs of the concerts and other entertainments and all sorts of news and chat about the people connected with the exposition. It will be distributed free "hot from the press" to all comers.

CITY HALL.

BRICKETT LOCATED.

Word has been received here that Edward C. Brickett, the young man who has been missing since he landed from a steamer in Montreal Aug. 12 from Europe, has been located. His father, A. E. Brickett of Westboro, has found him in a hotel at Montreal. He has been seriously ill, according to his relatives, since landing from the steamer.

This report does not coincide with the despatches sent out by the Montreal authorities when requested to hunt for the missing man by the Newton police, who acted when Brickett's relatives appealed for help. A telegram received by Chief Mitchell from Chief Carpenter of the Montreal detective force gave the information that the young man was a guest at a hotel and was apparently in good health. He failed to reply to letters and other messages sent him.

Brickett went abroad in June to make a bicycle tour of Europe, but his health failed and he returned by way of Montreal, sending word from that city that he would come to Newton on his bicycle.

MILK INSPECTION.

The first of a series of public hearings will be held before the special committee on milk inspection in room 240 of the State House at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, Sept. 22.

The committee consists of Charles M. Gardner of Westfield, Howard A. Parsons of North Amherst and George W. Trull of Tewksbury, members of the dairy bureau, and George H. Ellis of Newton and Dr. Milton J. Rosenau of Brookline, appointed by the Governor. Mr. Gardner is acting as chairman and Dr. Rosenau as secretary.

The committee has established its headquarters in room 453 at the State House. Several meetings have been held, much information secured regarding milk inspection in other states and cities and visits made to New York, Chicago, Albany and other points to study methods there in force.

In accordance with the specifications of the legislative act creating the committee, the members plan to study the problem thoroughly and to present to the next legislature a system of milk inspection.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATES

The Republicans of Newton filed nominations for the state primary for representatives and a list of delegates to the various Republican conventions with the Republican city committee in the Masonic building, Newtonville, on Wednesday afternoon. Chairman Alfred P. Carter and Secretary Arthur G. Hosmer represented the committee at the meeting.

Representatives: George H. Ellis, Thomas W. White and Henry E. Bothfeld are unopposed for reelection. There were no contests for the various delegates and but one list of names was filed in each ward. In five wards the delegates to the county and district attorney conventions are the same. Wards 6 and 7 filed separate lists for each convention, a proceeding which would greatly complicate matters if there was a contest in each convention. The delegates nominated are as follows:

State.

Ward 1—Stephen W. Holmes, Chas. Whittemore.

Ward 2—Chas. F. Avery, Henry H. Carter, W. S. Slocum, C. W. Leonard.

CAUSE OF INJURY.

During the past two weeks the state forester, F. W. Rane, has received scores of letters from different parts of the state inquiring into the cause of the damage to the birch trees, the leaves of which everywhere have become yellow or brown and are dropping off. So general is the desire for information that the state forester, through the medium of the press, desires to give to the public the following facts:

The insect causing the damage is known as the birch leaf skeletonizer (Baculatrix canadensis), one of the Tined moths. The outbreak of the insect is by no means unprecedented as a similar condition obtained over a considerable portion of Massachusetts in 1901, also in the eastern portion of New York state. Little is known concerning the life history and habits of the insect. The moth is small, wings expanding about 3-5 of an inch. The larvae or caterpillars measure less than 1-4 inch long and occur the latter part of August or in early September, feeding on the soft parenchyma of the leaf and skeletonizing it thoroughly. At this time small oval cocoons may be observed here and there on the leaves. These are spun by the caterpillar during a molt. The true cocoons are brownish yellow ribbed structures about 1-5 inch in length.

These may be so abundant as to give color to portions of infested leaves. They are spun during the latter part of September and the insect passes the winter within. No permanent injury to the trees is likely to follow the attack of this insect as the past has shown that its outbreaks have been quickly suppressed by natural enemies.

POLITICAL NOTES.

and reprimanding Boston politicians for attempting to disrupt the Democratic party. The committee members are to ask for a change in the location of the voting booth in Precinct 1, Ward 2. At present it is located on Washington street, Newtonville, and they will request that it be removed to the old Adams School at the junction of Watertown and Crafts streets, as being the geographical centre of the district.

LOWE-JOHNSON.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized on Saturday, Sept. 10, at high noon, at the residence of Mr. George H. Lowe, Centre street, Newton Highlands, when the daughter of the house, Miss Elizabeth, was married to Mr. Seward Glover Johnson, also of Newton Highlands. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Albert H. Slayton of St. Paul's Church, assisted by the Rev. James Clement Sharp of Waban. After a wedding breakfast the young couple left for a short trip. They will be at home after Nov. 1 at 1489 Centre street, Newton Highlands.

PICTURE SAVES FATHER

A dramatic and effective plea for clemency was made in the police court Monday morning when Joseph W. Hotin of 7 Faxon street, Nonantum, was tried on a charge of larceny, which encompassed the forging of a check. Edwin O. Childs, Jr., of Newton, who is the head of the Nonantum Boys' Club, spoke in behalf of the defendant's wife and two sons, the boys being members of the club and favorites of Mr. Childs. After an eloquent plea he produced a small kodak print of the boys and showed it to Judge Kennedy. The latter placed Hotin on probation.

The defendant, who is 30 years old, pleaded guilty to the charge thru his attorney. Testimony showed that several days ago, when pressed for rent by Mrs. Henrietta Maurice, the owner of the apartment he occupies, Hotin made out a check for $21.50 on a blank check issued by the National Bank of the Redemption, which was merged with another financial institution several years ago. The check was made payable to Hotin and was signed by "A. B. Rolling." Mrs. Maurice accepted it and gave Hotin $13.50 in change. When she found that the check was worthless she complained to the police and in their investigation they found that he had issued several other worthless checks.

According to his attorney Hotin secured the check book seven years ago when a fire burned out his place of employment in Boston. He brought it home to his children to use as a scrap book and it was put to this use until nearly all the pages had been covered with clippings and pictures dear to childish hearts.

Of late Hotin had been gambling and drinking heavily and on the day the bad check was uttered he had spent his week's wages in carousing. The attorney declared that the check was made out while the man was under the influence of liquor, in the midst of a prolonged spree. Judge Kennedy declared that the name "A. B. Rolling" was written in what appeared to be a different hand from the body of the check and ordered Hotin to write out the name for him as proof.

Mr. Childs then addressed the court and said that up to a year ago Hotin had been a good citizen and a hard working, faithful father. He told of the bad associations that had dragged the man down. "He is only on a side track, your honor," he said, "and I am confident that if we put him back on the main line he will make good. I will be personally responsible for his reimbursing Mrs. Maurice and I hope for the sake of his wife and sons that you will extend clemency." The case was continued until Dec. 31. Hotin's employer was in the courtroom ready to furnish him employment at good wages.

POLICE NOTES.

John W. McKay of Newton was held for the grand jury last Friday morning under bonds of $2000 on one charge and $300 on another. The case was prosecuted by the S. P. C. and Associate Judge Bacon heard the case in private.

Dominico Fuginiti of 65 Charter street, Boston, and Gregorio Platt of 318 North street, Boston, were arrested in Nonantum Sunday evening by Patrolmen Goode and Cronin of the liquor squad, who charged the couple with soliciting orders for liquor and with illegal sales. In court Monday morning the men asked for a continuance and Sept. 17 was set as the date for the hearing. According to the police the two men went through the Italian quarter at Nonantum taking orders for liquor and accepting the money. Later the stuff would be shipped to Newton by some licensed expressman.

NEW CITY AUDITOR

Mr. Cheney L. Hatch, who was unanimously elected city auditor last Monday, was born in 1888 in Leicester, receiving his education in the public schools, the Leicester Academy and Eastman College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He came to Boston when a young man and was for several years in the employ of L. P. Hollander & Co. In 1898 Mayor Henry E. Cobb called him to Newton to enter the employ of the city as assistant to City Auditor Otis. He was appointed temporary auditor by Mayor Hatfield during Mr. Otis' illness.

Mr. Hatch is married and resides on Cabot street, Newtonville. He attends St. John's Episcopal Church at Newtonville and is deeply interested in music, having been secretary of the former Newton Choral Club.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The electrical class which is being promoted by the Y. M. C. A. is attracting a great deal of attention. The teachers are Messrs. Clayton and Craig of Boston and their display auto attracted a good deal of attention in the square Monday evening. Mr. Walter Mars of the corner drug store very kindly gave the use of his window for display, and the different pieces of electrical apparatus were shown there. One of the most interesting was a wireless system in operation and the X-Ray. Seventeen were enrolled for classes. The opening night comes on Oct. 10, and at that time any man is invited to attend and see the electrical display which will be given at that time in the association rooms.

A very interesting board meeting was held on Monday evening, at which 14 of the directors were present. Messrs. Ganse, Ellison, Emery and Bascom gave interesting reports about the laymen's conference at Silver Bay. Plans for the year's work were outlined and approved.

A circular containing some facts regarding the work of the association for this season has been issued and the same will be sent upon request to any young man wishing information concerning gymnasium classes, electrical classes or Bible classes. The games in the boys' room have been overhauled and repaired, and the games are now in constant demand at this early part of the season.

The boys' classes in the gymnasium begin Sept. 27. All applications now received will be dated Oct. 1. Any one intending to join will please come in now so as to get your physical examination before the class begins.

The unwise do otherwise.
It pays to publicize.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Newton Hospital Corporation will be held at the Nurses' Home on the hospital grounds at Newton Lower Falls on Monday, the 26th inst., at 4:10 p. m., for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and of transacting such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

ALONZO R. WEED, Clerk

THE NEW MILLINERY.

Miss Caroline, who has just returned from Paris, writes: "The small hats are smaller and smarter, while the 'grand style' grows greater and greater. Black and white, so much in vogue at present, is to be superseded by contrasts less marked; purples and grays with the extreme—black—form the combinations worn by the ultra-fashionable who are dressing in second mourning. Persian coloring, French blue and old gold comprise the schemes of many of the latest models. As the crowning excellence of fine millinery is its lightness in weight, satins and silks, in the new shades, form the foundations, accented with velvet, furs, softness-becomingness. Tapestry comes, large, subtle wings, lace and shaded plumes, in quite new effects attract the attention. Miss Caroline is to display all that is new the last of this month at her shop, 486 Boylston street, Boston, in the block of the Brunswick Hotel.

NEWTON CENTRE PLAYGROUND NOTES.

Football practice at Newton Centre Playground will begin on Thursday, Sept. 15. Until further notice Tuesday and Friday will be given over entirely to soccer, and the other days to rugby football.

On Oct. 3 a tournament will start for Newton Centre teams under 95 pounds, and also one for any teams in Newton under 130 pounds.

A soccer tournament for Newton Centre boys under 13 years of age and one for boys 13 years is now being played. In the first round two matches have been decided. D. Horgan defeated G. B. Ewing 7-6, 6-4, 6-3; and H. F. Barrows won from H. Richardson 6-3, 6-2.

The championship tournament for women will begin about the first of October.

1911 CALENDAR.

H. M. Caldwell Co. of Boston have issued an artistic calendar for 1911 called "Friendship Days." It is printed on heavy wedding stock in four to six colors and gold from original designs, which include appropriate and carefully selected sentiments for each month.

PARISH REUNION

Rev. Father P. H. Callanan's annual field day and parish reunion, which was marred by the rain on Labor Day, was repeated last Saturday and the large attendance showed the appreciation of those who are interested in this event, a pioneer among its kind. For 20 years the members of St. John's parish have taken part in these carnivals and the interest remains unabated.

The program of sports was given up, after the holiday proved so disastrous, but all the other attractions were liberally patronized. Efficient committees had attended to the slightest detail and the booths and shows reported large returns from the big throng of pleasure seekers. Dancing and music entertained the people during the evening.

ATHLETIC EVENTS AT BROCKTON FAIR.

The third annual Marathon held in connection with the Brockton Fair will take place Friday, Oct. 7. The start will be made in front of the Boston Athletic Association on Exeter street and the finish will be in the fair grounds. The route will be the same as that of previous years and only two laps will be run on the Brockton Fair track.

The eighth annual amateur athletic meet will be held on the grounds Thursday, Oct. 6. The list of events includes: 440-yard novice scratch; 100 and 880-yard dash and run, open only to residents of Plymouth county; one-mile relay, open to all colleges, Y. M. C. A. teams and recognized athletic organizations.

The handicap events will consist of 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 120-yard high hurdles, putting 16-pound shot, pole vault, 880-yard run, one-mile run, three-mile run, 220-yard low hurdles, running high jump, running broad jump. Entries close Sept. 28 with Horace A. Keith, 26 Pinkham street, Brockton.

A Bill Nye Story.

According to the bookman, Bill Nye once made a short speech at an authors' dinner in London that was much relished by the bookmen present, including the publishers, at whom it was indirectly aimed.

"Just a year ago," said Nye, "I was walking on the principal street of Indianapolis when I met a man whose appearance showed that he was reduced to the very depths of poverty. His clothes were ragged, his face unshaven, his hair long and matted and his feet unshod. As I passed him a look of recognition came into his eye."

"Nye, old fellow, don't you know me? Don't you know Abel P. Jones, who was your classmate at college?"

"What, Jones? Is it really you? Well, well! What can I do for you?"

"For heaven's sake, help me. I am starving. Lend me half a dollar."

"I felt in my pockets. They were empty. I had no money myself. But a bright thought flashed through my mind."

"Abel, I can't lend you the half dollar. I haven't got it. But, look here, I'll tell you what I will do—I'll let you publish my next book."

"Gentlemen, that was just a year ago, and this month Abel P. Jones sent me an invitation to go to Europe with him in his steam yacht."

Needed an Explanation.
A little boy was often whipped by his father for lying. He usually took it as a matter of course, but on one occasion it seemed to excite him to reflection. After it was all over he stood before his father in a thoughtful way, which attracted that worthy's attention.

"My son," said the father, "what are you thinking about?"

"Father," said the son, "when you was a little boy, did you use to tell lies?"

"No, my son. When I was a little boy I did not tell lies."

"Father," returned the son, "when mother was a little girl, did she use to tell lies?"

"No, my son," replied the father. "When your mother was a little girl she did not tell lies. But why do you ask me these questions?"

"Well," said the little fellow, drawing a long sigh, "it is the most mysterious thing in the world to me that a father who never told lies when he was a little boy and a mother who never told lies when she was a little girl could have a boy that tells as many as I do."

Plaid and Tartan.
Will the southern ever learn that "plaid" is not a synonym for "tartan"? Not long ago an Englishman came into a Boston establishment in Glasgow and asked a man behind the counter to show him some "plaid ties."

The attendant, perhaps wondering what this new and weird article of wearing apparel could be, was completely baffled until explanation elicited the fact that a necktie with a tartan design was required. Dickens, too, is a shiner in this respect, for he makes Bob Sawyer say, with regard to whether his political proclivities are "buff" or "blue": "I'm a kind of plaid at present, a compound of all sorts of colors."

Moreover, an English dictionary, gives an adjectival meaning of "plaid" as "colored in squares." I've never heard such use in Scotland. Has any one else?—Scottish Field.

Hall Caine's Moonshine.
Authors and artists who have become well known by means of making the moon dance in the wrong houses of heaven are numerous, but we never expected Hall Caine to join the group. Yet in "The Scapgoat," chapter 23, on Israel's return from prison after evenfall, we find that "with a wave of his hand he was gone into the darkness. It was a wonderful night. The moon, which was in its first quarter, was still low in the east."

It was indeed a wonderful night. On no other night since the creation has the moon in its first quarter ever been seen low in the east.—London Star.

Won't Stay Retained.
This notice appears on a Flushing steambath: "Passengers should obtain a receipt for all provisions taken on board this boat and are requested to retain the same."

Easier said than done. It reminds me of the old proverb:

"There was a young man of Ostend Who said he'd hold out till the end, But when halfway over From Ostend to Dover He did what he didn't intend."

—London Globe.

His Definition.
At a London board school the teacher had explained to the children the meaning of the word "ability." "Now, children," she went on, "what word would express the opposite to ability?"

A sharp faced little boy at the end of the end form bobbed up his head and exclaimed, "Please, teacher, nobility!"—Work and Play.

Jack Knew.
On coming home from the office the father met Jack and Dick.

"What have you been doing today, boys?" he questioned.

"Fighting," replied Dick.

"Fighting, eh? Who licked?"

"Mamma did," answered Jack.—Exchange.

In Keeping.
Medium—The spirits won't rap unless you write out your request on paper. Patron—Any special kind of paper? Medium—Certainly—wrapping paper.—St. Louis Star.

MR. ALDEN DEAD.

Mr. John E. Alden, a direct descendant of the original John Alden of Plymouth, died last night at his home 547 Centre street, Newton, at the age of 75 years. Mr. Alden had been in failing health all summer, and the cause of his death was arterio-sclerosis.

Mr. Alden was born and educated in Dedham, Mass. On his marriage he moved to South Boston, and came to Newton in 1882. He was engaged in the banking business from 1853-1869 and was with the Glendon Iron Co. until 1898. Since that time he has been the president or the South Boston Savings Bank, of which he had been a trustee and vice-president for some years. In 1864 he served as second lieutenant in the Lincoln Guards, the first unattached company organized in the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia. Both in South Boston and in Newton he was active in the affairs of the Unitarian Church. He was a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the New England Historical and Genealogical Society, the Newton Unitarian Club, the Hunnewell Club and for a number of years was treasurer of the Appalachian Club.

He is survived by a widow, who was Miss Eleanor C. Trott of Lowell, one son, Mr. John T. Alden of Summit, N. J., and three daughters, Mrs. Samuel S. Crocker of Newton, Mrs. Alpheus S. Baker of Brookline and Mrs. Arthur W. Blakenore of Newton.

Funeral services will be held at the house on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

FRUIT THEIR FINED.

Pasquale Patuto, who lives at 80 Adams street, Nonantum, was fined $10 yesterday morning for stealing fruit from an estate on Olds street, Newtonville. The owner of the place has been bothered for many days by fruit thieves and it was learned that Italians on their way to work on the Metropolitan water system were the offenders. Last night an officer was stationed in the orchard and shortly after 6 o'clock he caught Patuto with a few small pears in his possession.

GARAGE HAS NEW HEAD.

Mr. Fred T. Wiley of Boston and Mr. Chas. J. Lyons of Roxbury have acquired the management of the Newton Centre Garage, 792 Beacon street. Both gentlemen have had large experience in the automobile business, having for many years been connected with the Boston Pierce-Arrow agency. While with that firm Mr. Wiley has spent much time in the repairing department, and later in selling and demonstrating.

DIED.

ALDEN—In Newton, September 15th, John E. Alden, 75 yrs., 3 mos. Funeral Sunday Sept 18th at 2:30 o'clock. Burial private.

PREFERS ADVERTISED GOODS.

Advertising is a great force and a succession of accumulated impressions, and the greater number of people who are influenced by it are never known to have been reached. George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, says, "I buy advertised articles by preference, but I never write to the advertisers." They do not all write letters and mention the name of the advertiser, but simply go and buy. We doubt if any one force, with the exception of the public school and the daily press, has done as much for the education of the human race as advertising, and the man who can so plan advertising work as to bring about large results is exercising professional ability of the highest order.—Profitable Advertising.

Try This RICHMOND Suds-Maker Free

You simply turn the faucet and the Richmond Suds-Maker delivers thick, hot suds. It does not interfere with the hot water faucet and can be easily attached to it. It gives you instead, two faucets—one for clean, hot water—the other for thick, hot suds.

Think of the dozens of ways this ingenious device will put down the work in the kitchen! Learn what it means to save hundreds of steps every day—to always have thick, creamy suds on tap. The "Richmond" Suds-Maker gives you any quantity of soap and water thoroughly mixed in scientific proportion—it is always ready to meet your instant needs. It puts an end to the drudgery of dish washing—simply place dishes, silver, glassware under its creamy suds for an instant, then just rinse and wipe. It puts an instant, automatic end to waste, in unsightly soap dishes, to the nuisance of soaping up the odds and ends of soap. Use any kind of soap.

Just call on the plumber whose name appears below and ask to see the Richmond Suds-Maker. He will let you take one home to try. Use it ten days—then if you think you can spare it, return it, for the trial places you under no obligation to buy. THEATRES

Boston Opera House—Milton and Saenger Aborn's spectacular production of "The Bohemian Girl" begins a two weeks engagement at the Boston Opera House Monday evening, Sept. 19. The Messrs. Aborn's forthcoming revival promises to eclipse anything of the kind that has been seen in modern times. The company, including principals, chorus and ballet, will number upwards of 150 people. This spectacular revival is being staged by Edward P. Temple, late stage director and producer at the Hippodrome, New York. He has introduced many striking novelties in the work. In the present revival Miss Blanche Duffield will appear as Arline; Miss Bettine Freeman as the Gypsy Queen; James Stevens as Count Arnhelm; Charles Gallaghen as Devilshoof; Paul Victor as Thaddeus; Maurice Lavigne as the captain of the guard; and Cora Huckleley Buda. Of the above cast, Miss Freeman is a Boston girl and was last season a member of the Boston Opera Company. Miss Duffield, who appears as Arline, made a great success in this role with the Aborn Opera Company last season in Chicago. There will be matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Hollis Street Theatre—A. E. Matthews, the delightful English comedian, will make his first appearance in Boston at the Hollis Street Theatre on Sept. 19 in "Love Among the Lions." For the past 10 years Mr. Matthews has shared with Gerald du Maurier in London the whole field of light comedy, and he brings with him a method of natural acting quite unlike any seen in this country. He is a subtle artist; a kind of early Charles Hawtrey, who prefers to suggest rather than over do. Indeed, his is a rare faculty of investing a farcical, humorous situation, with a human quality that gives its comedy a lasting impression. His vehicle, "Love Among the Lions," is particularly suited to him. It is a romantic comedy dramatized by Winchell Smith, author of "The Fortune Hunter," from the well known novel of the same name written by Frank Anstey, the best known humorist of London Punch. The two principal roles are charmingly done by Miss Jane Oaker and Miss May Blayney.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—The first opportunity to see a real airship at close range will be afforded at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Mr. Keith has arranged to have one of the great racers placed on the stage and shown in full operation, while an aviator who has become world famous will tell some of his experiences. After this the audiences will be invited to come upon the stage and get a close view of this wonderful machine. Something equally wonderful will be shown in the mammoth production called "Sherman's Enchantment." In this living figures in beautiful groupings are shown and these dissolve in full view of the audience, other groupings appearing in their places. Another big feature will be Marshall P. Wilder, the world famous humorist; B. A. Rolfe, and his big company of "Rolfonians" said to be the greatest musical combination ever seen in vaudeville; Robert Henry Hodge in "Bill Blithers, Bachelor"; Wright and Dietrich, the singers; Chassino, the shadowgraphist, and others.

A meeting of the Democratic ward and city committee was held Sunday in Nonantum Hall. Resolutions were adopted supporting James H. Vahey none within the last half dozen years. Next week's production will be its first production by the players of the John Craig Stock Company. It will have a series of finely picturesque stage settings, and there will be incidental music that will give it an added attraction. "The Bells of Haslemere" will be given at the Castle Square for only one week.

GROCERY ADVERTISING.

The Philadelphia Record, which very often gives excellent information concerning advertising, recently gave a tip that some advertising managers may act upon with good results. "Grocery advertising," says the Record, "has still to reach the development of that of the department store. The main thing is to have a bargain to make a newspaper display. One grocer could not get rid of a stock of small oranges. He offered them in striking type at 40 cents a peck. They sold quickly. While he realized about as much as if they had been sold by the dozen, his store had the benefit of an effective advertisement." Some wise grocer, says Newspaperdom, may take advantage of publicity and make a fortune.

—Mrs. Frank Lawrie of Bow street, Newton Lower Falls, died Monday at her home after a long illness. She was about 60 years old and had been a resident of the Lower Falls section for 30 years. Her husband and two sons survive her.

MR. BOYD DEAD

—A. Henry Boyd died Friday after a brief illness at his home on Crafts street. Death was due to typhoid fever. The deceased was 42 years old and was born in Sussex, N. B. He had lived in Newton many years and was formerly an employee of the Newton Street Railway Company. Of late he had sold dairy products. His widow and seven children survive him. Mr. Boyd was a member of Gen. Hull Lodge, A. O. U. W., and of Middlesex Court, M. C. O. F. The funeral was held Monday morning at Church of Our Lady. Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Father Michael Dolan, with Rev. Father James F. Kelly as deacon and Rev. Father A. S. Malone as sub-deacon. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery at Waltham. The pallbearers were Peter, Thomas and Michael McGann, brothers-in-law of Mr. Boyd, Patrick Quinn, James McDuff and James Hammill. The last two represented, respectively, Gen. Hull Lodge, A. O. U. W., and Middlesex Court, M. C. O. F.

Having accepted the recommendations of the Highway Commission relative to rates and service in the Boston and Suburban Districts, it is incumbent upon us to present them and explain their application.

The following may help residence subscribers determine which class of service best meets their needs and make clear some apparently obscure points.

I. The curtailment of area under the proposed district plan does not proportionately curtail the subscriber's actual use of the telephone.

Professor Jackson, the Highway Commission's expert, took careful records to ascertain the number and destination of calls from each exchange to points within the Metropolitan and Suburban districts. He found that, aside from calls for the seven Metropolitan exchanges, only 14% of all Suburban calls went outside districts composed of a particular exchange and its contiguous Suburban exchanges. Hence, the great majority of Suburban users would not be adversely affected by reason of the creation of such districts, but, on the contrary, distinctly benefited when all the advantages are considered.

The present lowest unlimited Suburban rate obtainable is a four-party line at $30 a year. The new lowest unlimited Suburban district rate—a two-party line with divided ringing—is $21 a year in "E" districts, $24 a year in "F" districts, $27 a year in "G" districts and $30 in "H" districts. Here, then, is a reduction of 30, 20 and 10 per cent, respectively, in three classes of exchanges, and the substitution of a two-party line with divided ringing for a four-party line, with other benefits which will be referred to later.

In this connection three important points should be considered—the reduction in the annual rate, the reduction of the toll rate to and from Boston, and the improvement in the service which will result from two-party lines with divided ringing in place of four-party lines. Each of these is a part of the same problem.

II. The reduction of the 10-cent toll rate to five cents to all exchanges within five miles of Boston on April 15, 1908, and the present extension of the 5-cent radius to eight miles, is part of the general plan of revision and reduction, and must fairly be considered in connection therewith.

It was distinctly stated that this 1908 reduction was tentative and part of a general plan, but to be made in advance of other changes. These further changes are indicated in the new rate schedule.

Professor Jackson's figures show that 20% of the calls originating in the present Suburban territory are for the seven Metropolitan exchanges in Boston—Main, Fort Hill, Haymarket, Richmond, Oxford, Tremont and Back Bay. It follows in the toll rates, too, there is a substantial reduction.

The reduction from 10 cents to 5 cents on Boston calls applies to the following exchanges within an 8-mile radius (including those to which the 5-cent reduction was tentatively applied two years ago): Arlington, Belmont, Brighton, Brookline, Cambridge, Charlestown, Chelsea, Dorchester, East Boston, Everett, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain, Malden, Melrose, Medford, Milton, Newton North, Newton South, Quincy, Revere, Roxbury, South Boston, Somerville, Winchester, and Winthrop.

III. The substitution of two-party lines with divided ringing for four-party lines will tend to the improvement of service.

It is obvious that the fewer parties there are on a line, the more valuable the service, as there is less interference in using it for outward calls and less likelihood of its being "busy" to inward calls.

Divided ringing, on a two-party line, provides for only one ring of the bell and that for the number wanted. It eliminates any annoyance or confusion resulting from a multiplicity of bell signals. It will remove one of the common causes of complaint, and, coupled with the substitution of the two-party for the four-party line, will work a material improvement in the subscriber's service.

IV. The measured service features of the new plan offer distinct advantages to those having special or limited requirements.

For example—There is a measured rate giving for $24 480 calls, which may be used to any exchange, Metropolitan or Suburban, within an eight-mile radius. Additional calls, if made within the exchange district, are 3 cents each.

Here is a case in point: Among the recent inquirers at the Milk street office was a professional man residing in the Newton South exchange, whose telephone service was costing him about $42 a year—$30 for a four-party residence telephone and about $12 a month for toll calls to Boston.

He estimated that two calls a day would meet his actual needs, and he was delighted to learn that these needs (730 calls, including 120 calls to Boston,) under this measured service schedule, could be given him for $32.30, as against the $42 he now pays.

Note—The next bulletin will present a complete rate schedule, with a special analysis for business telephones.

A DECLARATION.

At the recent Boston convention of the National Education Association this declaration was adopted:

The National Educational Association, now holding its 48th annual convention in the city of Boston, representing every educational interest of the nation, makes the following declaration of principles:

1. We reaffirm our faith in the schools of the Republic, believing that it is impossible for the citizens of a great democracy to develop power and efficiency without the public schools, owned and controlled by the people.

2. A federal office of education is necessary to the best development of education in the several states. The National Bureau of Education has for many years rendered a splendid service in disseminating information and developing educational ideals. During the past few years its increasing service and enhanced efficiency have been marked and stimulating. The plans which are now projected have the earnest approval and the enthusiastic endorsement of the educational interests of the entire country. The members of this association hereby express their appreciation of the provision made for the better housing of the bureau and the enlargement of its staff. We further respectfully urge on the Congress an increased appropriation for its support. In particular we urge that in addition to the usual appropriations the sum of $75,000 be made available at the next session of Congress for the organization of a more adequate staff of specialists, with particular reference to work in the field.

3. In the judgment of the National Education Association, the time has arrived for the formation of an International Council of Education, to be composed of leading educators from all the principal nations of the globe; the first meeting of the council to be held in Washington, D. C., at some time during the year 1911. The Association hereby appoints the United States Commissioner of Education, the president and all living ex-presidents of the National Education Association, and seven others, to be chosen by the above designated persons, as a committee to formulate plans for such an International Council and to attend to their execution.

4. The fundamental consideration in any system of schools is the development of inflexible integrity and strong moral character in those receiving instruction. The Republic with high ideals of patriotism, duty cannot survive without a citizenship and service. This association, therefore, commends most heartily the growing interest in the moral development of the children of the nation.

5. While the members of this association are of the opinion that the old courses of study, which had as their chief object the giving of culture to the individual and of transmitting to him the best ideas and ideals of the past, should in no manner be weakened, we, nevertheless, very sincerely endorse the movement to make the courses of study offered in our schools more democratic, that they may meet the conditions of our modern commercial and industrial life. However, to meet adequately these new demands imposes upon the schools of the country additional financial responsibilities, and this association appeals to the nation and to the states for more liberal appropriations for educational purposes in order that this additional work in agriculture, in the trades and industries, and in home economics may be effectively undertaken.

6. No country that is physically weak or physically diseased can attain its possible greatness. All efforts, therefore, to make the condition of our educational plants more sanitary and to impress upon the minds of the children and the citizens of the nation the importance of the proper observance of the laws of health—public and individual—should receive the support and hearty co-operation of American teachers.

7. The abuses attending the employment of children in industrial occupations tend to limit their educational opportunities, and this association, therefore, indorses all such wise and humane legislation as shall make possible the broadest development of all the children.

8. The character and efficiency of the schools must depend in the future, as in the past, upon the character and efficiency of the teachers. The profession of teaching should, therefore, attract men and women of the highest intellectual attainments, broadest culture, most thorough training, and loftiest ideals; to this end the salaries paid American teachers should be commensurate with salaries paid in other professions and in commercial and industrial pursuits.

9. The association reaffirms its declaration in the year of the last Hague Conference of the pre-eminent duty of the teachers of the United States, and of all the nations, to advance this commanding movement of our time for the world's peace; and we record our profound satisfaction at the noteworthy development of attention to this high interest in our

The returns from Maine ought to spur the Republican leaders, Republican workers and Republican voters to the hardest kind of work during the present campaign. The situation is unprecedented in that everyone concedes that the bulk of the voters are far from satisfied with existing conditions and being at a loss to discover the cause will undoubtedly attribute it to the party in political power. The fact that the dissatisfaction with the tariff or with Senator Lodge ought not to be charged to Governor Draper should be brought home to each voter in as forcible a manner as possible. No man in the Governor's chair since the days of Governor Crane has been so absolutely independent as Mr. Draper and his entire administration for over two years has been of the greatest service to the Commonwealth. To exchange the services of such an executive for the untried and inexperienced men mentioned by the opposition party would not be considered for one moment if the voters of this city were conducting a private business and to vote against Governor Draper on the inappropriate grounds of tariff, high cost of living, Lodgeism, Cannonism or Insurgency is inconceivable from a common sense point of view. WHY CHANGE?

One of the questions to be decided on the ballot at the coming state election by the voters of Newton is a proposed change in our city charter giving the Mayor the power to remove city officials without the approval of the Board of Aldermen. The principle on which the present city charter is based in this respect has been in force since 1853 and in all that period there has been but one instance where it might have been better to have such power vested in the Mayor alone. And even in that one instance, the Mayor was finally able to bring about the desired result. Under these circumstances
WHY CHANGE?

The unanimous election of Mr.
Cheney L. Hatch as city auditor, to succeed the late Benjamin F. Otis, is one of those examples of true civil service, which is the pride of every good citizen of Newton. That this spirit is accepted by the entire city is witnessed by the fact that while the office is an attractive one from many points of view, no other name was even suggested for the position.

LOOKS PROSPEROUS.

Appearances count for much in this world. A big advertisement costs money and looks like prosperity.
There are many who prefer to deal with the prosperous.—Printer's Ink.

A FAMILY TIE.

That ceremony at the church yesterday didn't prove to be a wedding knot after all.

Why didn't it?
Because, according to the morning papers, "there wasn't a hitch in the proceedings."

The following time-honored couplets, giving the wedding superstitions which attach to all of the twelve months of the year, are printed in response to two requests from anxious brides-to-be.

Married in January's hoar and rime,
Widowed you'll be before your prime.
Married in February's sleety weather,
Life you'll tread in tune together.

Married when March winds shrill and roar,
Your home will lie in a foreign shore.

Married 'neath April's changeable skies,
A checkered path before you lies.

Married when bees o'er May blooms
flit,
Strangers around your board will sit.

Married in month of roses—June—
Life will be one long honeymoon.

Married in July, with flowers ablaze,
Bitter-sweet memories in after days.

Married in August's heat and drowse, Lover and friend in your chosen spouse.

Married in golden September's glow,
Smooth and serene your life will flow.

Married when leaves in October thin,
Toll and hardship for you begin.

Married in veils of November mist, Dame Fortune your wedding ring has kissed.

Married in days of December's cheer, Love's star burns brighter from year to year.

Just—I can't understand why she hasn't been married long ago. She's really pretty.

Tess—Perhaps she wants to pose as a matchless beauty.

ALDERMEN MEET AGAIN
MR. CHENEY L. HATCH ELECTED CITY AUDITOR

The first regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen after the summer vacation was held on Monday night.
Vice-President Doherty was in the chair in the absence of President
Jones, and Aldermen Avery, Barker, Blakemore, Burr, Gray, Heard, Higgins, Moore, Stone, Sullivan, Towle, Williamson and Woods were also present. There was a long list of hearings, at which no one appeared.

William M. Noble, Bracebridge road,
Charles E. Gibson, Sylvan avenue,
Frank A. Day, Sargent street, Frank H. Stewart, Montvale road, were granted licenses to keep gasoline.

No one appeared in opposition to the petition of the telephone company for pole locations on Islington street, Prospect street, and for attachments on Woodward street, Auburn street, Chestnut street and Lowell avenue;
or upon petition of the Edison Company for underground conduits in Beacon street and Institution avenue, and for pole locations on Gibbs street. On petition of the telephone company for pole locations on Lowell avenue, Mr.
W. H. Eaves remonstrated, on the ground that the residents had been at considerable expense to improve that section of Newtonville, that there were enough poles and wires now on the street, and that they had hoped that the number would be reduced rather than increased. Mr. H. S. Allen for the company said that they had endeavored to arrange the matter so as to avoid more poles, but as one or two or the residents in this vicinity had refused them permission to cross their property, they could not give the service desired without these poles. On the petition of the Edison Company for pole locations on Crescent avenue, remonstrances were filed by Miss Sarah L. Arnold, Dr. R. P.
Loring and Prof. John M. English.
Mr. R. H. Gross asked one or two questions relative to the petition of the Edison Company for pole on Valentine street, but entered no remonstrance.

On the hearing for taking land for sewer purposes between Westbourne road and Francis street, Mr. Alfred E.
Kenrick of the Brookline Savings Bank entered an objection to the route as planned by the city engineer. He stated that the removal of the sewer to the boundary of their land at the south would remove their objections.
Mr. E. T. Whiting favored the sewer, stating that unless it was built he would have to vacate his property.

The trustees of the Ireland estate favored the sewer in writing.
Mr. John F. Lothrop appeared in favor of the laying out of Prescott street extension. He stated that there were already three new houses in process of erection in this vicinity.
Mrs. Anna R. Butterworth sent a letter objecting to the construction of concrete sidewalks, under the betterment act, on Chase street.

The appointment by Mayor Hatfield of the election officers, of which a list was printed in the last issue of the Graphic, was unanimously confirmed. On recommendation of Street Commissioner Ross a large number of street sprinkling assessments for 1910 were adopted. On recommendation of Forest Commissioner Bucknam the schedule of moth assessments for 1910 was also adopted. On recommendation of Commissioner Bucknam hearings were ordered on Sept. 3 on the removal of dead or dangerous trees on Arlington street, Washington street,

Commonwealth avenue, Webster street, Church street, Oak street, Cherry street, 55 Washington street, Centre street, Highland street, Newtonville avenue, Ash street, Auburn-dale avenue, Elliot street, High street and Jackson street.

Hearings at the same time were ordered on petition of Walter E. Mars to keep denatured alcohol, and of Col. Moxon E. Cobb, Lake avenue;
Charles A. Drake, Auburn street;
George W. Bush Co., Elmwood street; H. M. Howard, Fuller street, to keep gasoline. The application of B. S.
Hatch Co. to erect a storage building on Webster street was submitted by Commissioner Elder and later, on recommendation of the committee, was granted. Captain R. G. Mulligan, U.
S. N., gave notice of the desertion of William Russell Smith of Auburndale from the U. S. S. North Dakota.

The chairman of the Republican and Democratic city committee gave notice of their intention to participate in the state primaries on Sept. 27.

These petitions were received: E.
Meyers, notice of injuries; Russell T.
Harrington, notice of injuries; J. E.
Huntress, damages to automobile;
Roswell C. Rose, for soldier's relief; James Aspinwall, for abatement of sewer assessment; F. H. Baird, concrete sidewalk Elmote street; Frederick Mann, sewer in Waban Hill road; John F. Lothrop, sewer in Prescott street; E. Arthur Robinson, sewer in Central Terrace; Mrs. Margaret Sullivan, sewer in Elliot street; G. F.
Allen, sewer in Aberdeen street; Robert
F. Sanderson, sewer in Trapelo road, Ferncroft road and Greenough street; William F. Bonfi, auctioneer's license; Emma T. Cavanagh, intelligence office; Isadore Salvo, pool table; Abram Trackman, transfer of junk license; Simon Morrell, liquor transportation permit; George Sideris Co., common victualler's license; Annie B.
Telfer, common victualler's license;
the Telephone Company to remove three poles Cook street and relocate one pole Hillside road; the Edison Co. to remove four poles on Institution avenue; James H. Kenslea, injuries to horse on Lincoln road; Gertrude Bradlee, sewer in Lee avenue; Severy et al, for sewer in Newland street; Nicholas Veducchio, liquor transportation permit; Michele Scen-a, liquor transportation permit, and J. Thubail, permit for dance in Lincoln Hall.

Petitions for street sprinkling of G.
B. Hughes, Cabot street; J. W. Blais-dell, Arlington street; Hammond Real Estate Trust, Clovelly road; H. M.
Cole, Somerset road, and H. E. Merritt, Elm road, were received and granted. Petition of M. S. Perlmutter and Alfred L. Barboun for auctioneer's license; Mrs. Anna Vincent and Henry S. Williams, intelligence office licenses, and of the Gas Light Co. to dig up certain streets for laying mains were also granted. A hearing was ordered on Oct. 3 on petition of S. M. Bolster to keep gasoline in Ex-ter street.

A recess was then taken to allow committees to meet. On reassembling the following resolutions were adopted by a rising vote:

RESOLUTIONS.

The select committee to whom was referred the communication from his Honor the Mayor relative to the death of City Auditor Benjamin F. Otis referred to the high esteem in which Mr.

Otis was held, not only by his official associates, but by the whole community. His public services for the city of Newton during the long period of 34 years, treasurer of the First Unitarian Church of West Newton for 21 years, a trustee of the West Newton Savings Bank for a number of years, all testify to the character and ability which marked his life among us. His warm-hearted greetings to his friends, his respectful attention to the business presented by his associates and the public will not soon pass from our memory.

Resolved, that this tribute be placed on record and a copy be furnished to Mrs. Mary L. Fleu, his surviving widowed daughter.

APPRECIATION.

Edwin M. Fowle, for 17 years an honored official of the city of Newton, was born in Roxbury, Mass., Aug.
14, 1831, and died on the 19th day of August, 1910, at the age of 79 years.

Mr. Fowle's early education was acquired at Mr. Green's private academy in Jamaica Plain and supplemented by extensive foreign travel. In 1853 Mr. Fowle established a foreign commission business on India wharf, Boston, which he continued for 41 years until 1898, when he retired from its activities. Appointed Boston consul to San Domingo by President U. S. Grant, Mr. Fowle filled with credit that office until he voluntarily retired in 1904, being the oldest consul but one in point of service of a foreign government in Boston.

Mr. Fowle was past president of the Massachusetts Association of Relief Officers, clerk of the Newton Cemetery Corporation, trustee of the Newton Centre M. E. Church and an honored member of Dalhousie Lodge, F.
and A. M.

In 1859 Mr. Fowle came to Newton and for 51 years resided in the home in which he died on the shore of Cristal Lake.

Mr. Fowle's simple tastes, large heart and sunny disposition won him friends in greater numbers than he was given to possess. Trustworthy himself, he was always slow to believe ill of anyone. Lowell thus fittingly expressed this trait of character:

"Be noble, and the nobleness that lies in other men sleeping, but never dead, Will rise in majesty to meet thine own."

Faithfulness characterized Mr.
Fowle's service as an official of Newton. Ill health was not permitted to keep him from his desk, and as he would have chosen he labored till the end. Courteousness in listening to the appeals of the unfortunate, quickness in detecting the unworthy and promptness in rendering assistance to the deserving made him an ideal almoner of the city.

These orders were adopted: Establishing pay for election officers, establishing polling places for state and city elections, calling state election
Nov. 8, ordering hearing Oct. 3 relative to taking land for sewer off Francis street, authorizing construction of concrete sidewalks on Chase street, under the betterment act, authorizing sewer construction in Sylvan avenue and Farlow road, and for laying water mains in Central terrace, Commonwealth avenue, Ferncroft and Trapelo roads, Park View avenue, Prescott street, Upland road and Washburn avenue.

The board then proceeded to the election of a new city auditor, Mr.
Cheney L. Hatch being the only person nominated for the office. The election covers the unexpired term to January, 1912, of the late Benjamin F. Otis, and Mr. Hatch was unanimously elected, receiving 13 votes.

The board at 10.16 o'clock adjourned until Oct. 3.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Representative T. W. White has been appointed a member of the legislative committee to co-operate with the Republican state committee in the fall campaign.

The full meeting of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association was held this morning, 10 A. M. at 585 Boylston street, Boston. A new committee has been formed for the purpose of attending to the press work of the association, of which Mrs. W. E.
Birdsall has been made chairman. The movement is making rapid gains in the things which make for success, viz., numbers and finances.

VISIT STATE FARM

MASSACHUSETTS EDITORS ENJOY THE TRIP

Members of the Massachusetts Press Association enjoyed a most interesting and instructive trip to the State Farm at Bridgewater last Monday. Through the courtesy of the New Haven railroad the party left Boston on the 10:35 o'clock train, reaching Titicut, the nearest railroad station to the farm, at noon. Here automobiles and carriages took them to the institution buildings, which are about a quarter of a mile from the railroad.

The superintendent's house, which is just outside of the main group of buildings, is surrounded with graceful trees, green lawns and beautiful flowers, and indeed all of the principal buildings on the farm were beautiful with flowers. After a most delicious lunch served in the superintendent's home the editors visited the most important buildings and viewed the principal features of the farm. There are three departments at Bridgewater; the State Farm, so-called, for male and female prisoners for minor offences, now numbering about 1500; the asylum for the criminal insane, which harbors about 700, and the State Almshouse, with about 300 inmates.

The two most pronounced characteristics noted were cleanliness and efficiency. All of the buildings, inside and out, the various rooms, cells and corridors within the buildings were scrupulously clean and plainly but neatly furnished. A hasty trip through the insane asylum was enough to show the comfortable, safe and clean accommodations which are given each inmate. One is impressed with the careful manner in which an inmate is guarded in his room. Heavy doors with strong locks and hinges, a small window heavily barred looking into the corridor, and a peephole through the heavy door allow the guards to keep careful watch on the inmate, and his room. At the time of our visit practically all of the men were in an enclosed court formed by the buildings which completely surround it. It was a weird and at the same time a pitiful sight to see the manner in which these men passed their time, and I was glad when we had finished our brief inspection of the place.

The new building for women prisoners has a beautiful setting of flowers, lawns and trees, and the 150 inmates are kept busy with work, washing, ironing, sewing and mending. The care of something like 1400 male prisoners entails a large amount of work, particularly in the dining room. Eight barrels of flour are made into bread each day for the men, and enormous quantities of potatoes, sweet corn and other vegetables were in process of preparation for the next meal. All the needs of the farm in the matter of clothing, shoes, furniture, wagon building and repairs, wheelwright work, horseshoeing, blacksmith and iron work, are done on the place, as men of the various trades are usually to be found among its inmates. A new cement storage building is now in the process of construction, and with the exception of the supervision all the labor is being done by the men of the farm. The cooking, dish washing, waiting on table, care of the rooms, and all of the routine farm work is performed by the inmates, and there are large numbers employed in canning chair seats and in reclaiming the wild land by removing the stones and stumps and placing it in condition for cultivation.

The State Almshouse is a handsome building, and contains about 300 worthy poor. The building impresses one with its abundance of light and cleanliness. The following facts and figures have been gleaned from the official reports of the farm and of its trustees, of which Mrs. Charles L. Smith of Newton Centre is a member.

The Bridgewater State Farm was established in 1853 and originally consisted of 150 acres. It now includes 1184 acres and with buildings is valued at $1,032,320. The number of inmates on Sept. 7 was 2459, including about 700 criminal insane and 300 state paupers, as it also is the State Almshouse for South-eastern Massachusetts. Of the 4680 persons committed there for the last official year, 3999 came under sentence from the local police courts; 3583 were males, and 1504 came from Boston. Drunkenness is by far the principal cause of commitment (3417), with vagrancy (359) next in importance. While the State Farm is usually the last resort of the police judge, when other appeals to manhood have been tried and failed, and the superintendent of the farm, Mr. Hollis M. Blackstone, says in his report, "They are a broken cog in our social machinery and sometimes a real menace, but more often a mere physical stumbling block." He still has faith and continues with these words, "He is still a man, a brother, deserving still an opportunity to try, try again, and after a few months of orderly living, regular sleep and good conduct, co-operating in responsive spirit with his supervision, he has earned the indulgence of renewed confidence to try again." The superintendent believes the farm to be a real step in progress of true penology and declares that "a vast majority are willing, tractable men, intending to do well—not ill."

While the men are given indeterminate sentences of one year for drunkenness and two years for other offences, a parole system is authorized by law by which those under one year sentence are released at the end of three months, and two year prisoners at the end of nine months. This parole is on condition that the person does not thereafter return to his former habits of dissipation or vagrancy. If he violates his parole he is returned to the farm for the rest of the original sentence, less 30 days deduction for good behavior. While under parole the men are in charge of a corps of volunteer probation officers to whom the man must report within 24 hours after arriving home. These probation officers (an original idea of our State Board of Charity) have been of great service in assisting the men. From 15 to 20 per cent of the men are returned for violation of their parole. Since this system was established in 1898 the commitments for tramping and vagrancy have dropped from 33 per cent to 10 per cent.

The farm is cultivated solely in the interest of its own inmates, none of the products being sold. The principal crops are hay, vegetables, milk, eggs and pork. The value of these matured and stored last year was $35,673, no estimate being placed on the garden truck raised. The principal items last year were 500 tons hay, 11,140 bushels potatoes, 47,873 head of cabbage and 8887 bunches of celery. There are no loafers at the farm, some 300 being engaged in reclaiming wild land and there are chair, tailor and shoe shops and the regular farm work. While at work the men are under supervision, but do not have a "shotgun" guard. About 25 or 30 escape each year.

On Sundays religious services, both Catholic and Protestant, are held. The cost of maintenance in 1909 was $308,999.40, making a per capita expense of $2.56 weekly.

The present farm is a monument to its very efficient superintendent, Mr. Blackstone, who was appointed in 1883. Within 48 hours of taking office the farm buildings were burned to the ground, and he has planned and carried out all the work of the present valuable plant with signal administrative ability.

—Mr. Hiram Forbes has returned from a trip to Nova Scotia.

—Mr. George Curtis is quite ill at his home on Newtonville avenue.

—Mr. F. B. Homer and family of Kimball terrace are home again.

—Shares in the 48th series in the West Newton Co-operative Bank for sale during September.

—Mrs. F. A. Waterhouse and Mr. Asbury Waterhouse of Highland avenue have returned from Cuba.

—Mrs. E. S. Buffum and Miss Madeline Buffum of Walnut street are home again from Ogunquit, Me.

—Mr. E. E. Partridge, the druggist, has sold his business to Mr. Winterport M. Quinlan of Newton Upper Falls.

—Mr. and Mrs. Remington, who have been absent a year, have returned to their home on Otis street.

Mr. William M. Buffum, thereby gaining permanent possession of the trophy.
The match was probably the longest and most bitterly fought out ever played on the courts, lasting more than three hours and taking the full quota of five sets, the score being 2-6, 8-6, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, but aside from its closeness offered little of interest for the tennis was slow and mediocre and rallies long and monotonous. Nichols played a steady game and got everything, but his play is soft and the winner was forced into playing a like game. The latter made a determined stand when the score stood two sets to one and three love against him, winning six straight games and eventually the match by superior placing and stronger net play. On Saturday the championship doubles begin.

TILL IS TAPPED

Miss Cunningham, the milliner in the Nonantum building, was robbed of $57 last Saturday afternoon by two young men, who entered her store about 4 o'clock and asked for some bread. Miss Cunningham referred them to a dry goods store and they said they only wanted a small piece and begged her to accommodate them. She went to her work room which are in the rear and several steps higher than her salesroom, and while absent, the key to the till was taken from its secret place, the drawer opened and the money abstracted. Miss Cunningham did not find the loss until a half hour later, when she went to the drawer for some change. She failed to find the key and then noticed that the drawer was unlocked. It is supposed that the robbers had confederates in two young women who visited Miss Cunningham that morning and prevailed upon her to purchase tickets for the benefit of a cripple, and thereby found out where she kept the key and the location of the till.

Other stores in the square were visited by the same persons but no one else was looted.

CITY HALL.

Alderman William J. Doherty was operated upon for appendicitis last Saturday at the Carney Hospital, Boston, and is now convalescent.

Mayor Hatfield gave a hearing Wednesday morning on the petition of Jacob Leavitt of Boston to run a moving picture show in Lincoln Hall, Newton Highlands. In view of the remonstrances received the hearing was postponed until tomorrow (Saturday) morning at 9 o'clock.

City Clerk Kingsbury received this week a request from Terie Haute, Ind., for a piece of the old elm tree recently cut down at Houghton's corner.

Street Commissioner Ross, who has been appointed one of the three delegates to represent the state of Massachusetts at the third annual National Roads Convention, held at St. Louis next week, leaves tomorrow and will visit his daughter in Detroit on the way.

City Collector Newhall expects to send out the 1910 tax bills tomorrow. Over 15,000 will be issued.

Forest Commissioner Bucknam reports 16,278 trees in the streets of the city and 20,598 trees which shade the streets from abutting property. Commonwealth avenue with 2208 trees heads the list.

DICKINSON—REEVES.

Mr. Alfred W. Dickinson, a teacher in the Newton High School, was married last Saturday afternoon to Miss Ethel W. Reeves, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Reeves of Somerville. The wedding took place at the Newtonville Methodist Church, the pastor, Rev. J. W. Campbell, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson will reside at 191 Linwood avenue, Newtonville.

It is worth one's while to visit the establishment of McKenney & Waterbury Co., 181 Franklin street, corner Congress, to see their exhibition of gas and electric lighting fixtures. All are welcome at this exhibition which surpasses anything of its kind in this country.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE

The Democratic party filed its nominations for the state primaries with the city clerk this week, as follows: For Representatives to the General Court a full list is filed this year, breaking the custom of several years duration, when the party has concentrated its efforts on one nomination. The names filed are Timothy D. Leonard of Newton, Edward J. Glancy of Nonantum and Daniel O'Connell of West Newton.

For delegates to the several Democratic conventions the following names were filed, the list in Ward 1 being filled in by the city committee, no ward nominations being made. One contest is in sight, that for the single delegate to the state convention from Ward 6.

ADAMS IS CHAMPION

The athletic championship of Newton was won by William Adams, a high school junior, last Saturday afternoon on the Newton Centre Playground. The event had been postponed from Labor Day and only a few entered. Adams won the meet with 18 points, in three firsts and one second; Kenneth Farnham was second with 9 points, and a tie between C. H. Faith and B. Groth for third place with 6 points each, was won on the toss by Faith.

Mr. Frederick H. Elchbaver, the new director of the playground, was in charge of the meet, and he was assisted by Master L. B. Paul of the Mason School, N. R. Thompson, W. A. Furbush, Daniel Horgan, Richard Clarke, Carl Haskell, R. Ellis, W. Whaley, T. H. Morton and William McPherson.

The prizes were given by the Newton Centre Playground Social Service League.

The younger boys took part in a meet for which ribbons were awarded.

The summary of championship events:

100-yard dash—Won by William Adams, Kenneth Farnham second, R. Leland third. Time 15.

The success of any commercial article is dependent upon honesty in the manufacturing and sales departments. The "WINCHESTER" Steam or Hot Water Heater has built on this principle. It makes warm homes and contented families. Smith & Thayer Co., 236 Congress street, Boston, Mass.

WILL FLY HERE

At the annual outing of the United Drug Company to be held next Wednesday, Sept. 28, at the Riverside Recreation Grounds, Mr. Charles F. Willard, the American aviator, will give some exhibition flights with his Curtiss biplane. Mr. Willard will probably fly during the latter part of the afternoon.

GOULD—CLAPP.

Mr. Gardner Sabin Gould, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gould of Boylston street, Newton Upper Falls, was married last week Thursday to Miss Nina Clapp, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Clapp. The ceremony took place at the summer home of the bride at Murry Hill, Me., and was performed by Rev. Peter MacQueen, the well known traveller and lecturer, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. The bride and groom stood in a bower formed of white ribbons held by the Misses Dorothy Upman of Stoughton, Jane Hamilton of Warren, Penn., and Margaret and Howard Gould, sister and brother of the groom. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Gould will make their home at 543 Pine street, Manchester, N. H.

DEATH OF JOHN J. DONNELLY.

John J. Donnelly a resident on Jewett place for many years, died suddenly at the Massachusetts General Hospital on Sunday, Sept. 19, of apoplexy. He had been ill for four weeks at his home and on Saturday, Sept. 17, he was removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital and took a sudden change and died suddenly. He was employed for several years at the office of the Newton & Waterbury Gas Co. as a book clerk. The funeral services were held Tuesday morning, high mass of requiem being celebrated at the Church of Our Lady by Rev. Michael Dolan at 9 o'clock. The interment took place at Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

The floral pieces consisted of standing wreath of roses, given by employees of the Newton & Waterbury Gas Co.; a pillow of roses by Mrs. Dunne and family, wreath of asters by Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Collins, spray of asters by Miss Edith Whitehead, asters and roses by Miss Daisy Rooney, pillow of pinks by the family of deceased, asters and pinks by George Keating, spray of pinks by Edw. F. Bryson and many others. The pall bearers were Timothy Kinchilla, John Kinchilla, Thomas McDonnell, John Dunne, William McCrudden and M. B. Collins, all cousins of the deceased.

Until further notice, photographs of children under 17 years of age and babies, half price. No reduction in quality. M. B. Parkinson, 603 Boylston street, Boston.

PRIZES FOR PHOTOS

The Civic Federation of Newton offers the sum of $100 in prizes for photographs of notable features of the city, national and architectural, such as lake and river views, photographs of trees, streets, boulevards, parks, fountains and public memorials.

It is hoped that the offer of these prizes will stimulate local pride and arouse general interest in the beauty spots of our city, and that a large and representative collection of attractive photographs may thus be secured.

The contest will close on Nov. 15, allowing contestants more than four months in which to obtain views during a season which promises to be unrivalled in beauty and density of foliage and vegetation.

All photographs are to be submitted with the understanding that they will become the property of the Civic Federation, to be used for exhibition purposes. The entire collection, or certain selected photographs, will be exhibited in various public places throughout the city during the winter.

The sum of $100 will be divided into six prizes, three prizes for the most artistic photographs of views or landscapes and three for photographs of public works and architectural features, as follows:

Parks, streets, trees, rivers, lakes and nature in general:

First prize $25

Second prize 15

Third prize 10

Public buildings, institutions, memorials, bridges and architectural features:

First prize $25

Second prize 15

All photographs must be mounted and plainly marked on the back with the name and address of contestant; the location of the subject of the photograph must also be designated. No photograph should be smaller than 4x5; enlargements will be received.

The judges will be Mr. Charles Copeland, a well known artist, a member of the Boston Evening Transcript, and Mr. William H. Downes, art editor of the Boston Evening Transcript. Both the selection of the subject and the excellence of the photograph will be considered in awarding the prizes.

Announcement of the awards will appear in the Newton papers soon after the close of the contest.

Photographs should be sent on or before Nov. 15 to the secretary of the Civic Federation, Newton Club, Newtonville, Mass.

SCHOOL GARDENS END

The children who have been working hard in their gardens this summer are looking forward with eager interest to Prize Day, which is to be Sept. 30. Exercises will be held in Bigelow School Hall at 4 p. m.

The children of Nonantum and Newton who have gardens may come to these exercises and bring their parents, and all who are interested in the work will be welcome. Reports of the summer's work will be given by Mrs. L. S. Drake, chairman of the committee in charge, and Mr. M. W. Murray, director of manual training in Newton. Dr. Spaulding will award the prizes. Mrs. H. H. Powers, vice-president of the Social Science Club, will preside.

The gardens look remarkably well, showing the results of a painstaking care on the part of the young owners very gratifying to those who have had them in charge. They have received much praise from visitors from other cities and it has been very hard for the judges to make a choice.

RIVER LOW.

Not in 42 ears has the water in the Charles River, between Riverside and Newton Lower Falls, been so low as it is now. It has become impossible to paddle a canoe between the two points. Many citizens of Newton and Wellesley have complained of the filth which has become exposed on the river bottom. A bill to meet that condition was presented to the last Legislature. It sought an appropriation for dredging the river, but action was postponed and it was voted that the Metropolitan Park Commission be instructed to investigate and report to the next Legislature. Many cases of malaria have been reported in Newton and Wellesley this summer and some of the physicians declare much of it is due to the unsanitary condition of the river. Mayor Hatfield of Newton and George A. Sweetser, chairman of the Wellesley selectmen, are strongly in favor of having the river dredged through the Lower Falls sections.

COMPLETE BANKING SERVICE

The Lincoln Trust Company is a new institution, but it is now well started and thoroughly equipped to handle the banking business of merchants, jobbers and manufacturers, as well as of private individuals.

We are in the heart of the shoe and leather, textile, and jobbing districts and the men back of the company are particularly conversant with these lines.

Located near South Station, our banking rooms are especially convenient for suburban people desiring to do their banking with a good city institution.

Independent as to control, strong in resources and efficient in service, this bank seeks new business and promises personal interest and attention to each account.

Accounts can be opened with any amount and interest is paid on balances of $300 or over.

Come in and talk over banking relations with us.

Middlesex, ss. PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Sarah S. Robbins, late of Newton in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, certain instruments purporting to be the last will and testament—and two codicils—of said deceased have been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Francis W. Anthony, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the thirteenth day of October, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of September in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

MORE PAY WANTED.

At a meeting of the Newton Police Benevolent Association held Wednesday morning in the court house at West Newton, it was voted, because of the increased cost of living, to petition the Mayor and Board of Aldermen for an increase in wages for all members of the department.

The following committee was appointed to draw up a petition and submit it to the city government: Lieutenant William P. Soule, Sergeant James J. Mullen, Patrolmen Timothy P. Cronin, Rufus H. Moulton, Richard B. Conroy and John J. Davis. The men want the same wages as are paid to members of the Brookline and Boston departments. Besides the chief there is a captain, three lieutenants, one ranking as an inspector, five sergeants and 65 patrolmen.

Following is a list of the increases asked: Chief, from $2100 to $2500; captain, from $1300 to $1500; lieutenants, from $1250 to $1600; sergeants, from $1200 to $1400, and patrolmen, from $1095 to $1200.

NEWTON WELL REPRESENTED.

Newton will be represented at the National Good Roads Convention at St. Louis, Sept. 28, 29, 30, by Mr. Lewis R. Spear, president of the American Automobile Association, who will make the opening address; Mr. Charles W. Ross, street commissioner, who will talk about "Modern Surface Treatment of Various Roads," and by Mr. Abbot Bassett, secretary League of American Wheelmen, who will tell about "When the Roads Question was Young."

Try This RICHMOND Suds-Maker Free

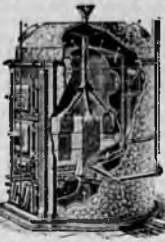

You simply turn the faucet and the RICHMOND Suds-Maker delivers thick, hot suds. It does not in any way interfere with the hot water faucet and can be easily attached to it. It gives you instead, two faucets—one for clean, hot water—the other for thick, hot suds.

Think of the dozens of ways this ingenious device will cut down the work in the kitchen! Learn what it means to save hundreds of steps every day—to always have thick, creamy soap suds on tap. The "Richmond" Suds-Maker gives you any quantity of soap and water thoroughly mixed in scientific proportion—it is a way a ready-to-meet your instant needs. It puts an end to the drudgery of dish washing—simply place dishes, silver, glassware under its creamy suds for an instant, then just rinse and wipe. It puts an instant, automatic end to waste, to unsightly soap dishes, to the nuisance of using up the odds and ends of soap. Use any kind of soap.

Just call on the plumber whose name appears below and ask to see the RICHMOND Suds-Maker. He will let you take one home to try. Use it ten days—then if you think you can spare it, return it, for the trial places you under no obligation to buy. This is your chance to learn about the greatest convenience, money and time saver you can install in your kitchen. Call today.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—Through arrangements entered into yesterday between B. F. Keith and Claude Grahame-White, the aviator, Bostonians will next Saturday at the Harvard Aviation Field, have an opportunity to see a demonstration of aerial navigation under conditions different from any which obtained since this form of sport became popular all over the world. In fact, it is the idea of both Mr. Keith and Mr. Grahame-White to give a popular demonstration for the thousands who were unable to see the flights on the Aviation field last week at close range. On that occasion Mr. Grahame-White was a competitor in numerous events and was unable to do many things with his airplane that he would have liked to have done. He now proposes to give, on what he considers the best aviation field in the world, a demonstration of the possibilities of aerial flights that will prove really sensational, most of the work being done on the field itself. While he will make some high flights and perform such feats as stopping his motor at a height of about 1000 feet above the field and gliding down, within full view of the people, a great part of the work will be done directly within the enclosure. The exhibition will begin about 2 o'clock in the afternoon and be continued until 5 or 6, and in that time Mr. Grahame-White, with both his biplane and the famous Beriot monoplane, will perform all the feats possible in aerial navigation.

Tremont Theatre—No comedy of the present generation has received such universal commendation as has "The Fortune Hunter," presented by Cohan & Harris at the Tremont Theatre last Monday night. With John Barrymore in the title role and the original New York company in his support this play bids fair to equal the records it has established both in New York and Chicago. The simple story it tells, the directness of its theme and the bits of pathos throughout topped by comedy that is pure and refreshing, make of it an entertainment that leaves a pleasant memory and a feeling of being better for having seen it. In character drawing the author, Winchell Smith, has shown a fine knowledge of human nature and human types. In its setting "The Fortune Hunter" is pure, constant enjoyment that sends one home happy and contented. It is in the thought that comes later that the subtle points of Mr. Smith's story are seen. The comedy laughingly ripples on to its petty love scene and the rainstorm and the pathos that comes at times never quite reaches the tears that are ready, for with a quaint twist a bit of natural humor crops out and a laugh relieves the tension. It is a story of life well told and well acted.

Castle Square Theatre—It will be a week of laughter at the Castle Square beginning on Monday. "When Knights Were Bold," which Mr. Crag will then produce for the first time at that theatre, is the merriest of merry farcical plays. Those who have seen it say that it is a continuous scream, and that its whimsical plot of the gay young man who dreams that he is a knight in old-time England, beset by enemies, fighting duels and conducting himself generally as the people of those days are reputed to have done, is the funniest of stage characters. Miss Mary Young will play the role of the fascinating heroine, and there will be good roles for every one of Mr. Crag's players. Special scenery will give a picturesque stage setting to the varying scenes of the play.

NEW BOOK

By Newton Centre Author.
"Dorothy Brooke's School Days," (by Miss Frances Sparhawk), one of the best selling girls' books since the era of "Little Women," has a most engaging rival in its sequel, "Dorothy Brooke's Vacation," a response to the demand of not only the young folks but the "grown-ups," who are equally interested in the doings of the realistic, lovable, up-to-date "little comrade of mother."
With wonderful deftness the author has brought the school girl to the time when she's "standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet." Awakened has given place to the dainty sweetness of young girlhood, and though she sometimes hesitates for a moment in the wage between right and wrong, as in the case of the little country girl, Rose Hewes, whom she had hoped to give "the time of her life" the week previous, but who wrote, "I'm so sorry I can't come, Dorothy," and then appears a week later just as the auto vacation trip is made up and Rose is "one of many" among the bevy of stylish girls, but her innate unselfishness triumphs, for she's not a goody-goody type but a real girly girl.
As a unique experience she decides to take the girl friends whom she has invited to spend vacation with her on a week's auto trip, the party augmented by her teasing brother Rex and some of the other "brothers," "rattling good college fellows," chaperoned by Mrs. Longley, mother of Grace and Ned, and supplemented by Miss Knowles, a guest of Mrs. Brookes, a female of uncertain age whose pettish ways furnish lots of fun, complete the personnel of the party, save the chauffeur of one of the autos who proves himself the black sheep. He is a real ass, as Dorothy's beautiful colie and the word picture depicting the dog, securely bound with thorns, the vivisectionists' knife gleaming above him, is thrilling in its intensity.
A story within the story is brought out through lost baby Bab, who gives Ned a chance to prove himself a hero and is the main factor in bringing together again the absent minded professor and Miss Knowles, the sweetheart of his younger days.
Ned and Dorothy collaborate in a drama to be presented the last night of the outing and one sees with prophetic eye the embryonic nucleus of Dorothy's wooing.
The publishers are to be congratulated upon their work, the handsome binding and the clear type prove a perfect setting for the jewel within. The illustrations are especially apt and pleasing. They were made by the artist who illustrated Miss Alcott's books. His pencil has kept pace with the changes of the times.

PECULIAR FIRE.

Box 68 was sounded Monday morning for one of the queerest fires that the fire department has ever been called to contend with. On Woodward street, Newton Highlands, the street department in repairing the road and a large tank on wheels is used for spraying hot tar over the street. A fire is maintained under this tank to keep the tar at the desired temperature, and in some manner the flames communicated with the tar. Thick black smoke rolled up and the workmen made haste to unhitch the house from the burning wagon. The place is near one of the engine houses and the fire was put out with chemicals.

OUR EXCHANGES.

We have heard and many times have read the statistics brought out by temperance orators, writers and others of the cost to the government of the one and women confined in corrective institutions and asylums as a result of drink. While the figures are impressive they really do not convey any adequate impression, such as one receives upon a visit to one of the state institutions. A few days ago we had the privilege of visiting the state farm at Bridgewater, where nearly 2500 state charges are housed, men and women sentenced for drunkenness, vagrancy and like misdemeanors, criminal insane and paupers. Though commendable effort is made at this particular institution to make the inmates partially self-supporting, one is astounded as he contemplates the tremendous amount of time, of energy, of money, involved in caring for these people; who might be producing something and saving something, instead of being a waste, a load for law-abiding and temperate citizens to bear. When we look upon the horrible examples there confined, of men bereft of reason and who while in the state of insanity have committed some awful crime—many of them homicide—and understand that 30 per cent of the insanity in the state of Massachusetts is the result of alcoholism, we wish that every citizen might go and see these things for himself, that he may decide for himself whether the liquor evil is something to be ignored, trifled with or temporized with, or left to women and clergymen to agitate or deal with.—Spencer Leader.

There is something so entirely unscrupulous about the average Democratic politician when discussing the tariff that it is hard to tell what special form his misrepresentation will next take. He appeals to the unthinking voter using as his basis that the Payne-Aldrich tariff is responsible for the high cost of everything from pins to automobiles and from potatoes to champagne. The voter knows he is paying more for almost everything he uses and there his knowledge ends. He has no copy of the tariff law to study and thinks the Democratic speaker is telling the truth. As a matter of fact there is scarcely a thing which enters into the daily life of the average man on which there has been a duty where that duty has not been decreased. If the tariff governed the cost the working man should pay less for nearly every item that enters into his household expenditure. On food stuffs of almost all kinds, on lumber and on the hides his boot and shoes are made of the tariff has been materially reduced or entirely removed as he can easily ascertain by referring to the tariff law. The trouble is too many voters take all these things on somebody's say so. If they did more thinking or more personal seeking for facts the Democratic party would be shorn of much of its strength.—Walton Price Press Tribune.

DIES AFTER WALK ON BEACH.

A receipt for a ton of coal was the clue by which the Revere police discovered the identity of Mrs. Margaret Jones, a Newton woman, who died suddenly at the Merriwa cottage on the boulevard at Revere, Tuesday night. Mrs. Jones was 72 years of age, and is the wife of Edward Jones of 15 Jones court, Newton.
The woman, who had been at the cottage but a few days, took a walk along the beach that afternoon. Upon her return she complained of feeling ill and within a few moments died. Mrs. Jones was born in Ireland. Her husband is an invalid. Last December he fell down a flight of stairs and sustained a compound fracture of the skull. She is survived also by two sons, Thomas, a letter carrier at Auburndale, and James D., assistant station agent at Newton.

We make a specialty of having in stock room hangings to match many of our papers. By coming to us you can arrange a room exceedingly attractive at a minimum cost.
We insist that all our goods shall be fairly represented, and any purchase made from our stores is guaranteed to be just what we said it was.

VALUATION URGED

BY CITY SOLICITOR SLOCUM AS BASIS FOR METROPOLITAN PARK ASSESSMENTS

The following extracts from the brief filed by City Solicitor Slocum with the commission to determine the apportionment of Metropolitan Park assessments for the ensuing five years, is of interest to taxpayers of this city:

The Metropolitan Parks in Newton are those in the Charles River Reservation between Watertown and Newton Upper Falls.

Of these a considerable portion of the aggregate acreage was contributed by the city of Newton from land already acquired at its expense for public parks.

No roadways or boulevards have been constructed in the city under the Metropolitan Park acts.

The city has itself at a great expense constructed boulevards across its whole length from east to west which are used as a part of the Metropolitan Park system of boulevards, have been recognized by it, and connect with the Charles River Reservations.

These boulevards are as follows: First, Commonwealth avenue, an extension of Commonwealth avenue in the city of Boston, extending through the whole length of the city of Newton from the Boston line to the Metropolitan Park Reservation at the Charles River. It is from 120 to 140 feet in width, with sidewalks, two roadways, a reserved space in the center, and a street railway, Commonwealth Avenue Street Railway.

Second, Boylston street boulevard, extending from the Brookline line to the Charles River at the Hemlock Gorge, a part of the Metropolitan Park system, and connecting it with the rest of the district. It is 90 feet in width, 3 and 16-100 miles long, has sidewalks, two roadways, and a reserved space in the center, and a street railway, the Boston & Worcester. Its cost was approximately $155,069.12.

Third, the street railway, Commonwealth Avenue Street Railway, its length is 5 and 54-100 miles, and its total cost $590,177.77.

Fourth, the street railway, Commonwealth Avenue Street Railway, its length is 5 and 54-100 miles, and its total cost $590,177.77.

From this it is apparent that the taxpayers of Town B pay at a higher rate than the taxpayers of Town A.

It is evident from the foregoing statements that the burden of these with all other assessments fall upon the taxpayers.

It is evident that if the Metropolitan assessments are laid upon any other basis than valuation some taxpayers will be relieved at the expense of others.

Any valuation from the basis of valuation will produce inequality of burden and the taxpayers of some cities and towns will suffer.

The method of apportionment according to valuation is the usual and accepted one in bearing public burdens. It has the sanction of precedent and authority.

The commission of 1905 made the apportionment on the basis of valuation.

The several commissions to apportion the assessments for interest and sinking fund of the Metropolitan sewers made their apportionment on the basis of valuation.

Finally, the Legislature in the case of Metropolitan sewers fixed the basis of apportionment upon valuation so far as relates to interest and sinking fund requirements.

For an illustration of this method of assessing see Revised Laws, Chap. 42, Sections 4 to 8, where schools are maintained jointly by two or more towns.

The proportion to be paid by each town is according to its proportion of the county tax.

County taxes are apportioned according to valuation established every three years by the Legislature.

The district is a unit both geographically, socially and politically.

It should be treated as a unit in making assessments.

By Statute of 1892, Chap. 407, Sect. 3, cited, a territorial district has been created called the Metropolitan Parks District.

The government of the district is vested in the Metropolitan Park Commission so far as the purposes of the act are concerned.

It is a quasi corporation.

The purpose of this district is to acquire, maintain, and make available to the inhabitants of the district open spaces for exercise and recreation.

It is for all the inhabitants of the district.

The ground upon which public parks may be created is for the public health, convenience and welfare.

This district exists as a whole regardless of municipal lines. It is like school district, counties, etc.

2. The proportion of each city and town will be levied and collected by means of a state tax upon the inhabitants of the district according to valuation. Valuation is the ultimate basis upon which the payments will be made.

3. If any other method of apportionment is fixed there will be a distortion from the ultimate method in which the tax will be levied, and certain of the cities or towns will lose to the gain of others, and others will gain. The only excuse for making any change whatever from the basis of valuation is that some city or town is getting a benefit beyond the others and therefore ought to pay more, or that some city or town is losing and therefore ought to pay less.

The apportionment on parks should be so that every one thousand dollars of taxable property throughout the district, regardless of municipal lines, should bear an equal share of the burden.

The suggested proposition that part of the assessment should be apportioned according to population would not be just and equitable.

It would be difficult to say that any assessment upon the several cities and towns according to population would coincide with any actual user of the reservations. In fact the user in many cases is by thousands who are not dwellers in the district. This is particularly so in the case of Nantasket Beach and adjacent lands and waters where the taking was in

Total for the district, $100,000
Town A has a population of 10,000
Town B has a population of 5,000
Town C has a population of 15,000

It is proposed to raise $5000 as follows:

$3000 on valuation, being 60 per cent.
$2000 on population, being 40 per cent.

Town A pays on valuation, 75 per cent of 60 per cent plus on population 67 per cent of 40 per cent, amounting to 72 per cent.

Town B pays on valuation, 25 per cent of 60 per cent plus on population 33 per cent of 40 per cent, amounting to 28 per cent.

Town C pays on valuation, 75 per cent of 60 per cent plus on population 67 per cent of 40 per cent, amounting to 72 per cent.

Total amount to be raised $5,000
In the former problem
Town A paid on the basis of valuation, $3,750
Town B paid on the basis of valuation, 1,250

Total, $5,000
To determine the rate in Town A divide the amount to be raised by it, $3,000, by the total valuation of the town, $75,000, makes the rate, .04.

In Town B divide the amount to be raised by it, $1,400, by the total valuation of the town, $25,000, makes the rate, .056.

In the first problem the rate in Town A was .04
In the second problem, where the population is an element, the rate was .048.

In the first problem the rate in Town B was .056
In the second problem, where the population is an element, the rate was .056.

From this it is apparent that the taxpayers of Town B pay at a higher rate than the taxpayers of Town A.

It is evident from the foregoing statements that the burden of these with all other assessments fall upon the taxpayers.

the name and for the benefit of the Commonwealth and the user is by the people of the Commonwealth.

The burden is upon the Metropolitan Park District and should be borne like other public burdens on the basis of valuation.

The same applies to Revere Beach, where the taking was in the name and for the benefit of the Commonwealth and the user is by a vast number outside the district.

The illustrations already given show that any change from valuation imposes an additional burden on taxpayers in some cities and towns and relieves other taxpayers at their expense.

The city of Boston contends that they are entitled to consideration on account of their own park system.

It is evident that if allowance is to be made for provisions for such systems that there are other cities and towns which have spent just as much, if not more, in proportion to their valuation, as the city of Boston.

Moreover, the city of Boston has already had consideration in the previous acts of the Legislature by which it was assessed not more than 50 per cent.

The last apportionment was upon all the cities and towns of the district according to valuation, and it appears by that apportionment that the share of the city of Boston was 62 per cent.

This would make approximately an amount equal to 12 per cent of which the city of Boston was relieved and which was placed as a burden upon the other cities and towns.

For the reason for this allowance see the Boston Metropolitan Park report for 1893:

"Finally, it will be observed that during the first five years of the existence of the proposed Metropolitan Parks district the proportion of the total expense which may be incurred in the case of Boston arbitrarily fixed at one-half of the whole, leaving the other half to be apportioned among the cities and towns of the district other than Boston. Fifty per cent of the whole would be unquestionably less than the proportion allotted to Boston on a division based upon either valuation or population; but, on the other hand, the commission in fixing this arbitrary allotment had in mind the fact that Boston has already incurred, or is now incurring, an expense of some $11,000,000 in developing a system of parks at its own cost, which are free to the whole Metropolitan district."

It may be questioned whether the last clause, "free to the whole Metropolitan district," is true.

The city of Boston through its Mayor and park commission is now seeking to exclude from its public parks a large proportion of the travel therein.

Note—Its passage of an ordinance to exclude automobiles from those parts of its park system which are especially related to and connect with the highways in adjacent cities and towns.

Attention is also called to the fact that the Charles River Basin has since the last apportionment been constructed and opened as a great public park in the heart of the city of Boston from which it derives and will continue to derive more benefit than all the rest of the district.

The valuation of the real and personal estate of the city of Boston is $1,420,981,033
The valuation of all the rest of the district is only, 917,410,615

Total for the district, $2,338,391,648
To make an apportionment which would favor the city of Boston would greatly and unjustly increase the burden upon the other taxpayers of the district.

Roadways and Boulevards.
Statute of 1894, Chapter 288, before cited, provides that the Metropolitan Park Commission is authorized to connect any road, park, way or other public open space with any part of the cities or towns in the Metropolitan Parks district under its jurisdiction by a suitable roadway or boulevard.

In section eight of the same chapter it is provided that one-half of the amount for interest and sinking fund requirements, one-half the amount for care and maintenance, one-half the amount for office and running expenses of the board, and one-half the deficiency is to be apportioned upon the district; the remaining one-half is to be paid by the Commonwealth.

It is submitted that a portion of the one-half to be apportioned upon the district should be assessed upon cities and towns in which such roadways and boulevards are constructed.

In the last apportionment 37 1-2 per cent was assessed upon the district, 12 1-2 per cent on cities and towns benefiting by the presence of such ways within their limits, and 50 per cent was paid by the Commonwealth.

The reason for attempting a special apportionment in the case of parkways and boulevards is that they are in legislative contemplation and actually a part of the highway system of the state and take the place of ways which otherwise public convenience and necessity require, and to this extent relieve the municipalities of the expense of constructing and maintaining highways.

THE MODERN CHURCH

RECENT SERMON BY REV. HARRY LUTZ PASTOR OF CHANNING CHURCH

"The church of the living God, the pillar and stay of truth." (1 Tim. 3:15). The church is today, as never before, searchingly questioned by the popular mind; as to its usefulness to the modern world and its continuance. This is due to the rapid changes in religious ideas and the prominence of the social issues. Whatever be our conviction or feeling in regard to the matter, it is worth while—indeed we ought—to candidly consider the issue it presents.

The church is weighed in the balance of a greatly varied, but thoroughly earnest, criticism; not to be ignored or lightly brushed aside. Inevitably on the wall of stern fact the handwriting of the church reads: "Thou art weighed in the balances." Of this there is no question. All thoughtful persons read it alike.

There is also the clamorous cry from many quarters today, that under it is to be seen written the judgment: "And thou art found wanting." But, of this there is question. All do not see this written in fact. We are not ready to admit the judgment. Yet, the sincere and earnest claim of well-meaning people that they see it, "must give us pause" for serious consideration. Is it written there, and some of us yet blind that we do not see it? Or, is it an imaginative illusion resulting from a partial consideration or a mistaking of the essential nature of the church and the real conditions of its service to the world-life?

All critical or sympathetic judgments should, first of all, be submitted to this questioning: whence come they? From a fair consideration of all the facts as to the church's real nature and purpose? From half-truths and one-sided views? From biased opinion of dogmatic interest?

These questions suggest the many elements involved in any judgment. We learn much from theories and opinions of well-meaning, intelligent people. We may learn much more about them, when we look into the persons themselves; and observe the elements of personality, the motives, interests and objects from which the ideas and opinions spring. Just so in the judgment of the church, in the underlying reasons for letting in certain elements, and in what is left out; may be found the very matters that are most vital to the consideration, and turn the scale of judgment to "found wanting" or "not wanting."

This way of looking into things is of practical value to every one today, when the church is on trial before the popular mind, with multitudinous advocates for and against, pleading from platform, pulpit, college chair, library, periodical, daily press and current conversation. For, we do not want to make the mistake of standing for the church if it is found wanting; and it is fatal to our human integrity to accept a judgment that some thing is written, without careful consideration of the particular elements involved in the claim; and also, of all the elements that ought to be regarded. Neither is it good for sound thinking or moral wholeness to simply assert the favorable judgment and ignore the trial with its cross-questioning.

The best for us, as in all matters, is to fairly meet the most searching questions, and candidly accept their rightful issue. If the church fails in the test, we ought not to wish its perpetuation. If it stands the utmost trial—and we believe it will—it will be the stronger for it. And, more important still, the issue of conclusion will indicate to us what we ought to do about it.

Has the church a mission to the modern world? This answer depends upon what the church is. Just what is meant by the church, when this question is asked. For the most part, of course, the discussion of the church and its mission or failure, assumes it to mean what the historic Christian Church has defined itself to be. It has claimed to be the one supernatural agency of the religious life, founded by the god-man, and perpetuated by apostolic succession—with sole authority to teach the truth, state the doctrine, order the conduct of people and nations, and provide the one way whereby fallen humanity may be saved.

The Renaissance of learning and thought brought on the Reformation, which divided the historic church into multiform sects. But the Protestant sects were soon driven by the stress of argumentative controversy to depart from the logic of their first thought, and took refuge again in creeds and supernatural authority. And there they have rested, with essentially the same idea of the church: as the one agency for reconciling an offended God and rebellious man—providing the only way, by sacrificial atonement, for the salvation of the totally depraved human race.

With this idea of itself, the Christian Church is no longer able to defend against the adverse criticism of the times. It is weighed in the balance of rational thought, and against it on the wall of modern-world-intelligence, is unmistakably written: "Thou art found wanting."

Shall we, then, let this judgment stand approved as final, since it is found true according to the historic church's own idea of itself? No! That would be to fall into another error as bad, perhaps worse than the first. For that would prove us recreant to the real truth of things. The church may have been mistaken in its definition of itself; and, though the centuries, may have been something far better than it thought it was. And, indeed, is not this precisely what we find to be the fact?

When we thoughtfully review the beginnings and course of historic Christianity, it clearly appears, that its assumption of ecclesiastical and credal authority, which long held the lives and destinies of people in imperial sway, was, in fact, utterly foreign to its real nature and purpose. So it is: the passing of traditional authority and credal theology before the light of modern thought does not affect the real nature and work of the church. It is only compelled to stand on its own historic definition of itself, and return to its essential nature and purpose.

We need to clearly separate in our thought: the assumed authority and creeds, from the actual institution. Without fear of any loss, but rather with a sense of gain, we may let the judgment against authority and creeds stand as "found wanting." We may still hold to the real institution. For, thus far, no convincing case has been made against it. On the other hand, it is only in the light of recent thought coming to a full appreciation of its worth and service.

This situation, which modern rational thought compels, is, of course, embarrassing to sects with creeds. The fantastical attempts to put new meaning into out-of-date words, are almost pathetic, at times, in their desperation to satisfy honest thinking. Yet, in them we read a hopeful sign. The real situation is recognized. The new meaning is coming to acceptance. The out-of-date words can be left for time to efface.

The liberal sects, which came into being by departing from traditional authority and creeds, are not so embarrassed by the situation. We, of this way of thinking, are fortunately placed beyond the need of justifying our faith by a defence of ancient dogmas. We dismiss them, as incidental outgrowths of variable conditions and experiences in the progress of Christian history; not essential to the church that was or now is.

What was the church in history? What is it today? It was not founded at a certain time, as has long been supposed. It simply and naturally grew out of the experiences of Jesus' followers, as a method of co-operation and mutual helpfulness in their religious life. It arose to meet the needs and exigencies of the time, and grew with the historic progress of Christianity.

At first there were the little groups of Jesus' followers, brought together by common interest and devotion to him. The stressful opposition only bound them closer together. Expediency led them at length to appoint leaders or elders. These came to influence over others; and, quite naturally, to powers of administration of worship and direction of affairs. At length these groups came to be called "churches." What they really were is indicated by the Greek word for church—ekklesia—which means "a company."

It was a natural embodiment of the social nature of religion. The company of believers together could do for each individual more than he could do by himself to realize his own personal religious-life. Paul likened it to the human body: "Now are they many members, yet but one body." The individuals were the members, each with a certain function to perform; for its own health, the welfare of the others, and the wholeness of the body—the company; and each in turn dependent for its best life and service on the soundness and right activity of the body or company.

Is not this apostolic description of the early church precisely what it is today? It is a company of people united in the endeavor to realize the higher spiritual life, in love to God and service of man. Organization and system are needful for its efficient activity. These take form according to local conditions and temperaments of people composing them. They take names from their several traditions and forms of habit.

We are now ready to use the word church in a broader sense than heretofore. It is limited to no certain sect or religion. Whatever be its form or name, a church is a company of people looking to the higher spiritual reality, and seeking to attain it in personal living. The Church Universal embraces all the companies in the great world-wide community of seekers after the clearer light of life and destiny. By whatever name the supreme being may be known by each or any, it is: "The church of the living God, the pillar and stay of truth." (1 Tim. 3:15).

As Samuel Longfellow has expressed it:

"One holy Church of God appears Through every age and race, Unchanged by the lapse of years, Unchanged by changing place."

(Hymn 190.) This is what the church has actually been, even when it thought otherwise. This is what it now is, unchanged by time and place. To further question its mission and service to modern times, is to admit that the human life has reached the summit of attainment, and needs look no higher. Are we ready to admit that? No! comes the prompt response of all thoughtful minds.

However high the plain modern life has attained, there is yet the need of higher things. The church grew out of that very need. However noble service is being rendered by man to modern times, yet more can be wrought for the higher life of people by the company effort. The church is established, on just such service. It stands today, as ever, on its helpfulness to realize the higher personal life; the need of which is certainly just as real as in any time past, though it may not be so generally or so keenly felt.

Difficulties as to the mission of the church to modern times, are, in reality, then, on the concept of satisfaction with the present; that feels no need of better, and sees no use in an institution to help attain it. Is not this a rather questionable state of mind to be found in? Is not the doubter of the mission of the church to modern times rather more to be doubted than the church? Certainly this is to be thoughtfully considered. If all people felt the need of further life improvement, would not the question as to the church—which grew out of this very need and to serve this very end—be put to silence; and no more be heard or read?

The hopeful side of this matter is seen in the fact: that there are many people who are not satisfied with what they are. They feel the need of cultivating a higher life, and desire the helpfulness of the institution that exists to serve that very purpose; and, there are more who may and will come to feel and see it. The church as an institution stands today upon this very fact—the firm foundation of reality in human life.

Yet there are practical questions as to its continuance and rightful service. For this will proceed, not alone by what people do for it, but much more by what people will permit it to do for them. People do not exist for the church. The church exists for the people. It is not a fixed institution, once and forever established in perfect form, to which the world-life is to return. It is a progressive organization of the highest, finest ideals of life. It is to keep abreast with advancing world thought, catch the vision of noblest souls, adjust its form and activities to the changing conditions in accord with its surer leadership and finer service to all mankind.

The purpose of the church and its work is life education. It is the University of The Higher Life. Its ministry is not a calling, but a profession. Just like that of the schools, colleges and other institutions for life improvement, its service is of actual, immediate, intrinsic value. Personal allegiance to it is not based on certain mystical revelation or scheme of salvation, tradition or sentiment; but, like all other institutions, on the worth of its service to human life. It will cease to be when it ceases to serve.

It is well for us to answer in our thinking, just what is the distinctive function and service of the church? In these modern times there are all manner and sorts of organized agencies and institutions for the physical, intellectual, moral, social and civic welfare and betterment. Many of them have taken up activities that formerly were carried on by the church; and, oftentimes, are doing them better and more efficiently than the church did. We rejoice in them; for they all make for human advancement. They are so splendid and so useful that some suppose they have entirely usurped the service of the church and left it useless. But have they?

They provide for the health, nurture and cultivation of the physical, mental, moral, social and civic life of people. But there is in the constitution of human personality more than these elements. They do not comprehend all of what one is. There is also that element or quality, we call religion, that is above all else, and that powers that are commendable to the sincere desire and devout endeavor. This, too, needs quickening and cultivation. As the body and the mind, so also the spirit needs food, nourishment, discipline and exercise. Where is there any agency of modern civilization that provides for this need, but the church? This, indeed, is its special function. Its service is to the spirit of man; which, though intangible and not so easily noted, is no less real than the body, the mind, the moral sense, the social and civic relation. It is, indeed, the most real part of him. For it is precisely this distinguishes him from the animal, makes him man, and exalts him above all else in the world. The church, which exists especially for the quickening, enlightenment and development of the prime element of life—the real man—fulfills the part in human economy of supreme importance in any age or place.

In the performance of its task the church will keep in sympathetic touch and co-operation with all agencies for human welfare and betterment. It will comprehend the best results of all these and their worth to human life; and then awaken, inspire, enlighten, and lead forth the powers of the spirit which unifies them in personality, and bears all forward and upward to the finer uses, nobler achievements and destiny in the ways of God and immortality.

The church must keep abreast with the changes that are wrought. Its active ministry must adapt itself to the new wants and aspirations as they arise. Religion is relative to the conditions and life of the time, like morals, philosophy, sociology and industry. But, as was well said: (The Baltimore American) "While this is true, it would have neither strength nor character, if it were not fundamental as well as environmental." It has its central cause as well as its circumference; it has its ideals as well as its efforts; it is doing as much for the world by bringing about solidarity in the essentials of human living as it is in its ministrations to the passing wants of the time.

The church must feel no alarm for its life because of the clamorous call for its alliance with this and that organized activity for reform and social betterment. To waver from its prime service to the enduring facts of the religious life would certainly fail to commend it to the respect of fair-minded people, and render it powerless to aid human society. It best serves all when it serves its true to its own task. Only thus can it permanently command the respect of the individual, hold his interest upon the essentials of the human spirit, and serve its uses as a university of the higher life.

We come again to the practical question: just how is the church going to proceed in its true service to the higher life? Let us think what a church is. It is not a building, a minister, a pulpit, or pews. It is a company. It is people. This brings the whole matter at last to the individuals who compose it. The collective procedure will depend upon individual interest and action. The church is powerless to serve, except for the individuals who put forth co-operative effort in its service calls for the loyalty and devotion of each, to the institution and the ideal ends of being to which its ministrations point the vision, desire and endeavor.

How begin to do this? First put ourselves in the range of its service to us. Like the school or college, it cannot do much for us in our absence or absence. Neither does the church thrive on absent treatment.

It serves all who are constant and true to the way in which all may serve each. This way opens through the interested attention, the inquiring mind, the alert sensibilities, the pray-

In the saving of time, trouble and labor and in superior cooking ability, no other range can compare with them.

The Single Damper (patented) is the only perfect fire and oven control; one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," and the range does the rest.

The Two Hods in the base (patented) is a wonderful trouble-saving feature. One Hod for ashes, instead of the old, clumsy ash pan; the other Hod for coal.

The Oven with its cup-joint flues is heated all over alike; no "cold corners," no "scorching spots."

erful spirit, and the receptive heart. Open this way with a decision of the will—the only way it can be manfully done. The resort to attractions, sensational preaching, famous orators, or to method, as Prof. Shaller Matthews says, of inserting religion between stereotyped slides, as expedients for opening this way for people, only amuses them—profitably perhaps—but does not actually open the way.

Open this way, as becomes the dignity of man by intelligent choice and resolute will, and through it will come surging the unseen powers to thrill him with new life and interest in all that is good and true. He feels now an intensity of devotion to the church as a means to the higher life. It becomes a joy to him. He talks about it to his friends. "It is my church," he says, "it helps me to be a man, and appreciate the good of life." It speaks as enthusiastically in his praises of it as he does of his club, his lodge or his party. He makes it popular; so much so that people do not feel they are well-informed without they take notice of what the church is doing. Everywhere he goes he is charging the atmosphere of the church with the suggestion that: the church is a real benefit, the religious life is worth cultivating, the higher life is the only real manly one; and selfishness, greed for material advantage, dilatory self-indulgence, sluggish indifference and misdoing are disreputable. He does not stand by and say: "You ought to go to church." It will do you good." But he says: "I go, and it does me good. I want to share the good of it with everybody. Come with me." This is discharges into the community atmosphere the magnetic suggestive energy that takes hold of the popular attention; and seeing the good fruit of the religious spirit, people will desire it.

This is the method of success in the various activities of the world-life—shall it not be employed impersonating the prime element of life—the abiding things of the human spirit—by the church? The minister cannot do this work alone. The church falls short of its real service in proportion as it leaves it to him. He can only do his part. However well he may do it, the effect may be arrested by inertia in the pews and dissipated to an aspect of unimportance shown to the community life. Its power is put forth only through people who compose it. When each with a will, interested attention, alert spirit and receptive heart, puts himself in the way of its finest service to him, then, to the common life—by the way he regards it—it presents an aspect of genuine worth and importance. He opens up lines through which flow currents of interest in life improvement.

Faith from these faithful go the wireless messages of good will—unseen impulses of spirit energy—not to be lost in empty air of unreality, or confused with the diversity of latter-day interests—but will be caught by the higher towers of human sympathy; and in the quiet chambers of the inner life will be registered, by the sensitive instrument of man's real self.

And more, we must believe; the essential goodness of the human heart responds to that message, and returns the answer of good will and vital interest. Thus will the church fulfill its mission to the world-life, put forth its powers, and serve its high intent; in proportion as each of its ones singly, and all of its ones collectively, dare be true to it and faithful.

It matters but little what particular forms are retained. It matters very little by what name we be known. But it matters much; that we keep the windows of worshipful desire open to the sky of our real life as children of the highest; that we live in the upper region of our nature—on the heights of will divine—from whence we glimpse the abiding realities stretching out beyond, in which even death appears to be only a passing incident in the endless career of the human personality; on whose ever receding horizon arises the brightening glory of pure being.

Something New for Newton

When we consider the increase in the cost of living one makes no mistakes when they read and keep in touch with improvement.

Do you know what the DAVIS HOME CURED HAM AND BACON means? It means your grandfather's process. It means the kind he cured upon the farm fifty years ago, and smoked in the flour barrel in the back yard. It means the kind you don't have to soak over night, or parboil to extract the salt. Everybody knows that most ham is dry, tough, salt and hard, making one drink all the afternoon or chew pepain gum to avoid indigestion. These are facts you cannot dispute. Now we ask every reader of these lines to visit

IRVING & WHELDON, Newton
PRESCOTT & BURNHAM,
West Newton.

E. McHALE, Waban.

Look at the DAVIS HAMS with their clean golden color. You can tell them by their color, if not by their brand, as all hams from our establishment are branded "DAVIS." We have the only establishment in New England, and we think in the United States, that is operated under United States Inspection, and making a specialty of home cured products from the farm in Cavendish, Vt., in the heart of the Green Mountains. But we have dealt out to consumers of that state an article that is by all acknowledged as superior to anything in its line. We might fill columns with testimonials, but you cannot eat testimonials. Proof of the pudding is in the eating. GET ONE, TRY IT, and you won't change. If you like it, keep buying it. If you think you might get fooled by so doing, ask your Vermont friends. Next week we will tell you of our Home raised lard.

An aspirant for the office of Mayor of this city recently said in my presence that if he ever was elected to that office, one of the first things he would do would be to discharge one of the most valuable and important officials of the city. This attitude would not be of much consequence under the present city charter, as the Board of Aldermen have an opportunity to pass on removals from office and to decide whether such action is for the best interests of the city. But if by any chance the proposed amendment should be adopted next November giving the Mayor absolute power in these cases, it is possible for the city to seriously suffer by the personal whims of the person occupying the office of Mayor. To those scoffers who assert that Newton would never choose a Mayor who would so act, reference should be made to the election in December, 1899, and the narrow margin of less than 150 votes by which the city escaped from a bad political situation. The present method has stood the test of nearly 30 years of good city municipal administration. WHY CHANGE?

A life long Republican, affected by the political unrest of the present fall, declared the other day that he would vote the Democratic ticket, if Bal-linger did not get out of the President's cabinet. I am aware that his attitude is typical of many others, but a moment's reflection ought to show any fair-minded man that it is most unjust to visit upon Governor Draper all the sins of the party in national affairs. It would be the same as whipping your son for something your daughter had committed. And when you come to think of it more carefully, Governor Draper doesn't deserve any punishment, rather the reverse. He has given Massachusetts its best administration of affairs for many years; he has turned the Commonwealth Dock property into a splendid income producer for the state; he has made good appointments to office and he has carried on the state's affairs with wisdom and economy. Why should he be the political "goat" for the emotions which Lodge, Taft, Roosevelt and Ballinger seem to arouse. WHY CHANGE?

An anonymous letter requests the editor to write a "strong" article relative to the increase in the size of classes at the Newton High School, due to the appropriation which the aldermen have indicated they intend to make this coming fall. As the editor of the Graphic has expressed his opinion many times on this matter, it is perhaps needless to again state that the Graphic heartily endorses the position of a minority of the aldermen who desired a still further cut in the appropriations, based on the fact that the size of the classes was too small for the financial condition of the city.

The state primaries of both political parties will be held next Tuesday afternoon. This statement is made, not in the hope of increasing the size of the vote, but simply as a matter of fact. While other districts are having warm contests for nomination of representatives and delegates, Newton continues to manifest a supineness towards political affairs, which is not at all to its credit for intelligence. The fact that the probable nominees of the Republican party here are mostly entitled to re-nomination is the sole excuse for present year indifference.

Fruit thieves are as numerous this fall as ever, and it is almost impossible for land owners to grow fruit or grapes and receive the benefit themselves. The thieves not only do not wait for the fruit to ripen but sadly injure the trees and vines as well. The heaviest sentence the law allows should be given every captured thief of this character and it is a serious omission in our code of laws to shield the small boy from the effects of such unlawful acts.

DOG CLIMBS TREE.

A dog climbing a tree was the rather unusual sight witnessed yesterday by residents of Hunnewell Hill. An Alredale terrier in hot pursuit of a cat which had climbed into a large apple tree near Hunnewell avenue, made a flying jump into the crotch of the tree about five feet from the ground, and as the limbs were fairly large and nearly horizontal the dog stood in the tree some minutes looking out to the end of the branches and looked at the cat, which had made a safe refuge in the top of the tree. When ready, the terrier came down to the main crotch of the tree and jumped to the ground.

A DISTINCTIVE NUMBER.

Always of unvarying interest, next Saturday's (Oct. 1) edition of the Boston Evening Transcript will be read by thousands of persons with gratification and benefit because of the many specially written articles on a variety of subjects which will be printed. One topic, "The Farm on the Edge of Town," will appeal to many who enjoy semi-rural life. Other articles of particular interest to real estate owners, investors and builders are "Growth of the Bungalow," "Great Increase in Number of Building Lot Owners," "Increasing Demand for Country Estates," "Review of Building Materials Market," etc.

Anyone who has city, suburban, country or seashore real estate, houses or farms anywhere in New England to dispose of will find it advantageous to advertise in next Saturday's Boston Transcript as it will have an exceedingly wide distribution.

Many people who are not regular readers always look in the Transcript when they need a house, apartment, board or room, for they know that the largest lists of the better offerings are printed there as well as the "want" advertisements of especially capable business assistants and good servants.

LASELL OPENS.

With an enrollment of 190 pupils, all that the school can accommodate, Lasell Seminary opened yesterday for its 60th year, and the third year under the direction of Dr. Guy M. Winslow, the principal. For several days the girls had been arriving from all parts of the country and class work was started this morning.

Following the usual custom Dr. Winslow took part of the pupils for a launch trip along the Charles River Wednesday afternoon and another was taken yesterday.

A number of additions have been made to the teaching staff, and an important change is the establishing of the office of director of the music department. This appointment was given Henry Dunham of Brookline, who is connected with the New England Conservatory of Music, and has been organ instructor at Lasell. George Dunham will teach piano playing.

Miss Ethel Chapman of Sutton, Vt., is a new teacher in the English department, and Miss Roxanna Tuttle of Lynn will teach household economics, the additions being made necessary by the growth of these departments.

Miss Ethel Woodbridge of Melrose will replace Mrs. Miriam Loomis as head of the cooking department. Mrs. Loomis will enjoy a year of rest.

Prof. Morganthaler will be in charge of Hawthorne house, one of the outside dormitories.

MR. BENTLEY DEAD.

Mr. John P. Bentley, a resident of Elliot for the past five years, died at his home on Bradford road last Monday at the age of 42 years. Mr. Bentley was born in England and was engaged in business in Boston as a note broker. He is survived by a widow and one son. Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at his late home, in charge of Rev. Albert N. Slayton, rector of St. Paul's Church, of which Mr. Bentley was a member. The pall bearers were Messrs. James Pembroke, Winthrop G. Norris, Charles Cousins and Dr. H. W. Guller, all of Newton Highlands. The interment was at Newton Cemetery.

—The fine weather Sunday brought out a large number of canoeists on the Charles River. At Riverside, two boys were upset from a canoe near the float at the Norumbega boat house and two others fell off the float at the boys' bath house near Long bridge. All the boys were saved from drowning.

—The first meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society for the season was held Wednesday afternoon in the chapel of the Congregational Church. Miss Allen, a missionary from Turkey, led the meeting and several other missionaries made addresses descriptive of their work in foreign lands.

ALBEMARLE GOLF TOURNAMENT.

The Albemarle Golf Club will hold an open tournament next Friday and Saturday with prizes for best gross, best net, and second best net scores. Mr. William Hickox is chairman of the tournament committee and all members of the Massachusetts Golf Association are invited to enter.

WORTH CONSIDERING.

Governor Draper is not so fortunate as Mr. Roosevelt in respect to the impression that many have formed of his administration. Like Mr. Taft, he is a doer who never whoops it up. Because he vetoed the eight-hour bill certain persons have gone about the state branding him as the enemy of labor, and a good many people who ought to know better have got it into their heads that Governor Draper has never let a labor measure get by him. But the fact is that the eight-hour bill was the only so-called labor measure that he disapproved, and his action in this matter was solely due to his belief that the bill was wrong in fundamental principles. Because the Hopedale shops, operated by the Draper company, have not been unionized the impression has been created, and assiduously cultivated, that the Draper employees are badly treated, even oppressed, whereas it would be hard to find an industrial centre where conditions are more ideal from the standpoint of labor than in Hopedale.

The truth about Governor Draper's administration is this: He has discharged his duty without fear or favor. He has not considered the political consequences of any of his acts. A governor less honest and courageous might have signed the eight-hour bill in the belief that he would make votes for himself thereby, and if he chanced to be a manufacturer he might have unionized his shops for the political effect it would have. Labor is much more likely to get a square deal from a man like Draper who isn't afraid, than from a man who will take whatever side seems most likely to yield him political advantage.

Governor Draper has given to Massachusetts a clean-cut business administration, which challenges the closest scrutiny, but it is perhaps too much to hope that he will be judged with the fairness he deserves. These are days of political discontent and every sort of complaint, every grievance, real or imaginary, will be charged up against the Republican party. Give the dissatisfied voter a head to hit and he will hit it, even if it be that of his best friend. It will be very much to the credit of Massachusetts if it gives a manifestation of intelligent voting by re-electing Governor Draper next November.—Springfield Union.

BABY DRINKS BEER.

Pasquale Guzzi, a West Newton Italian, stated in court yesterday that 137 gallons of beer delivered to his house during August were for the sole use of his family and that his 2-year-old baby could drink two bottles at a time. In the police raid 30 gallons were found on the premises, and testimony showed that 78 men had visited the house one Sunday. Associate Judge Bacon found him guilty of maintaining a liquor nuisance and fined him $100, which he paid, after he had first appealed. On filing the appeal, Judge Bacon reconsidered the sentence and gave him three months in the House of Correction. This sentence raised a tearful protest from Mrs. Guzzi, who said she had seven children, then Judge Bacon reconsidered again and Guzzi sent his wife home for the money for the fine.

Pietro Toto, one of the three West Newton Italians whose houses were raided Sunday by the liquor squad, Monday morning was fined $100 for maintaining a liquor nuisance. He appealed, but finally paid $50 of the fine, Judge Kennedy allowing him until Oct. 12 to raise the remainder. Meanwhile he must furnish bail of $300. The police secured 25 gallons of beer and a gallon of port wine at Toto's house.

Boston Opera House—Crowded houses at the Boston Opera House prove the popularity of Ballo ever beautiful Bohemian Girl. The splendid scenic production and the many excellent features introduced by Milton and Sargent Aborn call forth the enthusiasm of the audience at every performance. The magnificent stage of the Boston Opera House, equipped with every device of modern stage craft, is especially suited for a production of the splendor and magnitude with which Messrs. Aborn have invested the Parisian version of the opera. One hundred and fifty people are numbered in the company, and the leading parts are in the hands of some of the best known artists in the field of light and grand opera. A troupe of Arabs in gymnastic evolutions are greeted with tremendous applause at every performance.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Democratic attempt to place the referendum for direct nomination for Senator on the state ballot in this district was not successful. The law requires something over 1300 signatures in the district and but 157 were filed, 110 from Newton, 47 from Natick and 10 from Watertown.

PROBATE COURT.
To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, creditors, and all other persons interested in the estate of Benjamin F. Olin, late of Newton in said County, deceased, intestate:

WHEREAS a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to M. Louise Fleu of Newton in the County of Middlesex, without giving a surety on her bond. You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the fourth day of October, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of September in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.
W. E. ROGERS, Register.

Notice is hereby given, that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator of the estate of Ellen M. Langford, late of Newton in the County of Middlesex, deceased, intestate, and has taken upon herself that trust by giving bond, as the law directs. All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same, and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Middlesex, ss.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of John E. Alden, late of Newton in said County, deceased:

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by John T. Alden and Arthur W. Blakemore, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the fifth day of October, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of September in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

FORT HILL 7600 RATE DEPARTMENT

WE are now ready to answer inquiries of present or prospective subscribers relative to the new rates. Call at 119 Milk Street, or 165 Tremont Street, Boston. Calls by telephone from any part of the Metropolitan or Suburban District to the "Rate Department," Fort Hill, 7600, may be made without charge.

In some exchanges, where construction work is well advanced, we shall be able shortly to take some subscribers at the new rates. In other exchanges however, we shall not be able to offer the new service until after November 1, as announced in our first bulletin.

Meanwhile, applications from new subscribers will be received, and if the new schedule cannot be made effective at once, such applications will be given service temporarily at the old rates.

MOTOR FETE.

Friends of the Deaconess Aid Society will enjoy an automobile trip next Thursday, Sept. 29, visiting America, Italy, Japan, Germany, Holland and England. The Deaconess Hospital, Deaconess road and Bellevue street, Brookline, will be America, and lunch will be served from 11:30 to 6 o'clock. The automobiles will visit residences in Brookline for Italy and Japan, that of Mrs. M. H. Whitney, Lincoln street, Newton Highlands, for Germany and Holland, and the Linsell Seminary, Auburndale, for England. The trip may begin at any of the stations. The round trip will be 50 cents and the proceeds will benefit the Deaconess Hospital. If stormy the trip will take place on the next pleasant day.

An unusually interesting recital has been planned by the Faelton Piano-forte School for next Thursday evening, Sept. 29, in Huntington Chambers Hall. The solo numbers will be played by Maxine Buck of Boston, Mary Washburn of Somerville, Alma Gerrish of Melrose Highlands and Charles C. Peering of Boston. The program will include concertos by Mozart and Weber. There will also be an overture by an ensemble class.

CENSUS FIGURES

A dispatch from Washington states that the 1910 population of this city is 39,806, a gain of 18.5 per cent over the national figures of 33,587 in 1900 and an increase of 2979 over the state figures of 36,827 in 1905, an increase of 8 per cent.

MR. GEORGE MAY DEAD.

Mr. George May, for 24 years a well known resident of Newton Highlands, died last week Thursday at the hospital at Hackensack, N. J., after an illness of three weeks with pneumonia. Mr. May was visiting his daughter at Englewood, N. J., when taken ill. He was born in West Fairlee, Vt., 75 years ago, and for over 25 years was cashier of the National Bank at St. Johnsbury, Vt. For the past 24 years he had been engaged in business as a public accountant and auditor. Mr. May has been prominent in the Newton Highlands Congregational Church, serving for some years as treasurer and for many years as a deacon. Mr. May also served the city as an assistant assessor for the past 14 years. He was a member of the Masonic order and while in St. Johnsbury was a Knight Templar. He is survived by a widow, three daughters, Mrs. Edward W. Wall of Englewood, N. J.; Mrs. J. C. Brown of Wiltshire, Kan.; Miss Mary W. May of Philadelphia, and one son, Mr. Kenneth S. May of Newton Highlands. Funeral services were held at the First Presbyterian Church, Hackensack, N. J., on Saturday, in charge of Rev. Robert Davis, a former resident of Newton. The remains were cremated and the ashes will be interred at Mr. May's former home in St. Johnsbury, Vt.

GERTRUDE ELLIOTT AS GLAD.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is truly a great play, in that it teaches a great lesson and fills the heart with the joy of life.

Glad has managed to get hold of something which helps her and helps others; she doesn't know what it is—that is, she can't explain it any more than Marconi can explain wireless telegraphy, but she demonstrates the fact that it is practicable. Wireless telegraphy and mental telepathy are much on the same order. Glad has reached the conclusion that things are never as bad as we think they are, therefore it must all be a mental condition. A case to the point is that of Sir Oliver Holt, who has everything heart can wish for in the way of worldly wealth and is the most miserable of mortals and wants to die, while Glad, who has often gone three whole days without a bite to eat, finds life full of interest.

This part of Glad is the one that proved the best that Eleanor Robson ever assumed in her brief but noteworthy career. When Miss Robson married August Belmont last spring and retired permanently from the stage the managers of "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" found themselves with a big success on their hands, but no one to play it. So they kept the cables busy and finally succeeded in persuading Miss Gertrude Elliott (Mrs. Forbes-Robertson), who scored a great triumph in the play in London, to come to this country to play the part. Miss Elliott opens her American tour in the play at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, on Oct. 3.

ZERO SCORE

—Newton High football team played its first game of the season Wednesday on Clafin Field with Needham High as its opponent. Neither team scored in four seven minute periods, both teams having had luck in the only try either had for a goal. Standwood, for Needham, missed a place-kick kick for goal by a few inches and Marshall for Newton had a drop kick miss goal by a foot.

In the second period Newton was on the way for a touchdown, working the ball to Needham's ten-yard line, when Quarterback Blue was detected pushing the runner. The penalty put Newton in a hole from which it could not recover.

The tackling of both teams was hard and clean. Forward passes and on-side kicks from all sorts of formations were sent away.

Dunn of Needham was disqualified for a flagrant case of roughing the kicker. Penalties were numerous for interference under kicks and forward passes within the 20-yard zone and pushing and bawling.

NEWTON CENTRE PLAYGROUND.

In the final tennis match for the championship cup for young men under 21 years of age, played last Saturday afternoon, Cary Moore defeated Elliot Whaley, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, 8-6. The ladies' championship tennis tournament is now being played.

The football tournament for boys of Newton Centre weighing under 100 pounds will start on Wednesday, Oct. 5, with Hustlers and the Bishop Gates teams.

The tournament for All-Newton, 130 pound teams will start on Saturday, Oct. 8. Schedule to be announced later.

Soccer football tournaments for boys under 13 years of age and for boys 13 years and over, will start during the week of Oct. 10. Enter teams as soon as possible with Frank D. Elchbauer, Director, at the Playground.

POLICE NOTES.

Arthur Brown of Lower Falls, who had previously paid two fines for stealing bicycles, was arraigned last Tuesday for the same offence, involving two bicycles, which were found hidden in the woods near the hospital. He was found guilty, but as he had added the police to recover the machines, Judge Kennedy placed him on probation until Dec. 17.

A Waltham boy who was arrested last week for stealing bicycles, watches, revolvers, etc., from the store of W. E. Tomlinson, West Newton, was committed to the State Industrial School at Shirley on Tuesday.

Gregorio Plati of Boston, who was arrested last week for soliciting orders for liquor in this city, was convicted Saturday morning on two counts and fined $65 on one, the other being continued until Feb. 4.

CITY HALL.

The marriage of Assistant City Clerk Frank M. Grant and Miss Gertrude M. Partridge, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Partridge of Newtonville, will take place at the Universalist Church, Newtonville, Oct. 15, at 8 o'clock.

NEW CORNER STONE

The corner stone of the new parish house of Centenary M. E. Church of Auburndale will be laid next Sunday morning at the close of the regular church service, at 11:30 o'clock. Bishop Willard F. Mallahan, who laid the corner stone of the church building 43 years ago, will be in charge and he will be assisted by the pastor, Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, Rev. Henry C. Sheldon of West Newton, Rev. W. J. Heath of Weston and Rev. Frank Sadler of Auburndale. The new building is on the church property on Central street and will contain a hall for Sunday school and social purposes. It will cost $6000, of which $5000 is already raised. Rev. Mr. Spaulding is chairman of the building committee and Mr. H. W. Greenleaf is chairman of the contract committee.

CITY HALL.

City Messenger Wellington returned Saturday from an enjoyable visit to his son in Baltimore. Street Commissioner Ross is in St. Louis attending the annual National Good Roads convention.

At a special meeting of the aldermen held Monday evening for the purpose of drawing jurors, the names of Albert H. Morrill of Pine Grove avenue and Frederick S. Sherman of Watertown street were drawn. Resolutions of sympathy for Vice-President Doherty were adopted. Chief Randlett of the fire department was elected a trustee of the relief fund of the Massachusetts Firemen's Association.

RAILWAY EARNINGS.

The earnings of the Boston street railway lines controlled by the Boston Suburban Electric companies for the month of August suffered somewhat from unfavorable weather conditions—the total income being $107,791, or $3729 less than for the corresponding month in 1909. As compared with July, however, they showed a gain of $5357, or 4.77 per cent. Reduced operating costs offset the decrease in gross income with the result that the net revenue amounted to $43,300, or $245 more than for August, 1909.

AMONG WOMEN.

The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will hold its first meeting of the season Thursday, Oct. 6, at 2:30 p. m., in G. A. R. Hall, Newton.

The opening meeting of the Monday Club of Newton Highlands will be held with Mrs. O'Connor, Erie avenue, on next Monday afternoon.

Editor of the Graphic: Among the scholars of the High and Technical schools there are many who would like to see the games at Clafin Field, but the income with the admission of 25 cents is too much. Waltham charges 10 cents. Is it not better to fill the stands at that price than have 50 at 25 cents? J. S. M.

To the householder who desires to avoid sudden changes of temperature in his home, we recommend the "WINCHESTER" Steam or Hot Water Heater. Always the leader, and still ahead. Our catalogue tells why. Smith & Thayer Co., 236 Congress street, Boston, Mass.

STATE PRIMARIES

The state primaries held in this city on Tuesday were a political farce. One hundred and seventy-six Republicans ventured out and only 72 Democrats. The 176 Republicans elected 127 delegates and nominated three representatives. The 72 Democrats elected 49 delegates and nominated three representatives. The polls were opened from 12 noon until 9 at night and the precinct officers found it tiresome work.

Representatives Henry E. Bothfeld, George H. Ellis and Thomas W. White were renominated by the Republicans. Messrs. Bothfeld and Ellis receiving 165 votes each and Mr. White 164. The list of delegates to the various conventions printed in the Graphic two weeks ago were chosen without any opposition. Republican votes were cast as follows:

Ward One	16
Two	16
Three	27
Four	31
Five	22
Six	25
Seven	24

The Democrats nominated Edward J. Glancy, Timothy D. Murphy and Daniel O'Connell for representatives with 48 votes, 50 votes and 49 votes respectively. Only one contest, if it could be called a contest, appeared among the Democrats, that for state delegate from Ward 6, where John J. Jordan was successful with six votes to two for William G. Burke. Democratic votes were cast as follows:

Ward One	12
Two	16
Three	16
Four	8
Five	9
Six	8
Seven	3

KILLED BY BRIDGE

Ernest Blair, living at Holyoke, who left home a month ago and had been in New York, Buffalo and Boston with a companion, George Jelly, was found dead on top of a freight train at the Riverside station last Friday night. Blair and Jelly had taken the train at Boston to steal a ride home and while riding thru Newton, Blair left Jelly to go to the head of the train. When he failed to return, Jelly looked for him and found him lying on the top of the train with his head crushed. It is presumed that he must have struck one of the numerous bridges over the track in Newton. The body was removed to an undertaker's shop and as it was not claimed, the burial was made on Wednesday by the city. Jelly was held on the charge of riding on a freight car and his case continued by the court.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN AND OTHERS.

Don't resort to "beauty treatments" or that worst of all things for the skin, "make up." Scientific nourishment of the skin solves the whole problem. Our immediate success with Fay's Almond Cold Cream is explained by the fact that the genuine article is hard to obtain. That's why there is nothing like it on the market. It not satisfied, money refunded. For sale at the Woman's Exchange, Newton and Newton Centre, 25 and 50 cents.

The Garden City Garage Company will run an automobile to Brockton Fair daily. For seats apply to J. T. Cushman & Co., West Newton.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Republican state convention will be held at Tremont Temple, Boston, Thursday, Oct. 6, at 10:30 a. m. The senatorial convention for this district will be held at G. A. R. Hall, Natick, Monday, Oct. 3, at 4 p. m. The Middlesex County and district attorney conventions will be held at Lincoln Hall, Lowell, on Wednesday, Oct. 5, at 10:30 a. m.

The Republican congressional convention for this district will be held at Wesleyan Hall, Boston, Saturday noon, Oct. 8. Congressman John W. Weeks of this city will be nominated by acclamation.

The best way to carry Ashes is in a Hod!

Crawford Ranges

Have an Ash Hod in the base into which all the ashes fall far below the fire. They can't bank against the grates and warp them, and they can be emptied easily without spilling.

The Coal Hod is alongside the Ash Hod—out of the way. This feature is a wonderful labor and trouble saver and is patented.

Another trouble-saver of the Crawford is the patented Single Damper. One motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check"—the range does the rest. No damper mistakes.

The Oven has cup-joint heat flues that heat it alike in all parts.

Ask the Crawford agent to show you and write us for circular.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

By virtue of a power of sale, and on account of breach of conditions, contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Michael J. McDonald and his wife, Bridget M. McDonald, to Annie L. Cannon, dated January 13, 1908, recorded in Middlesex Registry of Deeds, South District, Book 3315, page 683, I, Annie L. Cannon, the mortgagee therein named, shall sell at public auction on the premises on Tuesday the 25th day of October 1910, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, to-wit: A certain lot of land with the buildings thereon situated in that part of Newton in said County of Middlesex, being number two on a plan of land in West Newton by E. S. Smith, Surveyor, dated May 20th, A. D. 1903, and being bounded and described as follows: Northeastly by lot 28, ninety-eight feet; Northwestly by lot 29, one hundred and fifty feet; Southwesterly by lot 30, one hundred and fifty feet; and Southwesterly by lot 31, one hundred and fifty feet. Said lot numbered one on said plan, one hundred and forty-eight and eighty-five one hundredth feet, containing fifteen thousand and thirty-three square feet of land—Also a tract of land laid out on a plan of land drawn by Durkee & Robertson dated September A. D. 1891 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds in Book of plans 88, plan 34, and being lots seven, twelve and fourteen on said plan; all of above two parcels of land being subject to a mortgage of six hundred dollars and interest, and all taxes.

A certain parcel of land situated in that part of Newton called West Newton, being lots six and seven in block six—lots one, two, three and four in block six—lots one, two, three, four, six, seven, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen and fifteen in block seven as shown on a plan of land drawn by Mark C. Mosher, surveyed by Elmer G. Mann, surveyor, July 1, 1897, said plan being recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book of plans 105, plan 38. Said lots six and seven in block five contain 1600 square feet and front 50 feet on Cleveland St.; lots three and four in block seven contain 10208 square feet and front 112.75 feet on Cleveland St.; lots one, two, three, four, six, seven, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen and fifteen in block seven contain 4824 square feet and front 50 feet on Cleveland St.; lots 10 to 15 both inclusive in block 7 contain 12518 square feet and front 161.57 feet on Cleveland St. All of above property to be sold subject to any and all mortgages, incumbrances, taxes or assessments, and to be sold for cash.

MRS. KING.

Mrs. Ida (Dunn) King, widow of Colonel Charles F. King, first commander of Willard C. Kingsley Post, 139, and for many years one of the most prominent citizens of Somerville, died Sunday at the residence of her son, George B. King, in Newton Highlands, with whom she had made her home for about ten years. Death was due to apoplexy. She had been in failing health for about ten years.

Mrs. King was the daughter of R. B. Dunn, and was born in Poland, Me. She was aged 79 years, 5 months and 7 days. On Aug. 18, 1853, she was married to Mr. King and during the Civil War she followed her husband south, taking up her abode with the wives of other officers near the field of battle, ministering often to the sick and wounded and performing other patriotic services.

With her husband, Colonel King, she removed to Somerville in 1866. Mrs. King was the founder and first president of the Daughters of Maine Club. For many years she had been identified with the work of the Woman's Relief Corps, and she was a member of the First Methodist Church, where in former years she was also active. She was a member of the first board of trustees of the Somerville Home for Aged.

The funeral services were held at her son's residence, 272 Lake Avenue, Newton Highlands, Tuesday, at 2:30 p. m. Rev. George T. Smart, of the Newton Highlands Congregational Church officiated, and was assisted by Rev. George G. Phillips. The Daughters of Maine Club, Woman's Relief Corps, and trustees of the Home for Aged were represented by delegations at the services, which were largely attended by friends. Among the floral tributes were tokens from Willard C. Kingsley Post and Relief Corps, the trustees of the Home for Aged, and the Daughters of Maine Club. The interment was in Newton Cemetery.

—Miss Ruth Barrett, daughter of Mrs. William E. Barrett of Temple street, has returned to the MacDuffie School for Girls in Springfield, Mass., where she has been a pupil for the last three years. Her sister, Miss Constance Barrett, enters the same school this fall.

—At the Congregational Church Wednesday afternoon the 208th regular meeting of the Suffolk West Conference was held. The hosts were Reverends J. Edgar Park, William C. Gordon and Parris T. Farwell. At the afternoon session Rev. Frederick H. Page and Rev. George T. Smart discussed the recommendation of the National Council concerning ministerial standing, and Rev. George L. Sewall made an address on "The Civic Advance Campaign of Boston 1915."

POLICE NOTES.

The ashes of former Captain Charles P. Heustis, who died last December at Hanover, Mass., and whose body was cremated, were buried in Newton Cemetery yesterday. A number of friends were present at the services which were conducted by Rev. T. H. Gordon of Hanover. Captain Heustis was a member of the police force of Newton for 26 years, entering the service in 1876.

Former Chief of Police Fred A. Tarbox, who is now a member of the capitol police in Washington, D. C., received his appointment this Senator Frye of Maine and is credited to that state on the official list. The rumor that Congressman Weeks was interested in this appointment is, in correct, as Mr. Weeks' first knowledge of the appointment was when he met Mr. Tarbox in the capitol in uniform.

Try This RICHMOND Suds-Maker Free

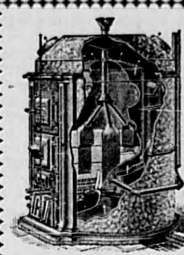

You simply turn the faucet and the "Richmond" Suds-Maker delivers thick, hot suds. It does not in any way interfere with the hot water faucet and can be easily attached to it. It gives you instead, two faucets—one for clean, hot water—the other for thick, hot suds.

Think of the dozens of ways this ingenious device will cut down the work in the kitchen! Learn what it means to save hundreds of steps every day—to always have thick, creamy soap suds on tap. The "Richmond" Suds-Maker gives you any quantity of soap and water thoroughly mixed in scientific proportion—it is a way a ready to meet your instant needs. It puts an end to the drudgery of dish washing—simply place dishes, silver, glassware under its creamy suds for an instant, then just rinse and wipe. It puts an instant, automatic end to waste, to unsightly soap dishes, to the nuisance of using up the odds and ends of soap. Use any kind of soap.

Just call on the plumber whose name appears below and ask to see the "Richmond" Suds-Maker. He will let you take one home to try. Use it ten days—then if you think you can spare it, return it for the trial places you under no obligation to buy. This is your chance to learn about the greatest convenience, money and time saver you can install in your kitchen. Call today.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—Since the days of John T. Kelly, known the country over as "The Roll Mill Man," there has not been a story teller to equal Frank Fogarty, who comes to B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. His stories are always new, bright and humorous, and he has a way of telling them that is all his own. Other features will be the famous Bellelaire brothers, who have just returned from Europe, where their feats of strength and balancing attracted wide attention; the Bowman brothers will appear with their latest songs; Al White's new grotesque dancers, "The Jolly Jiggers"; Gordon Eldrid and company in the comedy sketch called "Won by a Leg"; and Maximo, the wonderful Cuban wire walker, doing his famous specialty of the inebriated swell on the slack wire.

Boston Theatre—"Girles." Frederic Thompson's big musical production, which has been crowding the New Amsterdam Theatre all summer, will be seen at the Boston Theatre next week for a limited engagement. With Joseph Cawthorne and Maude Raymond at the head of its cast of 100, the organization which includes "That famous chorus of 60 girls" will come here intact to present, down to the most minute detail, the sensationally successful satire exactly as it was Somewhere in every house there is need for fabrics in the nature of muslins, nets, scrims, cretonnes. About once so often they have to be renewed. Why shouldn't our goods be used when you buy next time? If you should see them and know the price we think they would be. Why not come and see them?

shown during the months of June, July and August on Broadway. In its review of "Girles" the New York Herald called it "A show of beauty, melody and fun," and thousands of Manhattan theatregoers, supported by thousands from other cities who resort to the metropolis as a summer resort, voted the show as "just that." In its preparation the ingredients humor, melody, color, action and the spirit of youth were mixed in the proper proportions and the result is an entertainment the sparkle and effectiveness of which cannot fail to enthrall the most blasé theatregoer, steeped though he be in the conventionalities of a hundred other musical entertainments.

Castle Square Theatre—"The Crown Prince," which John Craig will produce at the Castle Square is a lively romantic play. It resembles "The Prisoner of Zenda," not in plot, but in manner. Its scenes are laid in the mythical kingdom of Rhodeland, where dwells a beautiful queen and whose Minister of War is in love with her. The dashing crown prince of the neighboring kingdom of Morantia has been engaged to the queen of Rhodeland since infancy, and for four acts the tangled web of love and adventure is deftly woven and made cleverly amusing in dialogue and situation. As produced at the Castle Square "The Crown Prince" will be well cast. Mr. Craig will be the hero and Mary Young, the beautiful young queen, while every other member of the John Craig Stock Company will have a suitable role. There will be effective stage settings and costumes.

Extensions and Additions, Subway, Elevated and Surface, Which It Has Provided

No. 1.

Because of the consideration to be given by state boards and commissions to questions of further extensions, and additions to existing rapid transit facilities, the Boston Elevated Railway Company deems the present a proper occasion to show by map and explanatory comment the exact scope and detail of what has been added to the transit facilities of Boston since the company assumed charge in January, 1898.

The first of a series of maps and statements intended to serve this purpose was published in the Boston daily newspapers on Wednesday last.

While in general the company believes the facilities now in use and those to which the company is committed are orderly and comprehensive, yet neither the company nor its directors claim they are wholly free from defects, nor do they for a moment believe that nothing more remains to be done. This company believes that the intelligent criticism, based upon popular experience, may point out specific opportunities for betterment. The company welcomes healthful criticism and suggestion, and so far as feasible, is always glad to incorporate such suggestions in actual operation.

When the company took charge the population of the cities and towns in which it operates was approximately 843,090. Now it is approximately 1,098,917—an increase of only about 30%. At the beginning of the period there was invested $25,960,000. Today the investment stands at $81,440,000,—an increase of 213%.

There is shown on the first map the system as it was in January, 1898. There was then 304 1-2 miles of surface track. The dotted lines show single track. Attention is called to the Tremont-Street Subway, shown by small circles. At that time only the Park Street loops of this subway were in operation. The size and situation of this subway in relation to the rest of the system should be noted.

The evident inclination of the average voter to vent his discontent with present business and economic conditions on Governor Draper is one of the signs of the times which makes it hard to believe in the intelligence of the electorate. What possible connection can exist between one's opinions regarding Secretary Ballinger and the re-election of one of the best Governors we ever had, is hard to see, and yet many men firmly believe at the present time that in voting for the election of any inexperienced man for the high office of Governor of this state they are hitting the Secretary of the Interior a solar plexus blow. A similar feeling exists relative to Senator Lodge, where if the voter would simply exercise a very little common sense he would realize that his vote for state representatives and state senators would have some application, while a vote against Governor Draper because one does not like Senator Lodge, will only injure the state and not have the slightest effect on the political life of the senior senator. I cite these two possibilities because they are uppermost today in the public mind, and I only desire that each voter in Newton shall cast his ballot either for or against Governor Draper solely on the merits of his administration of the state's affairs for the past two years. I firmly believe that if a sound conclusion is reached on this question that Governor Draper will receive the handsome majority he fully deserves. He has governed Massachusetts with courage, honesty and ability, and should be supported by every good citizen. Why change.

A correspondent calls attention to the desirability of a reduction in the fee charged for admission to High School athletic events on Clifton Field. There is strong feeling among those conversant with the subject that the charging of any admission fee is illegal. It is a matter which ought to receive careful consideration by our educational authorities.

At the risk of being deemed cancelled, we will say that while the increase in the population of this city is not so great as in other cities, it is quality that really counts and not quantity.

The man who guessed 39,799 as the population of Newton, as stated in the Graphic a few weeks ago, came within seven of the census figures.

On account of pressure of advertising, several interesting articles, including the farewell sermon of Rev. Henry E. Oxnard of the North Church, and an account of the annual meeting of the Newton Hospital, will be printed next week.

—For the past week the streets of this village have resembled the encampment at South Framingham, as the members of the Church of the Sacred Heart have been drilling and marching under the direction of the priests of the church. The men are practising for the coming parade which will be held in Boston early next month.

—Last Sunday evening at the Methodist Church the services were in charge of the members of the Epworth League. The audience were privileged in having as the speakers of the evening Judge Robert F. Raymond and Miss Margaret Nichols. Besides the regular choral vocal solos were rendered by Miss Sophia Muldoon, which were greatly appreciated.

—As Champion Jack Johnson, who is playing in one of the theatres of Boston, was running his automobile along Commonwealth avenue last Tuesday he punctured one of his tires. While waiting for help and investigating the puncture Johnson got some of the grease on his hands, and immediately taking a $2 greenback from his pocket he wiped his hands. Then turning to one of the boys who had collected about the machine, he handed the bill to the boy, much to his delight and to the amazement of his chums.

CITY OF NEWTON.

The following order was passed by the Board of Health at its last meeting, Sept. 19, 1910.

ORDERED, that no child in a family in which there is a case of anterior poliomyelitis shall be allowed to attend any public school in the City of Newton until the Board of Health shall certify that in its opinion it is safe for such child to attend school.

ORDERED, that the Board of Health shall not issue any permit for such child to attend school, until at least six weeks shall have elapsed since the occurrence of the last case in the family.

By order of the Board of Health,

SOMETHING NEW FOR NEWTON.

When we consider the increase in the cost of living one makes no mistake when they read and keep in touch with improvement.

Do you know what the DAVIS HOME CURED HAM AND BACON means? It means your grandfather's process. It means the kind he cured upon the farm fifty years ago, and smoked in the flour barrel in the back yard. It means the kind you don't have to soak over night, or parboil to extract the salt. Everybody knows that meat ham is dry, tough, salt and hard, making one drink all the afternoon or chew poppin gum to avoid indigestion. These are facts you cannot dispute. Now we ask every reader of these lines to visit

IRVING & WHELDON, Newton PRESBOTT & BURHAM, West Newton.

Look at the DAVIS HAMS with their clean golden color. You can tell them by their color, if not by their brand, as all hams from our establishment are branded "DAVIS." We have the only establishment in New England, and we think in the United States, that is operated under United States inspection, upon a farm. Our establishment is located at Cavendish, Vt. In the heart of the Green Mountains, where for years we have dealt out to customers of that state an article that is by all acknowledged as superior to anything in its line. We might fill columns with testimonials, but you cannot get testimonials. Proof of the pudding is in the eating. GET ONE, TRY IT, and you won't change. If you like it, keep buying it. If you think you might get fooled by no doing, ask your Vermont friends. Next week we will tell you of our home rendered lard.

MECHANICS' FAIR.

The vast Mechanics' Building on Huntington avenue, Boston, with every inch of its many halls and immense basement actually bulging and throbbing with several hundred practical, working exhibits is ready to receive its thousands of visitors. The doors will be thrown open at 10 o'clock Monday morning next, the 3d instant, and daily until and including Saturday, the 29th instant, from 10 o'clock A. M. to 10 o'clock P. M., except Sundays. The various latest inventions of Thomas A. Edison will be magnificently displayed and the making of a shoe will be shown in every detail, employing 60 machines and their crews of skilled workmen. There will be a model printing plant illustrating the getting out of a daily newspaper. The Art Loan exhibit of paintings and sculpture is valued at $1,000,000 and will be the greatest ever seen at any public exhibition in New England. Every day, beginning at 2 and 8 o'clock, the famous United States Marine Band, Lieut. William H. Sautelmann leader, will give concerts in Grand Hall and every morning, afternoon and evening the Edna Frances Simmons Orchestra will play in Exhibition Hall.

—A Choral Society was formed in Wade Hall Tuesday evening and the following officers were elected: Mr. Sullivan, president; Edward Piper, vice-president; Mr. John Temperley, secretary and treasurer. The next meeting will be held Tuesday evening in the same place.

—The Pierian Club will begin their winter's work Wednesday, Oct. 5, meeting with Mrs. Henphill of Boylston street. The subject to be studied during the winter will be "Little Journeys to the Homes of the Good and Great." The subject for the first meeting will be Confucius, Mr. Chas. Mills in charge.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Everett of High street gave a dinner Tuesday in honor of their guests, Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Sherman of Brewer, Me. Mrs. Sherman was well known as Nellie Sawyer, Mrs. Everett's sister. Plates were laid for ten. Those of the family who were present were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sawyer, father and mother; Miss Grace Sawyer and the grandchildren, Winchester, Madeleine and Norman Everett, and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Sherman. Winchester Sawyer, a brother, was not able to be present. After a sumptuous dinner, stories, music and singing were enjoyed, and a very social evening was spent by the family. Rev. and Mrs. Sherman left Boston by steamer for their home in Bangor.

NEWTON POLICE WIN.

In the return game of ball between the Newton and Waltham police departments played last Friday afternoon on the West Newton Common, the visitors were defeated, 6 to 5, in an eight inning game. The Waltham rooters said the result was due to the fact that the Newton men played two former High School athletes, Donahue and Ryan.

Waban

—Waban Hall has been thoroughly renovated and re-papered and painted.

—Mr. James H. Mason of Windsor road is on a fortnight's hunting trip in New Brunswick.

—Mr. Harry H. Newcomb of Waban avenue has been ill for several days with an injury to his head.

—Mrs. F. A. Childs of Windsor road arrived home on Monday after a summer spent at her summer home at Campton, N. H.

—Prof. J. H. Pillsbury's Waban School on Beacon street began its fall term on Wednesday with an average number of pupils.

—Mrs. C. H. Wardwell of Plainfield street is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Charles Starkweather and two sons of Chicago for a few days.

—Mr. Rhodes Garrison of Pine Ridge road returned last Saturday from a ten days' walking trip through the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

—Miss Margaret Breck of Beacon street is confined to her home and suffering severely from an unusual affliction of the blood vessels of her arm.

—Mr. Arthur B. Harlow of Kent road, who recently resigned his position with the Mellens Food Company, has attained to the office of president of the Ridges Food Corporation.

—Master Elliot M. Buffum of Beacon street was the third victim in Waban of the bicycle thief, having his wheel stolen on Sunday morning from in front of the church. The police were notified at once but no trace has as yet been found of it. The other two to have similar experiences were Mr. Fred W. Webster, Jr., and Mr. Lester B. Cardell.

—Miss Jessie G. Gould of Beacon street on Tuesday won the women's championship of the Waban Tennis Courts for the third time thus gaining permanent possession of the handsome trophy presented the club in 1907 by Mrs. J. C. Buffum, Mrs. P. S. Hill being the only other title holder whose name appears on it. Miss Gould came through the tournament easily meeting and defeating in the finals Mrs. G. M. Angier in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, her superior steadiness and placing being effective. The consolation were also finished this week, Miss Fannie Rane, the youngest contendee, defeating Miss Blanche Farrington and displaying an ability that gives promise of developing into an excellent game. The score was 6-3, 6-3. Elliot H. Robinson and D. M. Hill retained the championship in men's doubles, defeating in the final round F. W. Rane and G. Williams easily 6-4, 6-2, 6-3. Their superior team work and net play gave them a distinct advantage and Mr. Hill in particular was in fine form and played a very hard, accurate game. On Saturday the active tournament season will be brought to a close by a team match against the Waltham Tennis Club.

The fact is that Governor Draper has made about as good a Governor as this state ever had—and a better Governor than many who have had of recent years. He has simply stuck to the line and let those who didn't like it howl. He has made no promises he couldn't perform—and those he has made he has carried out. He has done admirably well, has shown fearless courage, and what is no less important, has shown the same wisdom of the far-seeing man of affairs. In a word, he has made a first-class Governor, and deserves his third term vastly more than any other Governor who has got it with less question. Why, then, is it so hastily assumed that Massachusetts is ready to "bite off her own nose to spite her face," so to speak? If you have a good Governor of whose sterling quality and courage you have had a full and satisfying taste, what's the particular use of throwing him down and out in favor of somebody else who probably won't do as well, and who certainly cannot be asked to do any better?

Now the returns thus far gathered do show that there's a sort of revolt on throughout the country against certain phases of the Republican national policy. This manifests itself in so-called "insurgency" where there are any insurgent candidates, and in Democratic victories when no such candidate is put forward. But if this revolt is worth its salt, it must be because it is based on some reason. It is, in fact, so. It is based on a hostility to the more prominent leaders on the Republican side in Congress during the past session, with its unwelcome display of reluctance to face a tariff revision. In every case, almost, a rebuke has been administered because it was felt to be unwelcome. But in the last instance it is a rebuke commonly administered only where it has been felt to be deserved. Why, then, assume that Massachusetts is likely to rebuke Governor Draper, who doesn't deserve any such repudiation, but, on the contrary, deserves his third term uncommonly well? Any such assumption pays a poor compliment to the intelligence of our Massachusetts electorate. Are we so silly as to mistake a restiveness under the domination of the national councils by Cannon and Aldrich et al. for a reason why we should deliberately refuse to re-elect a Governor who has made a record equaled by few Governors in our state's history? It is easy to assume, because people don't like the Cannon-Aldrich style of Republicanism at Washington, that they've got to repudiate every Republican candidate from United States senators down to the humble hog-slayers and faggers in March meeting! But what a hydrocephalous lot we should be if that represented the sum total of our political wisdom! We should hardly be fit for self-government.—Lowell Courter Citizen.

THE NEW TELEPHONE RATES

The following editorial analysis by the Boston Transcript will be of interest to those who are trying to determine whether they are favorably or adversely affected by the new telephone rates:

The Highway Commissioners, in their letter to the telephone company, enunciated a policy which is fundamental to any discussion of the new telephone rates. It starts out with the theory that the five-cent toll rate between Boston and the suburban exchanges should be extended to the longest distance that can be practically afforded, and also that local service should be given to each subscriber at the lowest practicable price. These principles coincide with the economic principles governing social intercourse and trade.

The policy of the commissioners was made two years ago when they recommended the reduction of toll rates from ten cents to five cents for messages between the central Boston exchanges and the suburban exchanges within five miles. This has been obviously satisfactory to the subscribers. Every step of the kind brings the mass of the people into closer association with Boston, with corresponding advantages to the commercial and political development of the city. An obstacle to the extension of this policy has existed in the loss to the telephone company caused by much of the unlimited service. This loss has been heretofore made good by the toll charges and unfairly heavy burdens imposed on the measured rate subscribers.

The investigation of the highway commissioners showed that, excluding the private branch exchange telephones, which are on measured rates, about one-half of the telephones in use in the Boston and suburban districts are on unlimited service and the other half on measured, or coin-box service. The hearings brought out that the measured-rate half of the telephone users were paying two-thirds of the exchange income of the company, though they are originators of considerably less than one-half of the exchange messages. These users plainly are unfairly treated by the old rates, whether the telephones are in residences or business places.

On the other side of the shield are the figures which show that unlimited special-line business service, and multi-party line suburban service, are classes which create about one-fourth of the company's messages in the district. A good part of this business is done at a loss. More than forty percent of the special line business subscribers, with unlimited service, get their telephone use for less than two cents a message, and about twenty-five percent of the multi-party line subscribers make a large enough use of their telephones to get their messages equally cheap. The telephone company claims that this rate is insufficient to pay the normal running expenses; and we cannot gainsay the company's contention that, to live, it must collect sufficient income from its subscribers to pay the cost of keeping the plant up to date and pay the dividends of six percent on the money invested.

The letter of the Highway Commissioners to the telephone company contains the Commission's conclusion that subscribers to measured rate service and also many subscribers to the unlimited service are paying dearly for the service that they use, and that the only way to equalize the conditions, while extending the distance for the five-cent reduced toll rate, is to curtail the unlimited service of those who now receive a larger value than they pay for, whether the subscribers affected are special line business users or multi-party residence users. The figures brought out at the hearings show that this curtailment will affect a small minority of the subscribers. Important figures have been brought out at the hearings during the last four years, and in the reports of the accountants and engineers who have been investigating the company's accounts, property and processes of operation. These sufficiently indicate that the only way to bring about a general low price for telephone messages between central Boston and its suburbs is to follow the path that the Highway Commissioners are traveling.

It would consequently be a misfortune to Boston to have the trial of these new rates set aside. Wakefield, Waltham and the other municipalities about central Boston want five-cent toll service into the centre. Boston and all the surrounding municipalities will profit from it.

Having started this important policy two years ago, the Highway Commissioners have proposed plans enabling the extension of the toll rate without dealing unjustly, it believes, with any users. The Commissioners believe that putting their plans into effect will cause a large increase in the company's business. The company holds the same opinion. If this anticipation is sustained by experience here, as appears to have been the case in other cities, the Commissioners ought soon to provide for another extension of the five-cent toll radius. This is fore-shadowed in the experts' reports. It is understood that no exact knowledge exists in telephone circles to show how far a message may be transmitted for a cost not exceeding five cents, and the Commissioners should move cautiously. They now extend the five-cent distance to eight miles, compared with five miles formerly fixed upon. This move then doubles the area within the five-cent radius, and is probably as great an increase as judicious commissioners could make at one time in a field where experience is so limited as in telephony.

The Commissioners also fix the toll rate at five cents for messages crossing the borders of the suburban district to adjacent exchanges, which will be a boon to some of the bordering exchanges. The chances of two years ago were put into effect experimentally, and having proved desirable they have been continued. No backstep should be taken now by opposing the spirit of the Commissioners' recommendations; their rates should be put into effect and tried out.
